Crappie Diet

We have found the best winter bait to be a small minnow on a small jig. The crappie will feed on aquatic insects, crustacea, small minnows and other small fish. Plant material is sometimes eaten but this is a starvation diet. Crappies continue to feed through the winter.

Spawning Habits

Crappies usually begin to breed when they are two or three years old. Spawning usually occurs in May and June in Minnesota. The

What does it Cost to operate a Natural Gas Clothes Dryer?

"PIN MONEY"

About 1¾ cents worth of gas dries a whole load of clothes . . . in an automatic clothes dryer.

If you hang your wash and lose a clothes pin, chances are it would cost you more replacing it than you would have spent on the gas drying the whole load automatically.

What's more . . . if you dried your clothes automatically in any other kind of clothes dryer, it would cost you about five times as much.

That's only one load of clothes. Think how the savings can multiply in a month or a year!

Natural Gas clothes dryers do the job faster . . . better . . . for a fraction of the cost of any other automatic dryer.

NSJC Ends Cage Season 3-19

It was a long season for Northland state junior college basketball coach Chet Engelman In his first year at the Northmen helm Engelman compiled a 3-19 season record, including a 2-12 conference mark.

"Actually, with all things considered, we did a pretty fair job and I don't have too many complaints," said Engelman. "But our ball handling, rebounding and shooting percentages weren't too good; in fact we didn't do well in any of the basic basketball skills," Engelman added.

"We made a lot of mechanical mistakes and our lack of speed hurt us, too," Engelman quipped. "The other teams were just quicker than we were. I thought Tony Burke did a fine job for us." Tony led the Northmen in scoring, rebounding and field goal percentage. "I would hate to think of what the season would have been like if we didn't have Tony," Engelman added.

"Ron Visness was a very consistent ball player for us while Jim Goudge had some fantastic games although he was sometimes inconsistent," the head coach said. "Players like Curt Jenson did a good job for us and Steve Haaven and Scott Rousseau were always hard workers."

Burke led the Northmen in scoring for the 1970-71 season as the 6-4 freshman center from Bemidji scored 292 points for a 13.3 average. Visness was the second leading scorer with a 12.3 average while Jim Goudge carried a 10.3 mark. Visness moved up to the number three position in the list of all-time leading scorers at Northland. The 5-9 sophomore guard scored 273 points this year to give him a career total of 531, which placed him behind Nick Neibauer with 843 and Greg Farder 642.

Goudge recorded the three highest point totals in single games for the Northmen as he scored 85 of his 227 points in three games. Against Mesabi, Goudge scored 31 and he poured in 28 against Bottineau and 26 points against Brainerd.

Burke also led the club in shooting percentage from the field as he connected on 120 of 295 shots for a 40.7 per cent. As a team the Northmen shot just 34 per cent from the field for the season. Burke hit on 11 of 13 field goal attempts against the area vocational school, 85 per cent, for the highest single game percentage. Visness was the only other Northman to shoot over 40 per cent for the year as the guard [illegible] per cent of his shots.

Burke, who was selected as the most valuable player by his teammates, grabbed 303 rebounds this past season for an average of 13.8 per game. Curt Jenson picked off an average of 9.8 caroms per contest. Burke pulled down 24 rebounds against Vermillion for the top single game performance.

In the assists department, freshman Jim Goudge led the team with 70 for the season while Visness totaled 55 and Jenson 28. Goudge was credited with seven assists against both Mesabi and Hibbing for the top single game performances for the Northmen.

Visness led the club in recoveries with 57 during the season. Jim Goudge picked up nine loose balls in a single game against Hibbing. Goudge also had the distinction of losing the ball on turnovers 81 times during the 1970-71 season.

Greg Haldahl led the Northmen in free throw shooting as the freshman candidate connected on 38 of 43 from the gift line for 88.4 per cent. Steve Haaven hit on 51 of 72 free throws for the season for a 70.8 percentage. Haaven held the record of sinking nine of 10 free throw attempts against Crookston and Vermillion while Scott Rousseau sank six of seven against Mesabi.

Things will be different next year promised Engleman. We'll have our own gym with Burke, Goudge, Jenson, Jay Forney, Haldahl and Tim Olson coming back along with some new freshmen."

Five TRF Karate Class Members Compete In Meet

Approximately 15 Thief River Falls karate class members made the trip to the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks on February 19 to compete in the TRF-UND Karate Tournament, but due to cold feet and stage fright, only five dared to compete. However, of those five, four placed in the tourney. Bruce Halbasch missed third place in his class by a mere .5 of a point. This event was the first meeting between the two teams.

The participants were graded with a 10 point system on form, speed, and focus (contraction and relaxing of body). A perfect score of 30 is rare. Judging the event were Gary Flynn, a purple belt and instructor of the Thief River Falls class, and George Kemper, a high white belt and the University of North Dakota instructor.

The winners of the tourney are as follows: Class A (advanced) first place, Avis Mikkelson (UND), second place, Walton McCarthy (UND); Class B first place, Vern Cleven (TRF), second place, Lee Hausen (UND); third place, Don Schindler (TRF); Class C-first place, Reed Overson (TRF); second place, Dale Longtin (TRF); and third place, Mary Gall (UND).

Both instructors felt the tournament was a success and complimented those who participated in their fine showing. Flynn was a little disappointed in his club's participation but vowed to remedy the epidemic of stage fright before future tournaments are scheduled.

SEEING IS BELIEVING! Seven Thief River Falls couples actually played a round of snowmobile golf Saturday afternoon at the Thief River golf club. Mrs. Arnold Narverud displays fine golfing form in spite of an insulated snowsuit as she tees off under the watchful eyes of Dennis Bakke and Mrs. Fred Sorensen. Using two-inch, solid rubber balls in bright colors, the couples played four holes of golf. Landing the ball inside the fences protecting the greens from snowmobile damage was sufficient to complete the holes. Thanks to the crusted snow (and probably to short drives), not a single ball was lost during the afternoon. Participants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Narverud, Mr. and Mrs. Sig Sinding, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bakke, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Mittelstodt, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Solheim and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sorensen.

A letter of intent was presented the Board from the State indicating their intent to order a re-appraisal based on the apparent inequities. WHEREAS, the County Board has held numerous meetings to consider these requests without being able to resolve the matter on an individual office basis.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that, effective January 1, 1971, the officers, as indicated, be granted a 8 per cent increase in salary based on the amount paid in 1970. The County Attorney shall be granted an additional $540.00 increase for 1971 to compensate for a raise not given in 1970. No increase shall be granted the County Commissioners. The 8 per cent increase shall be for the offices including Register of Deeds, Sheriff, Auditor, Attorney, Clerk of Court, Assessor, Treasurer and Engineer.

Upon request for a roll call vote the following vote was recorded: Hanson For, Olson For, Anderson For, Stenberg For and Tasa For. Resolution declared unanimously carried.

Fergus Falls Otters Hand Prowler Quint 80-68 Loss

Whitey Olson's Lincoln high school Prowler basketball team ended its regular 1970-71 season Saturday night at Fergus Falls and suffered an 80-68 set-back at the hands of the Otters.

The loss left the Prowlers with a 10-8 season record as they enter district 31 competition tonight (Monday) when they play Fisher in the UND fieldhouse at 7 p.m.

The Prowlers fell behind 20-13 at the end of the first quarter Saturday night but came back with a fine second quarter effort to lead 33-31 at the half. The Otters connected on an incredible 14 of 21 field goal attempts in the third quarter to regain the lead 60-51 going into the final quarter.

For the game, the Otters shot 47 per cent from the field as they were on target with 37 of 79 shots while the Prowlers connected on 24 of 62 field goals for 39 per cent. From the free throw line the Prowlers shot 72 per cent on 20 of 28 attempts while the Otters hit on six of 15 for 40 per cent from the gift line. The Prowlers outrebounded Fergus Falls 51-37 for the game with Rande Smith pulling down 18 and Dale Hanson 11 for the Prowlers.

The Otters built up a seven point first quarter lead as they dominated the boards in the opening stanza. Fergus Falls held their biggest lead of nine points with 1:24 remaining before Rande Smith put in a rebound with 34 seconds left.

Captain Mark Thyren sank two free throws at the out-set of the second quarter to bring the Prowlers to within 20-15 before 6-5 Kim Stich connected on one of two free throw attempts for a 21-15 Otter lead with 7:17 remaining. Rande Smith tipped in a rebound off brother Kent's shot to cut the Otter lead to just four points 21-17 with 6:51 remaining.

Smith brought the Prowlers to within three, 21-18 with a free throw and Dale Hanson made a driving lay up to cut the Fergus Falls lead to a single point, 21-20 with 4:53 remaining in the first half.

The lead was back and forth from one to three points for the Otters until Rande Smith tied the contest 27-27 on his free throw with 1:47 remaining. The Otters went back in front 29-27 on a short jump shot but the Prowlers tied the contest 29-all on Kent Smith's rebound shot with 1:16 remaining. Stich connected on a long jump shot with 1:04 remaining for a 31-29 Otter lead before Mike Hamerlinck swished a long set shot to knot the game 31-31 with 28 seconds remaining. Rande Smith was on target with two free throw attempts with just two seconds remaining for the Prowlers' first lead of the game, 33-31 at the half.

The Otters came out in the third quarter and made eight straight baskets from around the 20-foot range. Stich tied the game 33-33 with 7:43 remaining before the Prowlers' held their final lead, 35-33 on Hanson's short jump shot with 7:20 remaining in the third quarter.

Baskets by Jim Morstad and Dan Olson gave the Otters the lead, 37-35, with seven minutes remaining. Kent Smith scored on a last break lay up for the Prowlers with 6:51 remaining to tie the contest for the last time. 37-37 Stich and Brad Kastelle connected from the field after an Otter press forced turnovers by the Prowlers to give Fergus Falls a 41-37 lead with 6:17 remaining.

The Prowlers climbed to within one point, 43-42, on Hanson's jump shot from the right side with 5:24 remaining and the local club trailed just 45-43 with 5:07 remaining before Fergus Falls opened up a 52-43 bulge with 2:58 remaining in the third quarter. The Otters built their biggest lead of the game to this point with 20 seconds remaining in the quarter as they held an 11-point, 60-49 advantage. Pat Hamilton was on target with two free throws with eight seconds remaining as the Prowlers trailed 60-51 going into the final quarter.

The Otters lead by as much as 14 points, 72-58 with 4:17 remaining in the game before Rande Smith and Mark Thyren brought the Prowlers back to within eight points, 72-64 with 2:01 remaining but the Otters found open men underneath the basket for the 80-68 win. The Otters finished their regular season with a 12-5 record and will face Moorhead in a region C battle Wednesday night at Detroit Lakes.

Paul Morstad led the game's scorers with 21 points while Kim Stich scored 19, Tom Dowzak 15 and Brad Kastelle 10. Rande Smith led the Prowlers in scoring with 20 points while Dale Hanson tallied 18 and Mark Thyren 13.

Muzzy Decisioned 7-0 In State Meet

Lincoln high school wrestling captain Jerry Muzzy lost his bid for a state title when the senior grappler was beaten 7-0 by Dave McKny of Minnetonka in the first round of the state tournament Thursday night.

McKay scored a first period takedown and added second period points on a takedown and predicament following an escape and added two points riding time for the win. Muzzy lost a chance for a spot in the wrestle-backs when McKny was beaten by Bill Schmitz of Renville who in turn was beaten by eventual champion Loren Benson of Staples.

Other region eight wrestlers who fared well in the state tourney were Mike Hanlon of Bagley who gave up points only in the championship match where he lost a 9-4 decision to Rick Loeding of Austin in the 95 pound bracket.

Mark Costello of Park Rapids won the 103 pound championship with an 11-1 win over Steve Hochhalter. The point scored by Hochhalter was the only score recorded against Costello in the tournament.

Prowler Hockey Improves During 1970-71 Campaign

Improved. That's the one word Lincoln high school hockey coach Bob Tuff used to describe his Prowlers for the just completed 1970-71 ice season.

The Prowler sextet improved from a 10-11 record during the 1969-70 season to a 13-7-3 mark this year. Included in the 1970-71 record was an eight game winning streak which found the Prowlers advancing into the Minneapolis Tribune's "top twenty" ratings.

The Prowlers started the season in shaky fashion as they lost tough 3-2 and 5-4 decisions to East Grand Forks and Bemidji before taking their first win against Red River 5-1. That win started the local club on their winning streak as they downed Red River, Crookston, Moorhead, the Alumni, Anoka, St. Paul Park, Baudette and Hallock before tieing Warroad 3-3 and losing to powerful Roseau 4-3 in sudden-death overtime in the city arena.

Thief River Falls came back to blank Red Lake Falls 3-0 and then tied North Dakota power Grand Forks Central 5-5 in overtime. Bemidji and Roseau dampened the Prowler winning hopes as they handed the Lincoln six a pair of 5-1 set-backs before the Prowlers were able to tie eventual region eight runner up East Grand Forks 2-2 in overtime. The local skaters edged Crookston 2-1 and walloped Baudette 11-0 before ending their regular season with a 3-2 loss against Warroad.

In the sub region eight tournament at Roseau, the Prowlers clobbered Indus 10-1 and made the region eight semi finals with a 10-2 win over Moorhead before Roseau ended the Prowler season with a 5-0 victory.

"I was satisfied with our overall play during the season," said coach Tuff, "we were pretty consistant and we lost four games by just one goal." "You could see we had a young club in the beginning of the year with not much experience, but the young kids came along and improved throughout the season for us," said the sophomore coach.

"Brian Peterson was the backbone of our club all season and he pulled us through when we had any defensive lapses," said Tuff. "Roger Lee was an excellent captain for us this past season, and he improved his play a lot too," quipped the head mentor.

Tuff said his whole team played well for him this season and pointed out the play of his defenseman as being strong all season. "We sometimes had a little trouble defensively in our own end," Tuff reported, "but boys like Mike Protz, Rob Swenson, Paul Johnson and Paul Olson played real well."

"Our three forward lines played some fine hockey for us and we broke out of our own end real well," the coach added. Tuff also said, "Mike Hamilton was our most improved forward while our sophomore line did a fine job."

Tuff reported the high point of the season for his club was the win over Anoka (3-1) during the holiday tournament in the city arena. "That was a big victory for us as it started us on our winning streak," Tuff mentioned. "We were really disappointed with our 5-1 loss at Bemidji and of course we felt bad when we lost the game to Roseau in overtime after leading them," the coach said.

Eight seniors finished their Lincoln high school hockey careers during the 1970-71 season. The eight include Brian Peterson, Tom Nepper, Paul Olson, Paul Johnson, Rory Harger, Roger Lee, Merv Eriksson and Mark Wangberg.

Girl Scouts Observe Golden Anniversary

The 59th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of America is also the golden anniversary of the Girl Scouts in Thief River Falls.

The first Thief River Falls troop was formed in 1921 under the leadership of Mrs. George Biddick. There are now 24 troops with 350 members and 42 adult leaders in Thief River Falls at this time.

Since the local founding in 1921 there has been an ever-growing increase in interest in Girl Scouting. Records show four troops formed in 1936 with Mrs. L. Berge and Mrs. Emmett Israelson as leaders. Mrs. Israelson had three separate troops with a total of 33 girls.

In 1941 a group of interested adults formed the first Thief River Falls Girl Scout Council. Mrs. Stanton Dahlen was the first president, with Mmes. N. Holznecht, John Lind, Clara Paulson, E. Korstad, A. Berge, L. B. Hartz, H. Helseth, E. B. Benson, Dave Fast, Tom Peek and W. Ferguson working with her.

There may have been other groups organized prior to this date to help leaders, but this is the first council registered in the records of the Thief River Falls association.

Other presidents who have served include: Mmes. H. Helseth, L. B. Hartz, C. W. Vorachek, V. D. Borry, R. Olsen, Vic Jung, L. G. Hetland and Miss Doris Peterson.

Mrs. Alf Borry, treasurer, was on the council for 10 years, the longest continuous term of service in the local organization. Other well-remembered troop leaders include Mmes. O. Lynde, Ed Brstrud and Tom Peek.

In 1947 an area organization was formed, making possible better direction of various activities. Eight counties, Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Clearwater and Norman, joined in what became officially known as the Northwestern Minnesota Girl Scout Council, Inc. In this area there were 88 active troops with more than 1,000 members and 241 adult leaders.

The area council was governed by a board of directors that represented the 14 cities and villages that maintained active troops. Headquarters were maintained in Thief River Falls where the city provided a room in the municipal auditorium, and a full time office staff was employed by the Girl Scout Council

Taxpayer Ass'n. Statement Read

(Editor's Note: The following statement was presented by the Northwest Taxpayers association at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening. It is being printed here in its entirety in the public interest.)

The Northwest Taxpayers association would like to again thank the school board for its attention to our association at the many past meetings. The association is quite concerned, however, in its belief that the board members are not recognizing the firm attitude in our statements to hold the line on all spending of school district funds for 1971-72.

We have listened to propositions by the board for $150 across the board increases to each teacher, which represents some $30,000 increase in tax money. There are other areas of insurance and income protection which the board is dickering with, and when we add up the dollars and cents here, it totals out to around $70,000 increase in tax money. On these two items of salary alone, it gives us a total new expenditure of $100,000.

The taxpayers association feels that the present teachers' salaries are more than adequate. If one remembers that a teacher only works three-fourths of a year, has fringe benefits far exceeding other employed

Plastics Cause Fire Wednesday At High School

Plastics being mixed caused a chemical reaction that started a fire at the Lincoln school in Thief River Falls at approximately 11:30 Tuesday morning.

An automatic fire detection device triggered the fire alarm, and the school was evacuated immediately as students fled the building clad only in indoor clothing.

The students stayed in the city auditorium while the Thief River Falls fire department battled the blaze, which was confined to a storage room, although there was smoke and water damage in a corridor.

After the fire was extinguished the students were called back and told that classes were cancelled for the remainder of the day. Town students left immediately, and students from the country went home by bus at approximately 12:30.

Windows in the building were left open for ventilation until the early evening and a scenting machine was used to mask remaining smoke odors.

Classes were back to normal Wednesday morning. One school official said the only unusual thing was the "sweet" smell from the chemical used to scent the school.

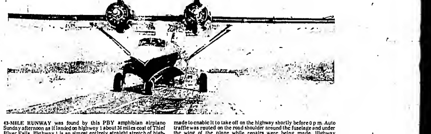
Although no official damage estimates were completed by Wednesday morning, one school official said he thought the damage to the school would range from $2,500 to $3,000. He said there was smoke damage to student clothing in lockers and expected that this cost would later be added to the total.

TRF Fire Dept. Answer Calls

Thief River Falls firemen were called to the Arctic Cat snowmobile plant Wednesday, March 3, when sparks from a welding project caught the insulation of the parts room on fire.

The incident, which happened at 10:25 a.m., was reported to be very small.

On March 8, the fire department answered a call at the Frank Rohrer home, 410 south Arnold, when rags began burning in the basement.



43-MILE RUNWAY was found by this PBY amphibian airplane Sunday afternoon as it landed on highway 1 about 36 miles east of Thief River Falls. Highway 1 is an almost entirely straight stretch of highway for 43 miles from Thief River Falls to highway 89 on the Red Lake Indian reservation. Piloted by Peter Martin Mitchell of Ottawa, Ont., Canada, the plane was forced to make a landing on the highway at about 1 p.m. due to engine trouble. Mechanics were summoned from Bemidji, where the Canadian-owned plane is based, and repairs were made to enable it to take off on the highway shortly before 6 p.m. Auto traffic was routed on the road shoulder around the fuselage and under the wing of the plane while repairs were being made. Highway patrolman Clifton Mattson took the above photo shortly before takeoff. Patrolman Mattson cleared one and one-half miles of roadway for the takeoff, but that much space wasn't necessary. The big plane lumbered down the highway with only a couple of feet of road surface to spare on either side and was in the air in less than 2,000 feet.

Parents Object To Busing Of Mark Twain Students

Expressions of protest from parents of Mark Twain elementary school students, presentation of a strongly-worded statement from the Northwest Taxpayers association and comments from individuals among about 225 in attendance highlighted the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening. The session was held in the Lincoln senior high school cafeteria.

Opening business of the session included acceptance of previous minutes and financial report, with treasurer Maynard Wedul reporting that the district has an operating deficit of $344,006. Chairman Mervin Prestebak noted that the district is operating on warrants (funds borrowed to cover overdrafts) and that this practice is not unusual for school districts this day and age.

Art Tranby read the statement from Mark Twain parents concerned about use of five rooms of Mark Twain school for junior high school use, thereby requiring elementary classes to move into rental facilities.

"Parents of Mark Twain school students are present here this evening for the purpose of voicing their objections to the board's proposal to transport pupils in grades one through four to remodeled and refurbished public buildings, namely the armory, old library and auditorium, for the next three years," the statement said.

"We feel that the displacement of these youngsters is awkward, dangerous and very unnecessary, to say nothing of being highly expensive, that the reasons for the proposal are questionable, and that existing problems can be dealt with in a manner far more acceptable to a majority of parents and teachers."

He suggested that "further negotiations concerning the afore-mentioned be halted" and that a meeting be held early next week to "permit a complete examination of all facets of this situation".

Chairman Prestebak read a school board statement noting that space problems had been under study by the board for the past 18 months and that the bureau of field studies of the University of Minnesota had been contracted to make a study of the local district's situation.

"Dr. Sederburg reported that our junior high school is overcrowded," Prestebak read. "The building is designed for 650 students and has 820 pupils enrolled. Next year ... 887 pupils are scheduled for enrollment. Mark Twain elementary school is also near peak enrollment. Next year another classroom is required just to handle classroom needs."

Prestebak then read the following list of alternatives suggested by the bureau of field studies:

1. Build a new elementary

Board Closes Talks, Seeks Panel Action

Following a number of meetings which left a rift of approximately $150,000 between school board offers and teachers' council requests, the question of salaries for teachers in School District 564 will apparently be placed in the hands of an adjustment panel. Such was the decision of the board as presented at a negotiating session Tuesday evening.

Appointment of an adjustment panel will likely take place in spite of an expressed willingness by the teachers' council to continue negotiations. The council had filed a request for an adjustment panel earlier in compliance with dates set by state law. Vern Isaacson, council chairman, told the board at Tuesday night's session that the teachers wanted very much to continue to negotiate and that the request for an adjustment panel was made only to comply with the legal deadlines.

An adjustment panel consists of three members—one appointed by the board of education, one appointed by the teachers' council and one either agreed upon by the two appointees within 10 days or appointed by the district court. The panel hears testimony and files its findings and recommendations. The findings of the panel are not binding on either the school board or the teachers' council.

Board Statement

Mervin Prestebak, chairman of the board of education, opened Tuesday's negotiating session with a prepared statement from the board. It noted that the base cost of the faculty salary proposal submitted March 4 was $164,880 over the $1,680,020 scheduled for teachers' salaries for 1970-71—an increase of 10.4 per cent.

In rejecting the council's proposal, the board statement said: "It appears from calculations that the negotiating council and the board of education are over $150,000 apart in defining what the annual cost for salary increments should be for the school year 1971-72. Thus, it seems at this point, that the most expedient thing to do is to honor your request for an adjustment panel as stated in your letter to the president of the board of education dated Feb. 20, 1971.

"We have enjoyed the cordiality, the professionalism and the genuine interest for better education displayed by the negotiating council during our several conferences," the statement continued. "We commend you for these high ideals and hope that we may continue, at a later date, our conversation regarding professional organization, improvement of learning, etc., that we started at an earlier Saturday meeting."

Teachers' Statement

Following a caucus, the teachers' council presented the following statement which was read by chairman Isaacson:

"You realize that the law states that we must file prior to March 1 for an adjustment panel. We, too, are concerned about the economy of this area. The adjustment panel will cost the school district a needless amount. We feel that both groups were trying to negotiate and arrive at a settlement despite unfavorable conditions. It was our hope that

TRANSFORMATION of an actor from his real self into the character which he is to portray on stage depends a great deal upon the make-up department of a production. When Lincoln senior high school music department stages the musical "Oklahoma" March 18, 20 and 22, a number of the characters will require special make-up to fit their roles. The above series of photos shows a make-up session in progress and the change which takes place in the actor. David Cameron is no stranger to the stage of Lincoln high school and plays one of the lead roles in "Oklahoma". In the photo at the far left, Michael Tillmann of the high school faculty begins the make-up routine by brushing Dave's hair back prior to powdering and spraying it. Next Nancy Vigness, chairman of the make-up committee, applies eyebrow and eye make-up while a patch for building a beard is already drying in place. Tillmann and Miss Vigness then form the beard, cementing curly sections of fibers into place. Cotton and more costume cement were used to malform Dave's nose, and a heavy application of rouge was applied to blend the facial tones. At right, Dave takes a look at the finished product—Judd Fry, the villain of "Oklahoma".

Mrs. Henrietta Ristau Celebrates 100th Birthday

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Henrietta Ristau of this city gathered at Oakland Park nursing home on Sunday, March 7, to help her celebrate her 100th birthday. A resident of this community since 1897, Mrs. Ristau came here as a bride with her husband to homestead in the Germantown area.

She was born March 7, 1871 in Tannenberg, Germany to Karl and Karolina Kutzborski, the eldest of 11 children. Mrs. Ristau is the only remaining member of her family. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith in Germany and attended school there. Before coming to America, she was employed for six years in Berlin as a seamstress. In 1896 she immigrated to the United States with a family friend, settling in Crookston. There she was employed as a cook at the Cleveland hotel. After her marriage to John Ristau on July 7, 1897, the couple homesteaded in the Germantown area until 1941. The couple then moved to this city and she has since lived here. After the death of her husband in 1945, Mrs. Ristau lived alone for a number of years. For the past nine years, she has been a resident of Oakland Park nursing home. Since breaking her hip a year ago, she has been confined to a wheel chair. However, she is still able to read, write and carry on a conversation.

Hosting the celebration held Sunday in her honor were her son, Ernest Ristau and his wife of Detroit, Mich., and her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy (Minnie) Randorf of this city, the Robert Randorfs of Crookston and the Gary Randorfs of Grand Forks, N.D. Another son, John Ristau and his family of Denver, Colo., was unable to attend but sent the corsage of miniature red roses and pink azaleas, accented with a 100th emblem, which she wore on her black knit dress. Two sons, Fred and Frank, are deceased. Also present for the party were several of Mrs. Ristau's 10 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

The celebration began with a brief program. Rev. Harold Peterson, pastor at Trinity Lutheran church, gave the devotional meditation. Mrs. Peterson served as organist and was in charge of the group singing. Rev. Paul Biegner, pastor of St. John Lutheran church, where Mrs. Ristau is a member, sang a solo and gave the closing prayer. The history of the life of Mrs. Ristau was read by a grandson, Robert Randorf of Crookston. Great-grandchildren Gerri Lynn, Connie, Jeff, Debbie and Rozalind Randorf, sang the "Happy Birthday" song. Connie and Gerri Randorf were also in charge of the guest book.

Floral bouquets and potted azaleas and mums, gifts from the family and friends, graced the tables. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered birthday cake, baked by Mrs. Roy Randorf. It was decorated by Mrs. Henry Thorson with red roses and a 100th birthday symbol. Mrs. Gary Randorf and Mrs. Robert Randorf were in charge of serving the cake and ice cream. Mrs. Ernest Ristau poured.

The honored guest received gifts and greetings from a large number of relatives and friends. She also received greetings from President and Mrs. Richard Nixon and a number of government officials.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ristau of Detroit, Mich., are house guests at the home of Mrs. Sally Knutson. They came here to attend the birthday party for Mr. Ristau's mother, Mrs. Henrietta Ristau, who observed her 100th birthday on Sunday, March 7. While here they are visiting the Ristau and Beiswenger relatives.

As a special project, each club member chose a different variety to raise this summer. Choices ranged from the small pear tomato to the large beefsteak variety.

Lunsetter And McQuillan Vows Spoken At Gatzke

Miss Jeanette Marlys Lunsetter and Michael McQuillan, both of Fargo, N.D., exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, February 13, at 3 p.m., at the United Lutheran church at Gatzke.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lunsetter of Gatzke. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Lester McQuillan of Fargo, N.D.

Rev. Donald Fredine officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar graced with candelabra. Branch candelabra formed the chancel setting and white wedding bells with blue ribbons marked the pews. Serving as organist was Mrs. Marlyn Slstad, a cousin of the bride. Mrs. Howard Lunsetter, another cousin of the bride, was the soloist. She sang "Wedding Prayer," "The Lord's Prayer," and "O Perfect Love."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of ivory peau de soie featuring a sheath skirt complemented by a chapel-length train. Venice lace trimmed the fitted bodice styled with a scalloped neckline and trumpet sleeves. Her elbow length veil of bridal illusion was held by a Juliet hat of Venice lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of blue and white carnations centered with a large white orchid.

Mrs. Rick Larson of Thornton, Colo., attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Eldan Sparby of Cyrus, a close friend of the bride. Both the attendants wore identical gowns of blue bonded lace, styled in empire fashion with full bell sleeves of a matching blue, sheer fabric. To complete their attire, they wore veiled blue pillbox hats and each carried a bouquet composed of three blue carnations.

Attending the groom as best man was Robert Rohrer of Mankato. Gerry Gangnes of Fargo, N.D., was groomsmen. Both are cousins of the groom. Seating the guests were Bruce Lunsetter of Gatzke, brother of the bride, and Rick Larson of Thornton, Colo., brother-in-law of the bride. All the men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with black bow ties and white carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lunsetter chose a beige knit dress accented with black accessories. The mother of the groom wore a royal blue ensemble, also complemented by black accessories. Both wore identical orchid corsages.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. The 200 guests were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larson who served as reception host and hostess. Jane McQuillan presided at the guest book and Mr. and Mrs. Rayden Bernstein served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a wedding cake, designed in the shape of a cross. The cake, iced in white with touches of blue, was decorated with white wedding bells and blue swans. Mrs. Ralph Kringlin and Mrs. Nettie Olufson cut and served the cake as Mrs. Esther Lunsetter and Mrs. Casey Gangness poured.

The groom's cake was distributed by Jackie Larson. [illegible] Mrs. Sherry Nisson and Debbie Olofson arranged the gifts. Melanie Lunsetter, Dennies Ruud and Joan Olafson served as waitresses and Connie Severis pinned the corsages. Serving as the bride's personal attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bruce Lunsetter.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding were from Fargo and Grand Forks, N.D., Minneapolis, Moorhead, Crookston, Grygla, Roseau, Thief River Falls, Middle River, Mankato, Chisholm and Stewartville.

For traveling on a wedding trip to Fergus Falls, the bride wore a blue pant suit with the orchid corsage taken from her bridal bouquet.

Pine To Prairie Scout Council Serves This Area

Because the ever-rising number of Girl Scouts in the northwest Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota areas made earlier scouting organizational arrangements archaic and unwieldy, the "Project 11 Girl Scout Organizational Committee" was formed in 1962.

The six councils involved, Jamestown, Wahpeton, Devils Lake, Valley City, Northwestern Minnesota and Red River Valley, wished to merge so that better service could be given on council, regional and national levels.

The Pine to Prairie Girl Scout council was the result of this committee's work, and Grand Forks is the council's headquarters, as it was at the first meeting on Nov. 2, 1963, because of its central location among all six existing councils.

Gordon Caldis, a prominent Grand Forks attorney, was the first president of the Pine to Prairie Girl Scout council.

Mrs. Francis O'Brien is the current executive director of the council. Beginning as a Girl Scout in her youth, Mrs. O'Brien did volunteer scouting work in Birmingham for 17 years and began profession scout work [illegible] years ago. She was field adviser and camping administrator of the Birmingham, Ala., Girl Scout Council from 1962 until 1968 and served as field adviser at Grand Forks from February through August, 1969.

There are three field advisers at the Pine to Prairie Council. Mrs. Craig Walker is a 1970 graduate of Mankato State College where she majored in sociology. Nancy was a Girl Scout for 11 years and was a member of the Austin, Minn., senior troop. Tucson Arizona Boys Chorus Concert Reviewed

(Editor's Note: The following review of the concert by the Tucson Arizona Boys chorus in Thief River Falls was written at the request of the Thief River Falls Concert association by Mrs. Max Jensen.)

The twenty six marvelously blended boy's voices ranging in age from 8 to 16 under the direction of Jerry Haskell and accompanist Janice Felty captivated the audience with their charm for joyous singing.

Their program ranged from rare liturgical music to lusty traditional western songs as well as famous Broadway musicals and popular hits.

The program opened with sacred music with the boys chorus robed in conventional choir robes rendering with flawless diction favorite selections as Mendelssohn's "Lift Thine Eyes," Malotte's "Lord's Prayer" the traditional "Navy Hymn" and a delightful Johann Sebastin Bach number "Patron, Dar Macht Der Wind" with the accompanist adding her support enlarging the timbre so typical of Bach's music.

In the second part of the program the boys chorus sang in Latin with mature musicianship selections from "Stabat Mater" by Pergolesi, a 13th century poem about the vigil of Mary at the Cross.

The third portion of the evening's program included "Three Hungarian Folk Songs", "Door Kom Die Alabama", "Two Songs for Winter" all arranged by their director Jerry Haskell with voices blending in exquisite tone quality in 3-4 and 5 part arrangements. The audience participation on "Dem Bones" or "Dry Bones" succeeded to be a delightful crowd pleaser.

The rest of the program that followed saw the Tucson's singing cowboys in colorful authentic western outfits and imaginative scenic effects joyfully singing and whistling selected Western Songs as "Old Faithful" and "Ghost Riders in the Sky".

The concluding part of the program the Boys Chorus added their vocal enthusiasm to famous Broadway Songs and Popular Ballads such as "Wand'rin Star" and "They call the Wind Marie" from the Broadway musical "Paint Your Wagon".

Their joy in singing and musical perfection was a distinguishing characteristic of the Tucson Boys Chorus just as quality is recognized as its hallmark.

Taxpayer Ass'n. Statement Read To School Board

professionals in the area, has job security after tenure unexceeded by any other professional group, and has a relatively "low-pressure" job, the present salaries are patently adequate. Name another professional group that receives approximately $780 per month, fresh out of school with a Bachelors degree? This amounts to an equivalent of almost $9,500 per year, to start!

The members of our association do not feel this represents a hold-the-line-on-spending for the school year 1971-72. So again, we remind the school board that we are behind each and every member who is interested in holding the line on increased spending for 1971-72, and to possibly find other areas to cut spending.

The association feels that the school board should give explicit instructions to the school administrative staff, that they must form a budget for next year that holds the line on new spending and cuts on some past spending. If the administrative staff is apprehensive about such a move as this, then the school board should ask for their resignation and replace them with persons who are cooperative and loyal to the board and able to perform these tasks.

The association offers these requests and suggestions after listening to many parents and some of the school personnel, who have pointed out some areas in which there is waste and other areas that have proven unnecessary. Some teachers have indicated their satisfaction with the present salary schedules and benefits, and are more concerned with teaching the children and likewise more concerned about the disruption of class room teaching during the negotiation period. For that reason, we wonder if the teachers negotiation committee actually represents all of the teachers.

The Northwest Taxpayers association would like to request that the school board and teachers cease their negotiations at this time and that the adjustment panel complete whatever is necessary to balance out negotiations; that both the board and teachers get back to the business of teaching children, which is what we taxpayers pay for and we sometimes wonder if this hasn't become secondary with some educators.

We also would like to remind the school board to again review the numbers of administrative staff it now employs, the number of teachers and the importance of some of their programs, the number of persons who are employed as teachers' aides, the most expensive system of mod-teaching system, and the necessity of so many secretaries, clerks and other administrators.

While all of us want a good education for our children, none of us feel that this school district can afford to bear the extremely high cost of unproven, high cost experimental programs and we recommend that the board closely scrutinize these programs and scrap them if they are not giving us the most for our dollars.

This get tough policy which the association is recommending, is being watched and hailed in many areas of this part of the state. Our association is receiving many requests from other towns, townships, school districts, and villages to help them with such a program as this. Taxes have grown too high to be realistic to any person who desires to own property or to educate children.

If for any reason, in the future, the school could not operate for the lack of teachers, the Northwest Taxpayers association can assure this school board that there are many persons who are more than qualified to teach school should it be necessary to do so.

Does the Northwest Taxpayers association make our position clear to all the board members?

school at a new site south of Allee Drive and turn the entire east side complex into a junior high school.

2. Build a new junior high school and turn the present east side complex into an elementary school.

3. Build a new senior high school and move the junior high school to Lincoln and turn the east side complex into an elementary school.

4. Rent space to alleviate immediate problems -

Alternatives for rental

A. Rent Redeemer Lutheran Church - This was explored and found to be inadequate since the large group room was not to be available.

B. Rent the armory and old city library to house part of the elementary school and move the junior high school into five rooms of the elementary school. After reviewing problems it appeared that this avenue would have been best since all necessary room at Redeemer Lutheran Church was not to be available.

5. District to move into a 45-15 plan of enrollment—45 days in school and 15 days off. All schools would be in operation for 12 months with certain vacation periods, Christmas and Fourth of July, common to all students.

6. Split shift junior high school—Part of students to attend 7 a.m. to 12 and 12:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. This is considered the least desirable by most authorities.

Dr George Marlin of the school board then moved that the board reopen negotiations with Redeemer Lutheran church in regard to useable space at reasonable cost for junior high school overflow. "Pending a satisfactory outcome, the board will enter into a rental agreement with said church," the motion stated. Charles Samuelson seconded the motion which passed by voice vote.

In an earlier meeting, the board had authorized Neil Taverna, junior high school principal, to proceed with program planning on the basis of using the five rooms to be made available to the junior high school at Mark Twain school. The board's motion Monday changes that previous directive.

Questions and comments from the group in attendance were presented. One question involved space required for modular scheduling. Taverna said, that modular scheduling required the equivalent of space for 30 additional students.

Robert Flynn read a prepared statement from the Northwest Taxpayers association which is published in a separate story in today's Times. Following a brief discussion and presentation of suggestions the meeting was adjourned.

Board Closes Talks, Favors Panel Action

all efforts could be made to meet some agreement and we would like to continue to meet and reach that agreement."

Following a board caucus, Prestebak read a statement noting that a new approach seemed necessary, and suggesting that each group select a panel member to meet in an attempt to iron out differences. The teachers' council wanted to know if these two people could be one teacher member and one council member and not necessarily adjustment panel members. The board replied that the appointees must be adjustment panel appointments.

The teachers' council prepared another statement which was presented as follows:

Suggest Solution

"We feel we have a better solution to continuing negotiations. We feel your proposal is a stalling tactic. Updating two negotiators will involve time and tax money in getting persons selected and to work on our differences.

"We are very concerned about the education that each child can obtain in Thief River Falls. We realize pressure and emotions from the community are reflected into the various classrooms during adjustment panel hearings. Therefore, knowing what the students and teachers had to endure two years ago, we want to come to an agreement by March 19 by continuing to negotiate.

"Let's be realistic. An adjustment panel member for you will be using more tax dollars needlessly. Are you trying to take the pressure off yourselves? Have you forgotten that the final decision rests in your hands? We want to negotiate; we feel we don't need new ideas but just a willingness to communicate and to negotiate on each side. Would you please, gentlemen, give it serious thought on your part and let's agree to meet again the first part of next week. If you are willing to negotiate, we will submit another proposal at this time."

Prestebak was called away from the meeting and E. C. Olsen left to attend a session with the Redeemer Lutheran church council regarding possible school rental. Vice chairman Charles Samuelson presided, assuring the teachers that the board was not attempting to take the pressure off itself and was well aware that the final decision rests with the board.

He said it was the feeling of the board that an adjustment panel is desirable and that no further negotiations will be held. It was also noted that teacher contracts for the 1971-72 school year will be issued March 20 on the basis of the last bonafide offer made by the school board on March 4. That offer called for an increase of $150 per year for all faculty members except those on the maximum experience steps of the BA and BA plus 15 lanes.

Isaacson asked if it was true that the teachers' council had no alternative but to select a member of an adjustment panel. The answer was "yes".

The teachers' council did not present another salary proposal and no further negotiating meetings are planned.

Prompt Filing Of Unemployment Claims Is Urged

Persons who become unemployed should apply for unemployment insurance payments promptly or risk the loss of some of their benefits, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of manpower services said today.

Cushing pointed out the size of the weekly unemployment check is based on average weekly wages during the 52-week period immediately preceding the date the claim is filed.

"If a person waits three weeks or a month or more to file a claim, each week he waits may reduce his average weekly earnings," Cushing said.

Furthermore, Cushing explained, a person doesn't become eligible for payments until he files a claim and he cannot collect a lump sum payment for the weeks he waited prior to filing a claim even though he was unemployed during that period.

"People who wait until their savings and other resources are exhausted before they file their claim sometimes suffer unnecessary hardships," Cushing said.

He also pointed out that payments sometimes are delayed because of lack of proper information. He cited two things a claimant can do to help speed the processing of his claim.

One is to be prepared to give the correct name and address of every employer he worked for in the 52-week period immediately preceding the week in which he files his claim. He also should be prepared to give the dates of his employment in each instance.

The other is to bring in his Social Security card. An applicant's social security number is an important part of his identification, Cushing said, and must be verified from his card.

Cushing pointed out having the name and address of every employer is important because the law requires that each employer must be contacted and must supply information about wages before a claim can be processed and payments begun.

Girl Scout Travel Tradition Listed

As part of their objective of developing friendship among Girl Scouts everywhere, the Girl Scouts of America are great travelers, and scouts at Thief River Falls have enjoyed travel as much as scouts anywhere in the years that they have been active here.

In the 1950's trips and campouts became an eagerly awaited happening for Girl Scouts here. Trips to Winnipeg and Yellowstone National Park were taken by Troop 18 with Mrs. Gunder Legvold as leader. Mrs. L. D. Hartz's Troop 12 traveled through Canada and down the North Shore on their way to visit Chicago, and Troop 13 traveled to the Black Hills with Mrs. Margaret Race.

In 1955 Pat Clinton was selected as one of two senior scouts from Minnesota to attend the sprawling All-States Encampment at Cody, Wyoming.

As part of the international friendship program Troop 12 visited a group of Girl Guides in Canada and later invited the Canadian girls to pay a return visit to Thief River Falls.

In 1959 four senior scouts from Mrs. Leslie Snetting's troop were selected to attend the Girl Scout Roundup in Colorado Springs. Arlene and Audrey Terrian, Mary Kay Looker and Bonnie Sculthorp met with thousands of other scouts for this event.

Trudy Waale attended the national Girl Scout Roundup held in Vermont in 1962 and also traveled to the Canadian side of Niagara Falls.

Senior Mariner Girl Scout Troop 94 began a 15-day trip on May 30, 1964, to the East Coast. The troop worked on various fund raising projects for several years to earn money for the tour which included the New York World's Fair, Washington, D. C., and many stops enroute. Those taking part in the excursion were Mrs. Melville Simon, Karen Maves, Valorie Wells, Linda Dahl, Cathy Simon, Linday Jensen, Eileen Lund, Mary Patten, Dolly Hanson, Linda Lian, Evonne Lindberg, Ann Winters, Diana Stromsmoe and Mrs Bill Welsh.

Delegates from Thief River Falls attending the 1965 Girl Scout Roundup at the Farragut Wildlife Management Area in Idaho were Sherry Adamson and Cathy Simon. Approximately 8,500 Girl Scouts from throughout the world met for this session. Alternate delegates Nancy Flynn and Barbara Bacon attended a similar camp in Rosebud, South Dakota.

Five days of paddling a canoe, packing, camping and exploring the Wilderness area near Ely was a highlight of 1968 for the girls of Troop 133. On the trip were Sherry Adamson, Barbara Bacon, Paula Forsberg, Debbie Hall, Nancy Flynn, Darlene Kelley and Lorray Owen. Accompanying the girls were Mrs. Gunder Legvold, Morris Owen and Ted Mills.

Senior Troop 94 spent many hours earning enough money to make their 1968 East Coast trip possible. The girls stayed at Girl Scout camps enroute to New York and Washington, D. C. Members were Mary Ann Arhart, Janet Bedard, Jill Berry, Brenda Booth, Margaret Fox, Marlene Jorgenson, Nicolette Kloubec, Susan Knutson, Ruth Ann Lafrenz, Barbara Nordvall, Dianne Olson, Gwen Olson, Lois Olson, Laurel Onken, Jeneen Sagmoen, Valerie Scholin, Sheryl Sculthorp, Paula Stroble, Cathy Vigness, Ellen Vagle and Arlene Wilson.

Mrs. Don D. Olson, Mrs. Byron Sagmoen, troop leaders, Bonnie Sculthorp, nurse, Byron Sagmoen and Oscar Ranum, bus driver, accompanied the troop.

Local Bus Firm Asks Raise In Express Rates

Northwest Trails, Inc., an area common carrier, and 11 other bus companies have been told by the Minnesota Public Service commission that they may increase package express rates.

The National Bus Traffic Association, Inc., which is acting as the agent for the 12 companies, asked for an increase of five per cent in express rates for all shipments moving up to and including 300 miles.

In support of its request, the association maintained that the carriers have experienced a continuing upward trend in cost of labor and the prices of materials and supplies, and this trend has been reflected in the cost of handling package express. It was also stated that the carriers have been successful in increasing the volume of package express but this increase in volume has necessitated not only increases in manpower but also capital expenditures for the expansion and improvement of facilities for handling package express.

During the past year five of the petitioning companies have been granted increases in Minnesota intrastate passenger fares.

The applicants also said that is in the public interest that all carriers be granted the increase in bus express rates because the additional money received would assist the carriers in continuing to provide adequate and efficient package express service and regularly scheduled passenger service in Minnesota.

The new rates will become effective after filing the rates with a 30 day notice of the effective date. Any interested party has 30 days after March 1 to file written objections to the granting of the application and request a hearing. If no objections are filed, the order authorizing the rate increase will become final.

National Guard To Have Change In Commanders

Maj. Gen. Donald C. Grant, Golden Valley, will turn over command of the Minnesota National Guard's 47th "Viking" infantry division Saturday to Brig. Gen. Paul Meyer, Mankato.

Gen. Grant, who has commanded the division since 1963, is retiring after 42 years of active and reserve military duty. Gen. Meyer, a 35-year veteran and former assistant division commander, has most recently headed the Army National Guard's command group, which included units in Minnesota that are not part of the 47th division.

Change-of-command ceremonies will be held in the Minneapolis National Guard armory, 6th St. and 5th Ave. S. beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Gen. Grant served on active duty during World War II as a 1st lieutenant and rose to become commander of the 185th Field Artillery battalion in Italy at the end of the war. He was awarded the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action during the fight for Hill 609 in North Africa.

During the Korean War, he commanded an artillery battalion of the 47th division.

In 1962 he was promoted to brigadier general and became assistant commander of the 47th division and then commander the next year. He became a major general in 1964. Besides the Silver Star he holds the Bronze Star medal, the Army Commendation ribbon and state military awards.

As a civilian, Gen. Grant is employed by Western Electric company. He and his wife, Norma, have three children and live at 4500 Merribee Dr., Golden Valley.

Gen. Meyer, 52, has been a member of the National Guard since 1934. He was a master sergeant before going on active duty during World War II. He was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in 1941 and was separated in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel. He also served on active duty during the Korean War. He was promoted to brigadier general in 1967.

A Mankato businessman, Gen. Meyer lives with his wife and four children at 1 Petticoat Lane. He has been active in veterans and civic organizations.

As commander of the 47th division, Gen. Meyer will have responsibility for National Guard units in Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois. He inherits from Gen. Grant a command that was a key element in the selective reserve force created during the earlier months of the Vietnam war. Under Gen. Grant's direction, the Minnesota National Guard division participated in accelerated training during a two-year period designed to make them available on almost immediate notice for active duty.

Andrew Selvo

Selvo Appointed DVR Specialist In North Minn.

State education department's division of vocational rehabilitation (DVR) has named Andrew Selvo to be DVR rehabilitation facilities specialist for northern Minnesota.

Selvo, 30, has been with the "job help for the handicapped" agency since 1966, serving in counselor and supervisory positions. Most recently, he has been director of DVR's Virginia field office.

In his new post, Selvo will be the agency's representative to 12 private rehabilitation facilities and sheltered workshops located in northern Minnesota, which the DVR uses to provide work training or physical restoration services to many of its clients.

Included among these rehabilitation centers will be the new sheltered workshop being planned to serve handicapped people from the Thief River Falls and Crookston areas. Other centers are located in the Duluth, Virginia, Hibbing, Grand Rapids and Fergus Falls areas.

Selvo will operate out of DVR's northern area headquarters office in Grand Rapids, traveling to facilities and workshops in northern Minnesota on a scheduled basis.

He will be DVR's consultant to these centers with respect to client service programming, and also as to special technical and financial grant aid programs DVR conducts in support of facilities and workshops development and operation.

Selvo's appointment represents the first time DVR has established a facilities specialist position on a geographic area basis, with the specialist being stationed in the area he serves. Previously, facilities support services have been provided statewide through specialist headquartered at DVR's administrative office in St. Paul.

The de-centralization step now may be a forerunner to further such steps, dependent on experience gained in this instance.

August W. Gehrke, who heads the DVR as assistant commissioner for rehabilitation and special education, comments: "The major and growing importance of DVR-private facilities service interrelationships suggests benefit can be derived from stationing our facilities specialists in area offices, where they may have more ready and frequent contact with facilities in the area.

"Northern Minnesota has been particularly active in facilities development in recent years, with a number of new facilities having come into being and others in the planning stage. We therefore believe it is an area which can particularly benefit from an 'on the scene' facilities support service.

"There are other areas of the state which also are potential regions for such 'on the scene' service, and assuming the decentralized operation proves effective in northern Minnesota, we will consider establishing area facilities specialists in these other regions, as well."

Ed Berg Among Farmers Making Washington Trip

Thief River Falls resident Edward W. Berg was among approximately 1,500 members and delegates who attended the Farmers Union national convention in Washington, D.C., February 24-27.

The conventioners met with their U.S. Senators and Representatives on Capitol Hill and visited 20 embassies of nations who buy and sell to the American market.

The convention called for continuation of current commodity programs seeking to stabilize supplies and production and protect prices through commodity loans until effective alternatives are found.

The Farmers Union delegates also called for more credit, including $1 billion in Farmers Home administration (FHA) operating loans and $1 billion in farm ownership loan funds.

A key feature of the convention was a series of "workshops" on farm commodities, housing, transportation, credit and interest rates, health, the environment, power and resources and communications.

A "city-farm confrontation" between rural and urban representatives was held in which it was made clear that rural and city people have more common interests than differences.

Bergland Calls For Program To Help Dairymen

In a letter sent to the secretary of agriculture today, U.S. Representative Bob Bergland called on the Nixon administration to institute a three-point program to aid the nation's hard-pressed dairy farmers. According to Bergland the actions are necessary "if we are to maintain a viable dairy industry in the United States."

Specifically, Bergland asked the administration to increase price supports for dairy products to 90 per cent of parity, purchase cheese products for use in the school lunch program; and close loopholes in the import program regulating the importation of cheese.

Bergland said that the increase in price supports was an "absolute necessity" to offset the rising cost of production, credit and taxes and "the continued inflationary trend of the general economy." He noted that these factors had reduced the present parity level to 81 per cent and estimated that a 90 per cent of parity price support would increase payments from $4.68 per hundred weight to approximately $5.35.

Bergland said that children "because of the nutritional value of cheese, would be the primary beneficiaries" of adding cheese to the school lunch program. He also said that "while generally opposed to severe import restrictions," a loophole in present regulation has resulted in imports of cheese double the import goals set by both President Johnson and President Nixon.

"Imports of this specific product have gotten out of hand and must be limited," Bergland said.

Girl Scout Week Recalls History

Girl Scouts of America owe their founding to the strength of a lengthy trans-Atlantic friendship, for Juliette Low, who started with a troop of 12 girls in Savannah, Georgia, in 1912, was a close friend of both Lord and Lady Sir Robert Baden-Powell of London.

The Baden Powells were the founders of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in Great Britain, and Mrs. Low incorporated their ideas into the Girl Scout movement in the United States.

National Girl Scout Week, March 7-13, commemorates Mrs. Low's idealism while marking the 59th anniversary of the founding of the national organization and its growth in membership from a mere dozen girls to more than four million Girl Scouts in the United States in 1971.

Mrs Low personally managed all of the affairs of the young organization in the early days of the movement, even going so far as to pay the bills out of her own purse. Soon, however, Girl Scout troops were springing up so rapidly that she could no longer handle all the details. A national board was formed in 1915 and established its headquarters in Washington, D. C. Juliette Low became the first national president of the Girl Scouts of America.

Headquarters for the national organization were moved to New York City in 1916. From here the national organization now administers and helps develop scouting through almost 400 Girl Scout Councils in the United States. There are 158,000 troops in the United States and at U. S. military and civilian locations in more than 50 countries around the world.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson became the first honorary president of the national organization in 1917, and from that time on the wife of the President of the United States, the First Lady of America, has alway been honorary president of the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Joseph Books served as neighborhood chairman after Mrs. Tom Fuller, and Mrs Chris Laustad and Mrs. Hermon Dorgus worked as volunteers in the Girl Scout offices.

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. are members of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, a federation of the Girl Guide and Girl Scout organization in 87 countries. The purpose of this international organization is to cement the bonds that all Girl Guides and Girl Scouts have in common and to encourage friendship among the girls of all nations.

The world association has its headquarters and the World Bureau in London and owns and operates four centers where Girl Guides and Girl Scouts from all parts of the world may meet—Our Ark in England, Our Cabana near Cuernavaca, Mexico, Our Chalet on a mountainside in Switzerland, and Sangam, the newest world center near Poona, India.

Adult representatives share in the policy and business of the World Association and may attend international training courses and camps. The World Association also has consultative status in the United Nations.

Boat-Sports-Travel Show Set In Mpls.

Northwest boat, sports and travel show opens in Minneapolis March 26 with all the latest equipment for outdoor sports and recreation.

The 10-day event in the Minneapolis auditorium—No. 39 in an unbroken series—reflects the continuing boom in leisure time activity. Every available inch of exhibit space has been sold for months and there is a waiting list for space in every category.

"The recreational industry," said Philip D. Perkins, show manager, yesterday, "watches our show closely. It gives them a good reading on the year ahead."

The marine dealers will have some 500 crafts on display in convention hall, ranging from sea-going yachts to the toy-like water bugs. The dealers, apparently, aren't worried about the sluggish economy. Virtually all of them think the show will be a winner.

The all-purpose boat that performs equally well for family cruising, fishing and water-skiing will be in the spotlight along with the bass fishing boat, non-capsizable canoes of an unbreakable plastic and a growing line of inflatable boats. The latter have come of age. They are for real and no longer look like inflatable boats, even though they can be packed in the car trunk.

In the recreational vehicle section there will be more motor homes, which despite their cost, have gained wide popularity. The camping people are also singing a happy tune. There's been no letup in camping interest, the dealers say. In fact, the consensus is that the sport is continuing to outdistance the most optimistic estimates made when the boom began several years ago.

This year, as in the past, the major fishing tackle manufacturers who are in the show will have their best representatives on hand. They will answer the questions of show goers and help them select the rods and reels that are suited to them.

In the travel section some 500 counselors representing commercial and governmental recreational interests in 22 states and five Canadian provinces will be available for consultation.

Through marketing research, Perkins manages to keep the stage presentation attuned to the tastes of those who attend.

From a survey made at the show a few years back, he learned variety acts were favored over the regular sport show fare by a convincing percentage of those in the seats.

"Television," he said, "had given variety programs a 'shot in the arm' so we changed our format to give the people what they wanted. Through agents we booked European acts for our shows before they appeared on television.

"A recent study indicates the outdoor acts are back in favor so this year we are going to have a stage show that's loaded with lumberjacks, tree toppers, wood choppers, log rollers and many other features. Of course, the seal will be back—we'd be afraid not to book him."

Last year the attendance jumped a few thousand over the previous year, some 152,882 persons attending. Paid attendance has averaged 137,824 over the past five years, Perkins said.

The show will open at 8 p.m. Friday, March 26, with the stage show going on at 9:30 p.m. Thereafter, the show hours will be 1 to 11 p.m. every day but Sunday when the doors will open at 1 p.m. and close at 8 p.m. The stage shows will be 3:30 and 8:30 p.m. and on Sunday, 3:30 and 7 p.m.

Highway Mishaps Involving Deer High In March

March is usually a dangerous month for deer and other large animals on the highway, Minnesota department of public safety W. R. Hoglund warned today. "In March of 1969, a record 870 motor vehicle accidents occurred with deer, according to the deer mortality statistics of the department of natural resources. While last March was less severe, deer accidents increased sharply over the earlier part of the year."

The deer hazard is found in all parts of the state, he pointed out, including the metropolitan area, where the traffic deer kill runs into several hundred each year. "In one recent year, the Hennepin county deer kill was higher than for any county in the state except St. Louis," he said.

"Deer are not the only hazard, but they seem to be the most numerous with 3,345 killed last year. There are also farm animals, bear and moose. Last year, 17 motorists encountered moose on the highways, and fatally injured them. Four Minnesota motorists were killed in collisions with animals in 1969.

"For drivers, the statistics hold a clear warning: Watch out for deer and other animals at all times. During night-time driving be especially watchful. The deer is an unpredictable animal, as likely to jump into the path of your vehicle as away from it. According to one theory, deer are startled by their own shadows, thrown by car headlights. They run from the shadows into the path of the car.

"Presence of deer on the highways is good reason for traveling at reduced speed during hours of darkness. It could spare you an accident, possibly a serious one," Hoglund said.

Minn. Snowmobile Survey Revealed

Most Minnesota snowmobilers prefer cross country trails within a 50 to 100 mile radius of their homes, according to a survey conducted by the Department of Natural Resources.

The questionnaire, which was returned by nearly 4,000 to 10,000 snowmobilers contacted, also disclosed some other preferences of snowmobilers and the need for additional facilities.

Snowmobilers prefer marked trails and like maps showing trail location and routes.

Shelters were apparently not considered essential except by most users of trails in state parks.

Approximately 28 per cent of all snowmobiling is done at night, according to the survey, pointing up the need for reflectorized trail markers and special safety considerations.

It was concluded from the survey that state lands are presently inadequate to accommodate the demand for snowmobiling space, particularly in the southern part of the state. It appears that other public lands for snowmobiling will be needed in the near future.

It was also found that there are a large number of youngsters under the age of 16 operating registered snowmobiles, more than 111,000 during the 1969-70 season.

The Department presently conducts a snowmobile safety training program for youth 14-18.

Another conclusion reached from the survey results: There is a need for an additional 1200 miles of trails within a 100 mile radius of the Twin Cities.

MINNESOTA OUTDOORS
"Cold Rush" From
Minnesota To Alaska

383 people live in Willow River, Minnesota. An incredible journey started here on February 6th. Five Minnesotans left on snowmobiles for Anchorage, Alaska. Last Saturday they made it (February 20th). The trip was accomplished with three snowmobiles and a pickup truck.

Riding one snowmobile was William Cooper, 40, of Willow River. He owns a motel, restaurant and bar in his home town and was the planner of the trip. Also riding snowmobiles were Glenn Larson of Willow River and his brother, Frank of nearby Sturgeon Lake. In the pickup were James Magdziarz, a mechanic from Moose Lake, and Robert Demuth, a photographer from New Brighton.

Many people didn't believe the journey of 3,700 miles was possible when it was proposed. But 14 days after leaving Willow River, the party arrived in Anchorage in time to participate in the start of Alaska's largest winter event—the Fur Rendezvous and World Championship Sled Dog Races.

On hand to greet them were their wives, a number of dignitaries and some officials of The Coleman Company of Wichita, Kansas, who provided the Skiroule snowmobiles which the group used on the trip.

Are Fish Color Blind?

For several years this column has insisted that fish can and do respond to color. With the help of fishermen around the state who have kept score cards, we have come to the conclusion fish will hit a dark colored lure on a dark day and a light colored lure on a bright day.

Now our friend, Dick Kalls of the Fred Arbogast Company tells us that scientists at Brown University are proving that fish do respond to colors. The researchers have come to the conclusion that fish have color vision similar to man's! These specialist have trained fish to bump certain colors with their noses by rewarding them with food only when they strike the 'right' color. Within a few hours the fish know which color to hit.

Fishing News

'Swede' Carlson, the Warroad flyer, reports good walleye fishing in Lake of the Woods. (Walleye fishing is open here until April 15th)

Al and Dorothy Fletcher of Sauk Centre and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Johnson of Alexandria all caught their limits of walleye two days running at Oak Island. The fish weighed from one to three pounds. Live minnows were used for bait.

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Dale of Bemidji caught limits of 2½ pound walleyes at 12 mile reef in Lake of the Woods. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Fredericha of Minneapolis fished at Oak Island and came in with limits. One of the walleyes went 8½ pounds. Live minnows were used.

Big Northern

The biggest northern of the season reported to this column was speared by Clarence Johnson of rural Gary. He got the fish in Long Lost Lake east of Waubun on February 8th. It weighed 29½ pounds. Clarence and his fish made the front page of the Twin Valley Times. He was fishing with Miles Johnson and Pete Hoppestad.

Washington of the NFL was penalized 123 times during the 1948 season.

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS

March 10, 1971
SPECIAL MEETING
March 4, 1971

A special negotiating meeting of the School District Board No. 564, was held at 5:00 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, March 4, 1971 in the cafeteria of the Lincoln School Building.

The following members were present: Dr. George Martin, Kenneth Murphy, E. C. Olson, Mervin Presiebak, Charles Samuelson, Wallace Sberby, and Maynard Wedul. Absent was Superintendent Johnson.

Chairman Presiebak presided.

School board Chairman Presiebak reported that the Board rejected the last proposal from the Teachers' Negotiating Council and presented Board Proposal No. 300. (Board Proposal No. 300 is attached.)

The teachers' panel questioned a few points of the presented proposal and then called for a caucus of its panel members. The School Board also went into caucus at this time.

Upon the return of both groups, the Negotiating Council asked the Board for clarification of certain items. The teachers' panel requested a rewording of the hospitalization statement to read as follows: "Each teacher, whether married or single, shall receive full hospitalization in addition to his or her regular salary. All married professional personnel shall receive family coverage whether they are heads of households or not."

This was not agreed upon by the School Board and stated their proposal would remain the same.

A rewording on the Summer School proposal was asked. This should read as follows: The two thirds salary to be based upon existing policy. Summer school salary will be prorated two third salary. Salaries for teachers of summer school, curriculum development, and other similar professional duties outside of the regular school term shall be two thirds of the individual's daily salary for the contract year 1971-72.

The Board rejected this but did state that "for teachers that are teaching", their summer school salary would be based on two thirds salary of the 1970-71 contract until July 1 and on the 1971-72 contract after that date.

Mrs. Edith Eller asked about a teacher that changes their degree status with this proposal. It was explained that this teacher would move straight across one or more lanes but would not move down one step. As an example: A BA teacher starts at $7,000, would move across to $7,300, BA plus 15. Onto this would be added the $150 for a total of $7,450.00.

Teacher Negotiating Chairman Isaacson asked "if we would be willing to start trading dollars at this point and could this be done without submitting a written proposal each time."

Chairman Isaacson questioned the School Board's reasoning for rejecting their proposals. Was it because of total costs, starting salaries, top salaries, or distribution of amounts? Where does it appear that they are out of limits?

At this point Chairman Presiebak of the School Board requested a caucus. Upon the Board's return this statement was given to the Teachers' Council: "In answer to your offer to start with a salary schedule and trade dollars the Board must reiterate it is not only the total dollars but also their distribution with which they are concerned. Using the typical salary schedule the Board cannot find the way to compensate teachers for their value to the education of this district's students. We feel that our only course of action is to grant flat increases of salary until such a flexible compensation system is found."

Chairman Presiebak asked the Teachers' Negotiating Council to look at Page 2 of the original School Board proposal.

Mr. Isaacson noted these reactions to the Board's latest proposal:
Hospitalization - Reject
Sick Leave - Accept
Personal Leave - Accept
Extra Curricular - Reject
Summer School - Undecided
Basic Salary - Reject

At this time a new teachers' proposal was submitted. (Teachers' Proposal No. 5 is attached.)

A new meeting date was set for March 9 at 7 p.m. in the High School Cafeteria.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:30 p.m.

SIGNED: Kenneth Murphy, Clerk
APPROVED: Mervin Presiebak, Chairman

Pirates Shade TRF 61-60; Meet EGF In Cage Finals

Crookston avenged two regular season narrow losses at the hands of Thief River Falls with a 61-60 win over the Prowlers last night in the UND fieldhouse in one of the semi-finals of the district 31 basketball tournament. In the other semi-final game, East Grand Forks clobbered Climax 78-62 to advance into tonight's championship game at 8:30. Thief River Falls will meet Climax at 7 p.m. for consolation honors.

The Prowlers reeled off seven straight points at the beginning of the fourth quarter last night to erase a four-point deficit after three quarters and take a 49-40 lead with 5:52 remaining in the game before Gary Wegner converted a three-point play for the Pirates to tie the game 49-all with 5:32 remaining.

Pat Hamilton and Doug LaFriniere traded buckets for a 51-51 ball game with 4:30 left in the final quarter before the Pirates went in front 55-52 on two Bob Menzhuber free throws with 3:29 remaining in the game.

Crookston then went into a stall until the Prowlers managed to swipe the ball with 1:04 left in the quarter. Hamilton connected on two free throw attempts with 1:04 remaining to cut the Pirate lead to just 55-54.

Scott Youngquist put the Pirates on top by three, 57-54 with 55 seconds remaining, but the Prowlers came back with two field goals for a 58-57 lead before Wagner scored on a lay-up with 19 seconds remaining in the game for a 59-58 Pirate lead. Dale Hanson was called for an offensive foul with 12 seconds remaining on a lay-up attempt and Youngquist made both tosses for a 61-58 cushion as Hanson tossed in a bucket with four seconds remaining for the 61-60 count.

The Prowlers had jumped out to an 8-2 lead with 4:20 remaining in the first quarter but Crookston came back to take a 12-8 lead enroute to a 15-12 first quarter lead. The Prowlers came back in the second quarter for a 30-27 advantage at the half before falling behind 46-42 going into the final stanza.

Menzhuber led all scorers with 22 points while teammates Gary Wagner added 13, Scott Youngquist 12 and Doug LaFriniere 10 points. Dale Hanson led the Prowlers with 21 points and he was the only Prowler to reach double figures.

"East Side" reached tonight's championship contest with their 78-62 win over Climax as the Green Wave jumped to a 20-15 first quarter lead before racing to a 45-30 advantage at intermission and stayed in front 59-48 going into the final eight minutes.

6-7 senior center Mark Syrstad led the Wave with 24 points and Stan Leach added 20 while Scott Gravseth tossed in 14 points. Gary Hanson led the Vikings in scoring with 21 points while Jamie Tronnes added 13 and Wayne Kobbervig 12.

The Prowlers made it to the semi-finals following their 106-80 thrashing of Fisher on Monday night. The Lincoln quint erupted for 30 points in the third quarter and 36 more in the final canto to reach the century mark. Lee [illegible] in the 100th point for the Prowlers with 59 seconds remaining in the final period.

Dale Hanson collected 28 points for the Prowlers against Fisher while Rande Smith scored 19, Mark Thyren 13 and Kent Smith 10 points. Mark Kummer led the Flyers with 18 points followed by Pete Anderson with 17, Tim Wagner 15, Tom Christianson 14 and Kent Gunderson 12.

The Prowlers led 23-18 at the end of the first quarter and held just a 40-34 edge a halftime before galloping to a 70-48 bulge after three quarters. The Prowlers outrebounded the Flyers 64-31 with Rande Smith leading the way with 24 caroms.

Climax made to the second round of the district cage tournament with their first-round 78-66 win over Warren as the Vikings came back after trailing 18-13 at the first quarter break. Climax jumped to a 40-28 halftime lead and held onto a 59-47 bulge going into the final eight minutes. Jamie Tronnes ran up 27 points to lead both clubs in scoring. Also reaching double figures for the Vikings were Gary Hanson with 18 and Kevin Evenson with 16. Mark Maruska led Warren with 18 followed by Jim Hill with 15, Bruce Schantzen 12 and Brad Fultz 11.

East Grand Forks belted Oslo 68-43 in the tournament's first game as the Green Wave fought stalling tactics for an 11-4 lead after one quarter and maintained a 24-13 lead at the half. The "East Sider's" scored in the third period for a 47-24 advantage going into the fourth canto. In the other first-round game, Crookston got by sub district and defending district champion Alvarado 59-38. The Pirates led 13-8 at the end of one quarter, 28-16 at the half and 43-29 after three frames.

Newfolden Wins Twice For Title

Marshall County Central defeated Roseau 67-55 Friday night to claim the east sub district 32 basketball crown after a 77-46 romp over Baudette the previous night.

Gary Borg collected 23 points for the Nordics against Roseau and Ron Voth added 21 while Marlin Bjornrud chipped in 10. The teams were tied 16-all at the end of the first quarter but Newfolden pulled out to a 30-26 halftime lead and held a 51-40 lead after three quarters.

The Nordics were never headed by the Bears as they raced to a 13-7 first quarter lead and held onto a 33-24 margin at the half before coasting to a 54-30 lead after three quarters.

Ron Voth led the Nordic scorers against Baudette as he dumped in 20 points followed by Marlin Bjornrud with 16, John Tunheim 12 and Gary Borg 10.

When Whitey Olson's Prowler basketball team dumped Fisher 106-80 Monday night in the district 31 basketball tournament it marked only the second time in history that a Thief River Falls cage team has topped the century mark.

The only other game the Prowlers scored 100 points in was during the 1962-63 basketball season when Thief River Falls defeated Warren 102-71.

In the win against Fisher everybody on the Prowler team saw action and only three of the 15 boys failed to score a point.

The highest point total run up by a Whitey Olson-led Prowler team before Monday night was a 96-48 drubbing of Halstad in the 1965-66 season.

Crookston will be after its tenth district 31 basketball crown tonight (Wednesday) when the Pirates take on powerful East Grand Forks in the championship game at 8:30.

"East Side" has won the title seven times to date. The last district crown the Green Wave claimed was in 1968 when "East Side" went on to defeat Littlefork-Big Falls 81-69 for the region eight crown. Crookston has not won a district basketball title since their 66-37 win over East Grand Forks in 1959.

Thief River Falls has won the most district crowns with 24 titles since the sport was organized on a state-wide tournament basis in 1913.

[illegible] Bob Menzhuber missed two free throws with the score tied and time expired in the second meeting of the Pirates and Thief River Falls in February. After Menzhuber failed to win the contest for his team, the Prowlers came out in the overtime period to nip the Pirates 52-51 after a 59-58 squeaker the Prowlers managed to pull out during December.

Last night Menzhuber made the most of his opportunities from the gift line as the slender senior connected on all eight of his free throw attempts to lead his team to their 61-60 win over the Prowlers in the district 31 semi-finals. Menzhuber was also the game's leading scorer with 22 points.

Jack Luoma's Bemidji Lumberjack cagers will begin a new basketball era tonight when they take on Duluth East in a regional basketball contest to begin tournament competition for the Jacks.

Bemidji was the only region eight team affected by the new class A and AA basketball play-off system with the Jacks now moved over to play in what was region seven.

Since 1933 Bemidji captured the district 29 basketball title 33 of the 38 years they participated in the event. Only Cass Lake with two titles and Red Lake, Littlefork-Big Falls and Park Rapids have won district 29 crowns besides the Jacks.

Included in those 33 championships are streaks of 15 and 14 years where the Jacks won the [illegible] they didn't win the district title it was labeled an upset.

This year the Jacks will have it a bit rough with both Duluth schools, Central and East, rated in the top ten of the Minneapolis Tribune's latest cage ratings.

"Wild Kingdom" To Feature Area Moose On Sun.

Agassiz National Wildlife refuge, northeast of Holt, will be the site for this Sunday's 'Wild Kingdom' program on NBC and channels 8 and 6 from 6 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

The program will revolve around the study of the large moose population in this segment of Minnesota. Scientists from the University of Minnesota and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service, along with program hosts Marlin Perkins and Stan Brock, will be shown as they track down a large moose, immobilize him with a tranquilizer drug and attach a radio collar and other identification devices for tracking purposes.

The scientists then follow the moose via helicopter and snowmobile to study his movements.

Ice And Rapids . . . .

More Adventure On Stoltman Canoe Trip

Part VII

(Now reduced to a two-man party, the Stoltman canoe crew continues on toward its destination. From the shifting ice of the lakes the scene changes to the rapids of the river in this portion of the Stoltman diary.)

July 31—N.W. wind, started at 3 a.m. but it was very foggy and looked as if it might rain so we waited until 5:10 a.m. and then decided to go for broke. Within two hours the water got just like a mill pond but it stayed foggy most of the day. Was very hard to keep track of where we were sometimes. Paddled six miles onto Lake Schultz and a total of 40 miles, which isn't too bad considering that we had to tow another canoe. Saw two caribou and three new flowers plus three Arctic hares.

Found a very beautiful camp site at 8:15 a.m. Will spend tomorrow around here and enjoy the scenery if the weather permits. A few days ago, I found five puff ball mushrooms and we fried them with some fish. When I asked the Eskimo with me if they were good to eat he answered no, so I ate and they were pretty good. Will probably have all the Eskimos in this country searching the barrens for puff balls now.

August 1—There was a fog extending slowly over the lake. The lake was like a mill pond so we decided to take full advantage of that and were off by 12 noon. After paddling for four hours, we noticed a few scattered ice floes around. Then they got thicker and thicker and we started to look for a way out in case a wind started up as I don't know of a place more dangerous than a canoe amongst ice in a strong wind.

As the fog was low we could see the tops of the hills along the lake shore but visibility through the fog itself was 150 to 200 yards. We were a mile from the north shore and that was the shore we had intended on following in case of adverse weather. All other shores at this time were five miles or more away, but as we tried picking our way through the ice north we found that it was the heaviest in that direction. We had paddled into a pocket of ice with it drifting all around us.

The best leads seemed to be [illegible] as we started picking our way through. After what seemed a lifetime, but actually about two hours, the canoe finally slid into open water. It was a very great relief to do so, as while paddling through it we never knew if we were coming to a dead end or not. Made a very long day as we didn't stop paddling until 12:15 a.m. But we did make it all the way through Lake Schultz and tomorrow we start down the last 60 miles of river to Baker.

It is very fast here and has some very big rapids. In fact, as I'm writing this, I can hear the first one a mile north of our camp.

August 2—As we were eating breakfast, four canoes with eight men from Toronto, Canada, pulled into our camp and had a short visit with us. They had left at the point that we had, where the Hanburg starts about 150 miles from the mouth of the Thelon river. They had started July 11. The most interesting thing they had seen was a grizzly bear eating a musk oxen along the river.

We went through a rapids by taking one canoe at a time. I also caught an Arctic grayling today. We came up to the big rapids of a mile long. Walked the length of them to see what they looked like. Some waves were five or six feet high and very rough. Bob took some pictures of them.

We started portaging at 8 p.m. and made two trips apiece. A very rough portage as you have to cross tundra with water up to your ankles, then cross a rock hill 100 feet high. It takes 40 minutes for a round trip and we had to make a total of five. Tomorrow should be the last tough day we probably will have. Saw two new kinds of mushrooms and flowers today.

August 3—Bob and I finished the long portage and started paddling at 12:45 p.m. We know the river would get very fast from here to Baker, which is about 50 miles from the big rapids. Had talked it over last night and were going to try one man to each canoe but the water was so fast, the river banks too rocky and no back water to slow down to. The only answer was to take the same canoe at a time for a few miles, leave the first canoe there, walk back for the second one, canoe past the first canoe a few miles, walk back for the other one and keep on doing so until we made it to Baker.

The river was so fast at times and full of rough rapids that in many places here, we'd line the canoe through. The walking was very mean also as the bank was one hill after another so that you'd either be going up hill or down hill with rocks scattered so close together that the only progress to be made would be to step from one big rock to the other.

I saw a very rare bird fly to a high cliff about 100 feet above the left side of the river today—the duck hawk. They are fast becoming extinct because of insecticides man is using in the world today. It was a sight to see it fly to the cliff.

After making a number of hard miles described before, I saw a freighter canoe with two men in it coming upstream on the opposite side of the river a mile from us. We stopped lining our canoe to see what was up and upon seeing us, they cut across the rapids to where we were. They happened to be two Eskimos out hunting caribou. One could talk very slow English so we could communicate somewhat. He asked if we had seen any caribou the last few miles, which we hadn't.

Veteran Benefits Generally Exempt From Taxation

Veterans benefits are generally exempt from taxation and need not be reported as income on income tax returns, according to John Murphy, director of the Veterans administration center at Fort Snelling.

The only reportable item is interest earned on GI insurance dividends left on deposit or credit with the VA, since this is considered earned income and not a veterans' benefit, he said.

GI insurance dividends themselves are not taxable, nor are proceeds from GI insurance policies.

Murphy said other major tax exempt benefits are compensation and pension, GI bill and other educational assistance, subsistence payments to vocational rehabilitation trainees, and grants for homes or autos to severely disabled veterans.

State ASCS Head Explains Purposes

For many farmers, spring means not only getting the land ready and seeding crops, but also signing up for U.S. department of agriculture programs for feed grain and wheat.

"With farmers now making their decisions on whether to sign up for the 1971 set-aside programs, it seems like a good time to talk about the general aims of these programs," said Alvin Payne, chairman of the Minnesota agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee.

"It is important for consumers to understand what's happening in agriculture and farm programs. We're moving toward a market-oriented agriculture and improved farm income through market opportunity. It's a new direction for farm programs.

"Back in 1900 farming was essentially about the same as it had been for hundreds, even thousands of years. Then things began to happen fast. Breakthroughs came for farm machinery, plant breeding, fertilizers, pesticides—all items which come under the heading of technology.

"What happened down on the farm amounted to a revolution—a revolution that is still going on and now reaches far beyond the farm gate to the marketing, processing, and distributing systems," Payne said.

"An acre of land which produced 28 bushels of corn in 1900 was producing 37 bushels in 1950 and almost 84 bushels in 1968. The same tremendous per-acre increase was happening in many other basic crops.

"When you're in the middle of a revolution, it's hard to know exactly what's happening. Only now are we beginning to know that the farm problems of the 1930's were caused primarily by the technological revolution in agriculture.

"The effective demand for farm products didn't keep up with farm productivity. Farm surpluses piled high. Farm prices dropped—just at the time when most farmers needed capital to invest in the new technology that would keep them ahead of the game.

"Laws were passed setting up farm programs to try to balance things out, regulate production, avoid surpluses, slow down or even stop the changes which were coming up so fast, and to maintain farm income by government price-support. But technology kept a few steps ahead, farm production kept rising, and price-support became more and more costly.

"This year farm programs have turned to a new direction—market orientation. The focus is on meeting the growing demand for American farm products—demand that is increasing both at home and abroad. Our farm export potential is enormous. The new farm programs provide far more freedom for producers to fulfill this potential by specializing in crops they can market at the most net profit per acre.

"The agricultural act of 1970 removes some of the acreage restrictions of previous years and points farmers toward using their production efficiency to improve farm income by meeting market demands at competitive prices," the ASC committee chairman said.

The 1971 voluntary programs deal with wheat, corn and grain sorghum—the previous farm programs have. These are the "foundation crops" of American agriculture, Payne explained, along with soybeans, which are price-supported but not included in the set-aside farm programs. The major part of the nation's cropland is given over to these crops, and one or more is grown in every section of the country.

"The essential difference between the 1971 set-aside programs and previous farm programs for wheat and feed grains is that rigid acreage limitations have been lifted," Payne said.

Farmers who decide to participate in the set aside programs agree to set aside part of their wheat and feed grain acres, plus the land they normally have kept to conserving uses and have not put into crop production. After setting aside these acreages, they may put the rest of their acreage to almost any use they choose—or to no use. They may plant beyond their wheat allotment and feed grain base if they want to.

"We have rising market demand, both in this country and abroad, if we keep our farm prices competitive. Market opportunity is open for the crops American farmers can grow more efficiently than any other farmers, and in greater quantity. We believe the new farm set-aside programs will help farmers take advantage of this opportunity by letting them grow for the market," Payne said.

Since the programs are voluntary, about the first question which comes up is what do the programs offer to the participating farmer?

One—payments to participants, based on set-aside acreage and normal crop yield.

Two—price-support loans available on wheat, corn and grain sorghum produced by participants. Loans on these crops are not available to non-participants.

Three—Freedom to adjust their cropping patterns to market demands and still receive the income protection benefits of farm programs.

Each farmer decides for himself. If he signs up for the programs, he must set aside part of his land, but will receive payment for this and will be eligible for price-support loans on his crops. If he stays out, he can produce crops on all his land, but will not get payments and will not be eligible for price-support loans on any wheat, corn and grain sorghum he produces.

Payne pointed out that on many non-program crops, such as soybeans, barley, oats, and other storable crops, price-support loans are available to all farmers on all their production.

The voluntary set-aside programs are administered by the agricultural stabilization and conservation service. Farmer committees administer these and other farm programs on the state and county levels, with ASCS county offices the point of contact for individual farmers.

"In detail, farm programs are complex, just as American agriculture is a complex industry. But the thrust of today's farm programs is clear. We are moving toward an agriculture keyed to market demand, with the goal of bringing farm income up on a par with the rest of the economy while providing farmers with more freedom to make their own farming decisions," Payne concluded.

State Notes Rise In Crime Rate For Past Year

Minnesota experienced an increase in crime of 8.8 per cent last year, despite a decline of criminal activity in the fourth quarter of 1970, Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund reported today.

"Slightly more than half the increase took place outside Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth. These cities accounted for 45 per cent of all crime, but the smaller cities, with 44 per cent of the criminal activity last year, experienced an increase of 18 per cent over the previous year.

Larceny continued to be the most common crime, accounting for 60 per cent of the state's crime rate. Burglary was next, followed by auto theft.

The 77 cases of murder and 52 cases of manslaughter by neglect left the rate for these offenses unchanged from 1969. There was a decline of 12 per cent in rape, but aggravated assault increased 18.5 per cent.

In the 2,010 aggravated assault cases, 488 involved use of guns, 485 involved knives or other cutting instruments, and 357 involved other weapons. Besides the aggravated assault cases, 6,081 assaults of a minor nature were reported.

License Plate Problems Should Be Solved Now

Motorists who have special problems in connection with their vehicle registrations were advised by Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund to take them up now with a deputy registrar or the motor vehicle division in the highway building.

"If you have a complicated title transfer or any other problem calling for special attention, the registration offices now have time to devote to them. If you wait until the last minute before the deadline it might mean long waiting in line" he said, adding that historically many motorists with such problems do just that.

Hoaglund pointed out that March 22 is the last day that the old plates with 1970 stickers can be used. This deadline was extended from March 2 because of a delay in the manufacture of plates to fill mail orders. "New plates or 1971 stickers must be on all vehicles by March 23, and the department expects to have all plates mailed by March 15," he said.

"Whether you have special problems or not, you can save yourself time and bother by completing your registration now, at either a deputy registrar's office or at the highway building. Applications should not be made by mail at this time."

THE HOPELESS FOUR

They were the best act at the annual amateur night of the Church Youth Group. The audience loved them—not only their parents and their friends' parents, but all the other folks, too.

More important is what it did for the boys themselves. Learning to work together, enjoying every minute of rehearsal, perfecting talents they hardly knew they had . . . and doing it all as part of the youth program of their church.

But don't miss the "dig" they gave the rest of us when they named their group. Too many youngsters today have the impression that we consider theirs a hopeless generation.

The truth of the matter is that most of American youth belongs to the finest generation our country has yet raised. While you and I are reading and hearing about the "wild" minority, our churches are working quietly and effectively to mold the faith and character of tomorrow's citizens.

Consumers shop more carefully today. Here's why they buy Fords.

Ford LTD, quiet and strong, is the luxury car without the luxury car price.

Ford LTD is the car that can match the luxury of cars costing hundreds of dollars more. And LTD's quiet ride is the standard that those same more expensive cars have to match themselves. That quiet strength is one reason for consumers choosing LTD over all other luxury cars in its class.

Torino is sized and priced right in the middle. Room for six, small car handling.

Consumers know the mid-size Torino gives them the roominess of a big car plus the easy handling of a small car. For a price that's right in the middle. As a result, Torino has become the most popular 4-door in its class. Your Ford Dealer has thirteen other models to choose from.

Maverick, the simple compact car, offers 2 doors or 4; 6 or V-8 power.

Take Maverick. Consumers know that the simple machine is simple to own and simple to run. And they learned recently that a leading independent survey found Maverick has the best frequency of repair record of any American car. That might explain why it's America's best-selling compact.

"We might just as well have had the Industrial Age in the time of Archimedes; everything necessary was known; the only things lacking were tea and coffee. That fact so affected the habits of people that the Industrial Age had to wait centuries until people in Scotland watched their kettles boil and so invented the steam engine." — Alfred North Whitehead

How To Break Up A Home

The following 25 rules on how to break up a home are issued by Judge Philip B. Gilliam of the juvenile court in Denver, Colo.:

1. Remember that it is easier to get a divorce than it is to try to settle differences. Enter your marriage with this as your guiding principle.

2. It is a good idea to be domineering. Your mate might think you have a weak character if you are not. Refuse to yield or compromise, even on small points. Then when your partner adopts the same attitude, you will have an exciting battle.

3. Put your relationship with your parents first in importance. You have known them a lot longer than you have known your marriage partner, so of course they deserve precedence.

4. Be sure to compete with your mate by trying to out-do and belittle each other's achievements. Show no admiration for your family's accomplishments, and do not let your husband or wife know how wonderful he or she is. This should deflate your mate's ego.

5. Allow your partner to take all the responsibility for your home and family. It will develop his or her character—also an allergy to you.

6. Always feel you must have a drink or two before you can be good company. Let your drinking become a habit and means of escape for you. Alcohol will depress your mind and your marriage.

7. Every time your partner comes home a little late, force an explanation. Be jealous and suspicious. After all you have no idea what goes on all day, so suspect the worst.

8. Always belittle your mate in the presence of friends and elaborate on his or her faults and shortcomings. It makes wonderful conversation, and your mate will love you for it.

9. Act as if sexual relations are a disagreeable duty and for his own selfish desires. Always be too tired or not in the mood. Your partner will find someone else with whom to enjoy this phase of life.

10. Develop a martyr complex so your mate will appreciate all you have sacrificed for your family. Keep emphasizing how sorry you feel for yourself, and soon your spouse will think you are a pretty sorry character too.

11. Keep your ideas, worries and dreams to yourself. An enigma is so interesting to live with. And when all else fails, remember "the veil of tears," which will never let you down.

12. Let your partner do your chores for you. Be lazy. Gradually you can ease out of your share of the duties so that you have more time to sleep and loaf.

13. Never show sympathy for your husband when he comes home defeated or frustrated from his business contacts. Maybe this will teach him to keep his troubles to himself or to just keep quiet.

14. Be extravagant—not only in buying clothes but in everything else. After all, you want to keep up with your friends. Your partner can do this too, and between you, your bank account will be "red" with embarrassment.

15. You do not have to be truthful with your partner since you will not be believed when you are. Anyhow, how do you know he or she is truthful with you?

16. Forget about romance as soon as the honeymoon is over. Save your love for those times when you want to satisfy yourself, and never show affection. Your partner will appreciate this.

17. Always speak of churches and religion with contempt, especially if your better half attends church regularly. Just forget that the solace received from religion may be the reason your spouse tolerates you.

18. When you have been married for a while and are looking for avenues of escape, you might try dressing and appearing slovenly. This does not mean anything anyway, so why bother keeping up appearances?

19. Before you are married, talk of wanting a home and family. After you are married, make it clearly understood that these are the last things you want.

20. Never let your husband forget the things you had before you were married and the more successful men you could have married. Point out to him how lucky he is to have you and what a mistake you made in marrying him.

21. Take the attitude that your partner is not of your mental calibre and does not know what he or she is talking about most of the time. Be sure to demonstrate this attitude by words and actions. Remember that you are so great that you do not need to improve your mind or personality.

22. When the other party to your marriage suggests going out, say that you are too busy or too tired. After a while you will have the joys of spending most of your evenings at home by yourself.

23. Never develop emotional stability. If your partner does something to make you mad, get even. Lose your temper frequently since it is more effective to become hysterical and create a scene.

24. Never let your partner forget the mistakes he has made or any inconsiderate treatment he has given you. Keep reminding him year after year. This repetition and nagging will drive him to drink or to another love interest.

25. If some of the above slip your mind, just use your imagination. Think up all the small annoyances you can and practice them regularly. The divorce papers will soon be served upon you, and before long you will be exactly how you wanted to be—alone.

Slow Down For Kids!

Joe Perrin of the Anoka Union issued an editorial reminder to drivers in that community which is also appropriate for Thief River Falls. His editorial follows:

The warmly bundled, happy little six-year-old girl, her young cheeks rosy with the winter cold, stood on the busy street corner watching traffic and clutching a get well card she was to deliver to a friend who lived across the way.

The youngster had permission to cross the street, but as she did, she was struck by a car and a day that had started out so well ended tragically. She suffered arm and leg fractures and possible serious back injuries and now she watches the outdoors from a hospital bed.

I don't know who was at fault, maybe no one really, but it might have been avoided and similar accidents have happened here far too many times. Everyone seems in a hurry and perhaps drivers tend to push their cars the same way, even through residential areas where they should know better, but they have done it many times and most of the violations stem from local, not out of city drivers.

Anoka has many streets that carry a lot of traffic and much of it through parts of residential areas. Some of the streets are too narrow for heavy traffic and add a little too much speed, frosted windows and slippery winter driving conditions and the safety factor drops considerably. Then add a neighborhood full of kids and the situation becomes increasingly dangerous.

Just for the record, there were 35 reported traffic accident fatalities in Anoka county during 1970. Anoka had two road fatalities and there were also 163 persons injured in 160 reported accidents in the county.

There are a lot of youngsters in Anoka, as our school population can attest, and a lot of them are in the street at one time or another during the day, either playing, crossing the street or walking home. I'm certain most of them are taught the safety rules of the road, but youngsters tend to forget while in the pursuit of other, less demanding pleasures and it is easy to make a mistake, sometimes a tragic mistake.

Forgetting to watch for children and pushing the car too fast for conditions won't get you there any faster, but could cause a lifetime of grief. The next kid could be your own.

Breathing Is Dangerous

Every time you inhale you draw in air which has a certain amount of impurity. Every time you exhale you contribute to air pollution. From every side we are told of the dangers in what we eat, drink, wear, listen to, look at, hang around, touch or smell.

An article in a recent issue of "Hoard's Dairyman" gets quite pointed in its expression of opinion. The editorial states the following:

"We have long suspected that the American Heart Association is practically a captive of the vegetable oil industry. Recently we received a report which confirms our suspicions.

"In all the hullabaloo over saturated vs. unsaturated fats, it is rarely pointed out that oleomargarine is highly saturated through the process of hydrogenation.

"Some two years ago, we are told, the Heart Association slipped up and let a publication be printed in which hydrogenated vegetable fats were grouped correctly with saturated animal fats ... to the dismay of the vegetable oil industry. Several thousand copies of the 'offensive' statement were destroyed!

"There's a lot of money in vegetable oil and we are convinced much of it is being well-spent in "front" organizations to influence people to switch from animal foods to vegetable oils."

We can't agree with the statement, but we can understand the situation which prompted it. One medical report a couple of years ago virtually absolved dairy products of blame in clogging up the arteries of the nation's populace. In spite of that, there has been little let-up by some groups in telling us how terrible saturated fats are for us.

It may be dangerous to drink milk or eat butter or use margarine or deep fry in corn oil, but it all seems to be relative. After all, breathing is dangerous—either inhaling or exhaling.

Letters to the Editor

Gentlemen:

Does the writer of the editorial, "It gets old fast," dated March 3, 1971 really believe that attendance at the negotiating session between the teachers' council and the board of education dwindled because of a lack of interest.

Scheduling was the major factor, when meetings are scheduled at the impossible time for most taxpayers to attend, attendance will drop.

Scheduling meetings at a time when the majority of the taxpayers are working to pay these taxes that are being debated is endangering the right of free people to assemble.

It sounds more like the taxpayers' pie is being eaten with only the cooks present.

Sincerely yours,
John D. Nelson
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

PUBLIC OPINION
To the Editor:
Dear Sir:

Every day tons of smoke pour from the smokestacks of large industrial companies. Individuals insist on driving their own cars to and from work and for business and recreational purposes. They also burn rubbish freely, but the smoke and exhaust from one car or rubbish pile won't cause any harm to the atmosphere.

Large industries pour tons of chemicals and waste materials onto our lands and into our rivers and lakes. The garbage, detergents, and sewage from one household couldn't possibly pollute the waters of the earth. The small amount of littering that one individual could do couldn't pollute the land, either.

We seem to forget that there are 206 million people living in the U. S. alone.

Large industries slowly attempted to overcome their part in the pollution problems. Individuals didn't worry—their part in pollution was to insignificant.

Strangely enough, the earth gradually became over-polluted. Finally, life ceased to exist upon her. Years passed. Gradually the earth returned to her original state. She was once again beautiful—the grass was green, wildlife abound, streams and rivers flowed freely to the oceans, and the air was once again pure and clean. Only one drastic change remained—no signs of human life or man's industrialization existed.

But, it was the big companies and industries that caused the earth's pollution. There was nothing that I as an individual could have done to save her—was there???

Thank you,
Gail Sande

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Several people from the district were in the Twin Cities this week and stopped by the capitol for a visit. I appreciate the opportunity to discuss pending legislation with folks from home.

In the transportation committee this week a bill was heard that would limit the noise level along the freeways in the metropolitan area. The truck traffic is particularly objectionable during the night. The traffic on 35W, for example, reaches 8,000 vehicles per hour during the rush hour. With this volume of traffic it is easy to [illegible] problem.

The states of California and New York have enacted noise abatement legislation. The purpose of the legislation is to limit noise at its source and to urge manufacturers to take steps to design equipment that will operate at a lower noise level. The federal department of transportation is now requiring the states to take into consideration design features that will reduce noise along freeway construction in the metropolitan area.

In several areas of the city where freeway traffic is heavy there is an ever increasing demand for the state to take steps to build sound barriers to baffle the noise from the traffic. If we are to enter into a program of erecting sound barriers along our freeway system it will not only be a costly program but it will also greatly reduce the number of miles of new construction we will be able to finance each year.

The President's program to sell congress on revenue sharing is under way. The program would make available 5 billion dollars to the states and this would be shared by all local units of [illegible] enacted. Vice-President Agnew visited the capitol last week to promote support for revenue sharing.

In my opinion this trip was unnecessary since there is almost total sentiment for revenue sharing in the legislature. The governor has also announced his support for revenue sharing.

The White House has announced dollar amounts which would be received by Minnesota's major cities and the counties if the plan is finally enacted. Pennington county would receive $89,433; Roseau county, $74,911; and Marshall county, $88,179. The cities, villages and townships would also share in the plan.

Senior citizens from all parts of Minnesota are coming to the capitol to discuss their problems. In these times of inflation senior citizens living on fixed incomes are hard pressed. I introduced a bill this week that would reduce the tax liability on housing for the elderly that is financed by direct federal loan or federally insured loans under Title 2 of the national housing act.

This is one way that the legislature could give relief to our senior citizens.

Legion Participates In "Gift Of Life"

CURRENTLY home on leave from the U.S. Navy following completion of basic training is Data Processing Technican Seaman Edward L. Gerszewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gerszewski of Newfolden. The recruit is a 1968 graduate of Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden. His next duty station will be the Fleet Operations Communications Command Pacific at Kunia, Hawaii. He enlisted November 13, 1970 through the Navy recruiting branch station in Thief River Falls.

Minnesota American Legion and auxiliary will once again participate in a state-wide "Gift of Life" program during the month of March to register volunteer donors for organ transplants, Dr. Robert Vernier, president of the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest, has announced.

The local chairman is James Nepper of Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 in Thief River Falls.

According to Dr. Veenier, the "Gift of Life" program will eventually save thousands of lives in the United States. "Somewhere, at this very moment, another person, a father, a mother, a child has been found who cannot long survive without an organ transplant. Most certainly, for many, life or death will be determined by that which the American Legion and its auxiliary will be able to do in the next few weeks," he said.

Minnesota Department Commander Milo Bianich, Crosby-Ironton, has announced the appointment of LaVerne J. Markowski of Minneapolis as the Legion's state chairman for the program. According to state auxiliary president Mrs. James Starr, Cambridge, the state chairwoman for that organization will be Mrs. Conrad Tatarek of Wells. The program seeks to give every person in the state over the age of 18 a chance to participate.

Kidney, cornea and other organ transplants have been performed with increasing frequency in recent months, with a high percentage of the patients returned to normal, useful lives. Lack of available organs and facilities has been the most serious lifesaving limitation, a fact which the recently developed Gift of Life program seeks to correct.

The program is sponsored and administered by the Kidney Foundation, the authorized central agency for donor enlistments. To assist that organization in telling the Gift of Life story and in carrying out what was the first state-wide community level organ donor registration in the country last year, the American Legion and Auxiliary once again have appointed a chairman for each of 10 districts and in each of more than 1,200 posts and units in Minnesota.

According to Mrs. Starr, the American Legion and its auxiliaries have committed themselves to support the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest's donor enlistment program which has now been adopted on a nation-wide basis. The state program has the combined support of the four major transplant centers in Minnesota: the University of Minnesota hospital, the Veterans hospital in Minneapolis, the Mayo clinic in Rochester and the Hennepin county general hospital.

The state program is endorsed by the Minnesota State Medical association, the Minnesota department of health and the Minnesota Bar association. The Civil Air patrol, North Central region, has agreed to provide air transportation service for the Gift of Life program.

A uniform anatomical gift act, passed by the last Minnesota legislature, and now in effect in 48 of the 50 states, has made such an organ procurement plan possible. Under this act, anyone over 18 years of age may authorize—on death—the use of his kidneys, cornea (eyes) and other organs for transplant operations so that others may continue to live.

The individual does this by signing a donor registration card, obtained from the Legion, in the presence of two witnesses. One portion of the card is carried on the person, the other part is filed with the Kidney Foundation which serves as the central registry for the organ donor program.

All data relating to donors and recipients will be expedited to the four transplant centers in this area. Organ recovery teams from the major hospitals in the area serve on a 24 hour basis.

Latest research figures show that, in a living related donor situation, nine out of ten kidney transplant patients will survive. In the case of transplantation from an unrelated, deceased donor, at least 70 per cent of the patients can expect to return to normal living. Similar records for other organ transplants are perhaps only a matter of time.

Donor card registration was pioneered in this area and Minnesota is known to have one of the nation's most active programs. Approximately 100 kidney transplants were performed during 1970 in the state's four centers for such operations.

More than 100,000 kidney patients alone die each year in the United States, a high percentage of them under the age of 35. Many of these people could be saved if and when organs and facilities can be made available for them. The cooperative state-wide efforts of the Gift of Life program are designed to make the miracle of transplantation a more frequent fact in the months ahead, according to Commander Bianich.

Legion post and auxiliary unit chairmen will be setting up registration stations in various public places within their communities, with exact time and places to be announced via their local media. The period of March 15-31 has been designated for this enlistment effort throughout the state.

Legion and Kidney Foundation officers have set a state goal of 100,000 organ donor volunteers. Last year, the first enlistment endeavor, an excess of 20,000 Minnesotans signed cards so that others may live.

FROST AND SUNLIGHT decorated Thief River Falls Thursday morning after a night of frozen fog coated trees and buildings. This view looks west to the city from just south of the Northland State Junior college and across Centennial park. The heavy frost was the most picturesque part of the weather scene during the past several days. Warm temperatures, drizzling rain and sporadic snowfall have all been noted since Thursday, with today's bill of fare including strong winds and blowing and drifting snow.

Beadles Recalls '41 March 15 Blizzard

Many area residents will recall the March 15 blizzard of 1941 which claimed a number of lives and caused extreme hardship to other residents in this area. Persons who remember speak of the storm almost reverently, so great is their respect for it. Since today marks the 30th anniversary of that raging blizzard, we reprint the following account by Harry Beadles of Red Lake Falls, as it appeared in the Farmer magazine:

SATURDAY, March 15, 1941, was a beautiful day in Red Lake Falls, Minn.—warm and thawing all day.

The flax straw processing plant had burned to the ground a week before, leaving 90 men without jobs—a serious blow, not only to them and their families, but to the little community of 1,800 whose chief industry had been wiped out at one stroke. The plant was operated by Smith Paper Co., Lee, Mass., and Brown and Williamson Tobacco Co., Louisville, Ky. E. T. Hill of Smith Paper was general manager. W. G. Mattan was president of both Brown and Williamson and Smith Paper companies. I (author) was general purchasing agent for all raw material—45,000 to 68,000 tons a year.

Mattan came to Red Lake Falls immediately after the fire to see what could be done to get the plant back in operation quickly. Fiber from the straw was used for bible paper for servicemen in World War II, and for air mail paper and envelopes. It also was used for cigarette paper and in the manufacture of switches, condensers and other electrical items. Mattan was accompanied by Edward Christensen, the Smith Paper Co. engineer. After consulting with Hill, Mattan and Christensen decided to build a new plant as soon as possible. Red Lake Falls greeted the announcement with enthusiasm, and the city and Commercial Club staged a banquet in Mattan's honor.

Immediately following the banquet, Mattan was scheduled to leave for Crookston, 24 miles away, to catch a train for Louisville, Ky. The banquet ended shortly before 9 p.m. Snowflakes were drifting lazily through the air, but the temperature was still a mild 34 degrees. Mattan asked me to drive him to Crookston, and Christensen volunteered to go along to keep me company on the way home. The three of us left about 8 p.m. Snow was falling gently, but the road surface was slushy. Eight miles south of town, we turned west at a place called Marcoux Corner onto U.S. Highway 2.

As we drove confidently toward Crookston, a mysterious force slammed into us without warning. Immediately, we could see nothing! I was unable to see the radiator ornament on the front of my car. We were engulfed in a blinding, howling blizzard! Instinctively, I took my foot off the gas and applied the brakes. The force of the wind had a supplementary braking effect, and we quickly found ourselves at a standstill, facing into a raging, blinding curtain of snow.

The car quivered with the force of the wind. With great care, I managed to turn it completely around without leaving the road. With the back of the car to the wind, I felt there was a good chance of keeping the motor running and the heater working. I had a new 1941 Pontiac with a full tank of gas—good for 12 to 14 hours, if the engine didn't short out! Although I had driven Highway 2 for years, I had no idea where we were—undoubtedly, a considerable distance from Crookston, but I didn't know how far we had traveled since we left Marcoux Corner. It might have been a couple of miles, but it might just as well turn out to be 5 or 6.

I turned on the radio. Only two stations were available in northern Minnesota at that time, but I was able to get both loud and clear. Both were issuing storm warnings and informing the public that the storm was so sudden that many people would be unable to reach shelter. The temperature was dropping rapidly. The radio reported a drop from Plus 32 degrees to -12 degrees in one hour.

My passengers were anxious to try to get to some shelter. They were sure they could follow a fence and find help somewhere. I grabbed their arms and prevented them from opening the door, for the 85 to 90 mph wind would have torn the door off the car. Then I talked fast and hard—trying to get them to understand why their idea meant almost certain death. It took over two hours to convince the more determined of the two that the only safe course was to stay where we were!

The radio stations now were relaying the names of missing persons. We heard our names but of course had no way to let them know where we were or that we were safe—at least for the time being. This did not add to our peace of mind. We knew our loved ones and friends would be upset and anxious.

I opened one of the side ventilators to let in a very small amount of fresh air. It was very warm in the car. We sat in comfort, listening to the howling wind and radio reports, talking intermittently, dozing off occasionally, until a little after 5 a.m., when the motor sputtered and died. I was unable to start it again! I discovered later that snow had blown in under the rear fender, covered my gas cap, and eventually shut off the air supply to the gas tank. There still was 5 or 6 gallons of fuel left. Of course, there was no way to tell what had happened, and I did not think it wise to try to find out. The storm was still going full blast, and the radio kept telling that there was no letup yet. Both stations were nearly 50 miles to the west of us, so we knew we had an ordeal ahead of us.

Mattan had some long wool socks and a wool bathrobe in his suitcase, which fortunately was

Annual Report Reveals 476 Accidents In City

CHARITY BALL profits, totaling $1,110, were presented by Mrs. Larry Hjelmhaug, general chairman of the event, to Larry McDowell, member of the board of the Falls Day Activity center for retarded. The ball is sponsored annually by the Thief River Falls Mrs. Jaycees.

There were 91 more traffic accidents last year in Thief River Falls than there were in 1969 and they increased damage costs by $49,000, according to a report released by the local police department.

The report also says that there were 76 accidents that resulted in injuries to 101 people. One bicyclist came through with no injuries in a traffic accident, but eight pedestrian accidents injured nine people.

All these accidents, although none of them were fatal, increased estimated damage costs to $153,698—three times the estimate for 1967. These costs are estimated for material damage only, since no estimates are made of the cost to the injured.

Of the 476 accidents occurring in the city last year, 53 happened in March, while there were 52 accidents each in the months of February and December. The fewest accidents took place in May and September; 31 accidents occurred in each of those months.

August had 37 accidents, but these injured 13 people, the highest total of injured persons for any month of the year.

Three accidents involving railroad trains resulted in injuries to only one person over the year, but 27 drivers collided with non-moving objects, such as sign posts and trees. Drivers hit nine fewer parked cars than in 1970, but in 58 accidents a car was stopped either for a stop sign or red light or was yielding to other traffic when hit. In four collisions one car was entering a parked position and in 26 one was leaving. In 18 accidents both cars were moving in the same direction.

One car rolled over while going down the street, according to the report. No injuries were reported in this case. Some other cars rolled over as the result of a collision, but in the compilation of the report these were classified with the original accident.

In 112 accidents last year both cars entered an intersection and collided at an angle. Of these accidents 26 resulted in injuries. Such accidents in the residential area resulted in the greatest damage and the most injury. (Ten accidents were head-on, but only two produced injuries.)

The increased number of total accidents involved more accidents in the early morning hours. The most accidents throughout the year happened on Fridays and totaled 92 for the year. On Thursdays 85 accidents occurred. The least accidents, 32, were reported on Sundays.

The forenoon hours had the least recorded accidents, except for a jump between 8:00 and 9:00 a.m. From 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. accidents happened with regularity, with peak accident occurrence from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Of 773 drivers involved in accidents, 589 were men and involved 89 injuries. There were 186 women drivers and these were involved in 31 injuries. (The ratio of men to women drivers remained fairly constant, according to the report.)

The 20-24 age group had the most accidents, 123 with 21 personal injuries. The 16-19 age group had 103 with 18 personal injuries. The report stated that ages of people involved in accidents seem to reflect the age of the groups having the greatest exposure to traffic and that most Grandparents of the bride are Mrs. Laura Belswenger of Fisher and Amos Hartel of McIntosh. The groom is the grandson of Mrs. Cora Vraa of Goodridge and Carl Nelson, also of Goodridge.

Rev. Norman Benson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Dennis Boucher of Brooks served as organist and Miss Barbara Rustad of McIntosh was soloist. Both are friends of the bride.

Floral arrangements in red and white graced the chancel.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. For her wedding she selected a floor-length gown of sate peau styled in empire fashion with an A-line skirt. Chantilly lace trimmed the bodice and lantern sleeves. Matching lace edged her chapel length mantilla. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Miss Lee Ann Hartel, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Gary Hartel of McIntosh, Mrs. Ronald Hartel of Fargo, N.D., sisters-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Paul Middelton of McIntosh, friend of the bride. All wore identical floor-length gowns of red velvet complemented by red velvet rose headpieces. They carried similar arrangements of large white mums accented by a single red rose. Their drop pearl pendants were gifts from the bride.

Attired like the attendants was Cheri Nelson, sister of the groom, who served as flower girl. She carried a basket of white carnations. Carrying the rings on a white satin pillow was James Hartel of McIntosh, cousin of the bride.

Barbara Vaa of Grand Forks, N.D., was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Brad Nelson of Goodridge. Groomsmen were Lee Nelson of Goodridge, brother of the groom, Ronald Hartel of Fargo, N.D., brother of the bride, and Bruce Hanson of Goodridge, friend of the groom. Seating the guests were Gary Hartel of McIntosh, brother of the bride, and Keith Nelson of Goodridge, brother of the groom.

For the wedding of their daughter and son, Mrs. Hartel and Mrs. Nelson wore blue dresses with corresponding blue accessories. They wore identical corsages of red roses and white carnations.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Serving as reception host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bartz, aunt and uncle of the bride. Miss Julie Strom and Miss Beverly Bartz, both of McIntosh, presided at the guest book and punch bowl, respectively.

The decorated wedding cake, baked by Mrs. Marvel Enerson of Thief River Falls, was cut and served by Mrs. Lloyd Wiseth of Goodridge, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Lloyd Belswenger of Fisher, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Allan Schow of McIntosh, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Julian Gasperlin of East Grand Forks, aunt of the groom, poured.

Waitresses were Janice Ostenson, Sharon Carlson, Nancy Vaa and Marilyn Hedman. Presiding at the gift table were Cindy Tangen of Winger, Laura Evans of Fargo, N.D., Joyce Enerson of Hibbing and Mrs. Bruce Kaupong of McIntosh. KITCHEN KARNIVAL

features from the kitchen of
Mrs. Harvey Troska
of Goodridge

This winter seems to have been especially stormy in all sections of the country except in our immediate area. So far, we have escaped heavy snows or severe storms. However sudden, violent storms can occur here is evident by the one that struck this whole area 30 years ago.

What can homemakers do to eliminate some of the hardships during a storm? First, instruct all members of the family to heed storm warnings. More people, caught in storms while traveling, have been found safe in their cars than those who have tried "to-make-it". For home emergencies, homemakers can keep a shelf filled with foods that can be prepared with a minimum of cooking. So many foods are now available, such as powdered milk, instant potatoes and canned meats. Also keep on hand a supply of candles or kerosene lamps, filled with fuel. One may shudder at the thought of using these for illumination, but it is better than groping in the dark. Take an inventory of equipment that could be put into use in case of complete power failure. One acquaintance lamented after a storm, "It wasn't until after the power returned that I remembered we had a camp stove." Storms like the one 30 years ago aren't fun but some of the hardships can be eliminated by using a little foresight.

Foresight is also needed in baking bread. Since the process takes several hours, one must plan bread baking to correspond with the day's activities. Kitchen Karnival is especially grateful to Mrs. Harvey Troska of Goodridge for supplying such complete instructions for making dinner rolls, that even the beginner should be able to understand them.

Rich Dinner rolls

1 cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup or ½ stick margarine
½ cup warm water
2 packages or two cakes yeast
2 eggs, beaten
5½ cups unsifted flour (approximately)

Method: Scald milk and stir in sugar, salt and margarine. Cool till lukewarm. Measure warm water, about 105-115 degrees temperature, and pour into a bowl. Sprinkle or crumble yeast into the water and stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, beaten eggs and two cups flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board and knead until elastic, about eight to 10 minutes. Place in a warm, greased bowl, turning dough to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from drafts, until double in bulk, about 30 minutes. Punch down, and turn out on a lightly floured board. Make rolls, about the size of a finger, and place in a greased bread pan. Let rise until double in size. Bake in a 375 degree oven about 20-25 minutes, or until lightly browned. Makes about three pans of rolls.

Mrs. Troska stated that she had used this recipe for many years and because of the size of their family, she now doubles the recipe. The Troskas live on a cattle and grain farm located west of Goodridge. They have seven children: Llewelyn, 13, Georgine, 12, Daniel, 10, Vicki, 9 and Patrick 7, all attending school at Goodridge; Diana, 5, and Richard, 1½, at home. The three older children are members of the Mavie 4-H club. Among the necessary household duties, Mrs. Troska stated that the ones she enjoyed most were sewing and gardening. For relaxation, she embroiders, when time permits.

The family attends services at St. Anne's Catholic church at Goodridge. Mrs. Troska is a member of St. Anne's ladies aid and a birthday club in that community.

Pennington ASC Committeemen Attend Meeting

Pennington county ASC committee—Winton Knutson, chairman; Clifford Vad, vice chairman, Kermit Finstad, regular member, and Wallace Sparby, county executive director—returned recently from attending a conference in St. Paul for county ASC committeemen and county executive directors.

Major purpose of the state conference was to give policy guidelines and program information to the ASC committees and directors. The officials stated that this was a good time to get additional details on these programs because we are in the midst of signing up producers under the new farm program and helping them make important decisions.

Clarence Palmby, assistant secretary of agriculture, addressed the conference at a banquet held on Tuesday evening, March 9. According to Palmby, the balance in agriculture exports over imports amounted to 1.2 billion dollars, more than offsetting a deficit in our none agricultural trade. The result is a favorable balance of oil exports over imports of almost nine hundred million dollars and U.S. farmers should get the credit.

The assistant secretary also discussed an amendment to USDA regulations affecting conserving bases. Palmby explained that the intent of the amendment is to alleviate a conserving base inequities which presently exist.

Several other speakers participated in the conference and provided a well rounded program for all concerned, according to Sparby.

Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington ASC committee, reminds all feed grain and wheat farmers that the sign-up for both programs ends on April 9 and that all farmers are welcome to stop at the ASCS office and discuss the program with the staff.

USAF Openings Are Announced By Recruiter

The United States Air Force announced March 9 that it now has openings for young men in the non prior-service program.

In recent years, the Air Force has had to limit the number of young men who could enter the service through this program. However, recent events, including a massive early release program and increased quotas for local recruiters, now make it possible for the Air Force to offer qualified young men an opportunity to serve on today's aero-space team.

Young men between the ages of 17 and 27, who are interested in immediate enlistment and steady employment, should contact Tech. Sgt. Denny Larson, the Air Force recruiter in the Federal Building, Rm. 112, Grand Forks. His telephone number is 775-9361. (Call collect - area code 701.)

STEAM TREATMENT was given to local storm sewers by city street crews last week as warm temperatures caused melting conditions and water began collecting on city streets. Once the storm sewers were thawed, however, the water disappeared rapidly. Although colder temperatures and some snow arrived this morning, weather the past several weeks has created hope that spring must soon be here again.

All Minnesota Schools Comply In Lunch Program

All of the 734 public and private schools in Minnesota that serve "Type A" school lunches under the national school lunch program are now in accordance with new federal regulations requiring submission of free and reduced price lunch policy statements, the U.S. department of agriculture reports.

As a result, no child whose school participates in the program need miss out on a lunch.

For a period of time, seven schools in the state failed to comply with public law 91-248. This law stated that school authorities had to establish standards of eligibility for free and reduced price lunches by Jan. 1, 1971. These standards were based on minimum guidelines issued by USDA. If they did not submit their statements within 10 working days after that date, their respective schools would no longer receive federal reimbursement for lunches, or USDA donated foods to be used in the meals.

Termination of this assistance to those school lunch programs in Minnesota was made to emphasize the need for uniform standards in determining which family's children qualified to receive free or reduced price school lunches, points out Dennis M. Doyle, midwest regional director of USDA's food and nutrition service.

"Previously, standards varied widely and caused confusion," Doyle said. "Each school determined which children could receive lunch assistance."

The standards of all Minnesota schools now read that family size income are the criteria reviewed to determine eligibility. Income is an especial factor because now any school children from a family whose annual income is at or less than "income poverty guidelines" prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture must be served lunches free or at a reduced price not to exceed 20 cents.

Nationally, there are very few schools which have not complied with the new regulations to operate on a state-wide free and reduced price lunch policy. The states and food and nutrition service are striving to have all such schools in the country do so in the near future.

Research Council Plans Workshop Here April 1st

Northwest Minnesota Educational Research and Development council will hold a vocational workshop April 1 at the area vocational-technical school in Thief River Falls, according to E. J. Shukle, the council's program coordinator.

(The council is an educational agency supported by approximately 40 school districts, the Crookston Diocesan schools, Bemidji state college, Concordia college, Moorhead state college and the University of Minnesota technical college.)

Head supervisors of each state vocational education unit will be the teaching staff for this vocational workshop. There will be meetings in small groups with individual state supervisors so that educators, teachers and interested citizens may learn more about the working aspects of vocational education.

"There is no question", Shukle said, "that the stress and emphasis of planning and initiating vocational courses is here, and that the legislature and general public now realize that we must provide technical training and direction for the student population that will not enroll in a college or university program."

More information regarding this workshop and the social studies workshop scheduled for April 15 will be available soon. Registration information may be obtained by writing NWMERDC, P. O. Box 547, Red Lake Falls.

Seven Complete Clerical Course At Vocational

Seven students recently completed the nine month clerical curriculum of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school's business education department, according to Gerold Wigness, department chairman.

Beth Christopherson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Christopherson, Lancaster, is now employed at the Minnesota department of manpower services.

Laura Davids, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davids Jr., Gonvick, is currently seeking employment in the Twin Cities area.

Kay Gryskiewicz is now working at Northwestern Bell Telephone in Thief River Falls. She is the daughter of Mrs. Roman Gryskiewicz of Greenbush.

Bonnie Kluzak is seeking employment in the Crookston area. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kluzak of Angus.

Peggy Nordin, Lancaster, is now employed at the Falls Clinic Professional association. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ole H. Nordin.

Gladee Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Olson, rural Thief River Falls, is now working at the register of deeds office in Thief River Falls.

Renee Risteigen, Oslo, is now employed at Wodul Trucking here. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Risteigen.

All the students were tested by the federal civil service, state civil service and the local office of the Minnesota department of manpower services.

There are currently 79 students studying accounting or enrolled in clerical, secretarial and medical courses of study at the school's business education department. The majority of these students will be available for full-time employment in the latter part of May or the first week in June. Interested employers should call the vocational school at 681-5424 to recruit office employees.

"As you may well know, Mr. President, 'railroad' carriages are pulled at the enormous speed of 15 miles per hour by 'engines' which in addition to endangering life and limb of passengers, roar and snort their way through the country side, setting fire to the crops, scaring the livestock and frightening women and children. The Almighty certainly never intended that people should travel at such break neck speed."—Martin Van Buren, then Governor of New York, to President Andrew Jackson in 1829.

The twine used to bale hay in the United States and Canada last year would stretch to the Moon 72 times, according to New Holland farm machinery engineers.

Committee On Electronics At Vo-Tech Meets

Advisory council for the electronics department of the area Vocational-technical school met to discuss curriculum changes, space requirements and equipment needs and to review the present program March 11 at the school.

Council members are Neil Stone, Stone's Mobile Radio; Dennis Restau, Burrough Corporation in Grand Forks; Richard Tyner, chief engineer at KTHF, and Iver Torfin, Sjoberg's Cable TV.

Instructors Roger Peterson and Henry Bothman and counselor Robert Reeve also met with the advisory group.

AREA VOCATIONAL 1 9 3

Chester Neece, field representative for Blue Shield of Minnesota, was a guest speaker recently at the area vocational-technical school.

Neece spoke to a group of medical secretarial students on portion to insurance contracts, types of insurance claim forms, Medicare and the coverage under each title in the Medicare program, and the importance of being bonded when insurance work is part of the medical secretory's duties.

He also demonstrated how to fill out a claim form and stressed the importance of accuracy in this work.

Job opportunities for medical secretaries in the insurance field were stressed by Neece, who has traveled throughout Northwestern Minnesota lecturing to students at other schools which have medical secretarial programs.

Hayes Lake Dam Should Be Built During Summer

State Representative Andrew Skaar has received word regarding the status of the Hayes Lake dam contract.

"I have learned," Rep. Skaar said, "that the department of natural resources bureau of engineering would submit the plans and specifications to the administration's division of procurement by Friday, March 12."

Skaar added that it is expected that they will advertise for bids within the next three weeks, or by April 2.

"Allowing the customary 30-days' bid time," Skaar said, "it is expected that bids will be awarded on May 5."

The Hayes Lake dam, when built on the Roseau river, will create a man-made lake in the new park area. Representative Skaar said barring unforeseen difficulties the dam should be completed this year. When completed this will provide area residents with one of the finest year-around recreational facilities in Minnesota.

Annual Spelling Contest Slated At Goodridge

Annual Pennington county spelling contest will be held in the art room of the Goodridge school on Monday, March 22, at 4 p.m. Students through the eighth grade of any school in the county are eligible to attend after local elimination.

Winner of this contest will represent Pennington county at the Minneapolis Tribune spelling contest on Saturday, April 17, at the Pick-Nicollet hotel in Minneapolis. Registration of contestants will be at 9 a.m.

Pronouncing master will be Mrs. Clyde Ellefson of Red Lake Falls and a former teacher in the Polk county schools. To date schools indicating that they will take part are St. Hilaire elementary school, St. Bernard's elementary school, Goodridge elementary school and the Goodridge high school.

This will be the last year the bee will be conducted in Minnesota or South Dakota by county superintendents or administrators due to the elimination of the office in these states. Plans are being made for the superintendent of schools of the county seat towns to take over the bee.

In past years the public school winner of this contest represented the county at the spelling bee conducted by the Red River Valley winter shows. Due to the decreasing number of rural schools and the elimination of the office of the county superintendent, this contest was discontinued this year.

Gene Nelson Has Top DHIA Herd In Pennington

Jerry Ramre, supervisor of the Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement association, lists the following herds as the top in the association for the month of January.

Gene Nelson, 1,529 pounds milk and 61.6 pounds fat; Martin Hanson, 1,180 and 45.5; Knute Nesland, 1,358 and 44.6; Darrow Lundeen, 1,235 and 44.6; Harold Sabo, 1,222 and 43.2; Mylo Carlson, 1,073 and 43.0; Moody Morrison, 1,019 and 41.7; Ronald Moe, 1,131 and 41.4; Donald Erickson, 1,128 and 41.1 and James Muzzy, 1,017 and 40.9.

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month.

If too many dry cows are included in the herd, then the average for that month may be low, even though the cows which are milking produce a lot of milk.

There were 40 herds on test in January, with a total of 1,384 cows in the Pennington association.

Twenty-three cows finished with over 500 pounds butterfat during the testing year in a 305-day or less lactation. Listed by owners, they were: Orlando Chervestad, 14,300 and 503; Darrow Lundeen, 14,070 and 301; Myron Erickson, 16,090 and 567; Mehrkens Farms, 15,700 and 635 and 14,160 and 554; Carl and Duane Krohn, 18,350 and 554; Harold Sabo, 15,900 and 510; James Muzzy, 14,320 and 579; Marian Augustine, 19,740 and 868; and Ronald Moe, 15,200 and 626;

Also Swanson Bros., 15,540 and 563; 15,410 and 566; 14,300 and 500; 14,390 and 536; 14,100 and 505, 18,990 and 639; 13,890 and 537; 12,670 and 519; Bruggeman Farms, 13,090 and 528; Warren and Lowell Hamrich, 15,620 and 539 and 11,970 and 510, and Mylo Carlson, 13,790 and 540 and 12,810 and 529.

Meeting Slated At Newfolden on Bookmobile Use

Informational meeting and a referendum regarding establishment of bookmobile service in Marshall county will be held Monday, March 22, at the lunch room of the Newfolden community school.

Miss Mary Croteau, director of the Northwest Regional library in Thief River Falls, will be present to answer questions regarding the bookmobile service.

Interested persons in the Newfolden area hope for a large attendance since an expression of opinion will be sought regarding establishment of the service. If sufficient interest is shown, a request will be made to the Marshall county board of commissioners.

Experts predict that 138 million metric tons of meat will be consumed by man world-wide in 1980. That's a 58 per cent increase over the 1965 figure.

Olson Resigns As Lincoln HS Basketball Coach

"Whitey" Olson, coach of the Lincoln high school Prowlers basketball team for the past six seasons, has asked to be relieved of his head basketball coaching duties as of the end of this season.

In a letter to Russell Smith, athletic director, and Robert Ostazeski, principal, Olson made the request last week following the District 31 basketball tournament. The Prowlers finished third in the tourney, losing to Crookston by one point in the semi-final contest.

Olson will continue in his position as head counselor at the senior high school and will also coach the Lincoln tennis team this spring. No decision has been made on a successor for the head basketball position.

March 22 Last Day To Use Old License Plates

March 22 is the last day on which Minnesota motor vehicle owners can use their old plates and tabs, Deputy Registrar Ardith Johnson has warned.

Starting March 23, owners using their old licenses will be subject to arrest and fine. The deadline was extended this year from March 2 because of delays in the production of plates.

She also gave a summary of license transactions from November 15, when plates went on sale, through March 11. There were a total of 11,506 transaction, with licenses being issued for 6,881 passenger cars, 1,749 "T" class licenses, 1,215 "Y" licenses; and 174 licenses for two-wheeled utility trailers.

Five buses were licensed, as well as 220 mobile homes, 207 motorcycles, 179 semi-trailers and 179 camper trailers.

State Ranks 12th With Highway Safety-Standards

Minnesota ranks 12th among all the states in compliance with highway safety standards, according to a letter from secretary of transportation John A. Volpe.

Commenting on the secretary's letter, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoglund said that Minnesota would rank at the top were it not for areas in which state legislation is necessary for compliance.

Legislation has been introduced in past sessions, but was not enacted in the following areas:

Periodic inspection of all motor vehicles.

Register all commercial vehicles, including agricultural and special class vehicles, by gross weight.

Require eye protection, in the way of face shield or goggles for motorcyclists.

Examination of drivers upon renewal of license and a classified system of driver licensing.

Reorganization of the traffic court system and elimination of dependence on fees for revenue.

Require chemical tests of all surviving drivers of fatal crashes.

Require trained two-man ambulance crews.

In the evaluation, Minnesota had a top score in its alcohol-traffic safety program and showed above average conformance in the areas of motor vehicle registration, motorcycle safety, driver education, codes and laws, identification and surveillance of accident locations, traffic records, emergency medical services, highway design construction and maintenance and police traffic services.

Since the program started in Minnesota in late 1967, over $6 million in federal, state and local funds has been expended to upgrade traffic safety in the state.

Results of the program have already been apparent, with significant decreases in highway fatalities for the past two years.

Beadles Recalls Big Blizzard Of March 15, 1941

in the car. I had a good supply of paper and roadmaps. We all got into the back seat, and I wrapped our feet with roadmaps. Matton put his long wool socks over his feet. None of us had either rubbers or overshoes. I cut the bathrobe into wide strips with my jackknife and wrapped these around my companions' necks and foreheads. I sat between them, since I was dressed more warmly than either of them.

Matton also had three nice apples in his suitcase. I cut them up, and we each had our share. It was nine hours since we had eaten. The apples were a very welcome snack!

I took a fourth of my apple and laid it on the back shelf near the rear window. The others wanted to know why I did this. I told them I planned to watch the apple lying there. If it didn't freeze, we would know we were still safe. From time to time, one of us would reach up and feel the apple and say, "It isn't frozen yet." That small piece of apple gave us confidence and, worrying about it, we somehow forgot to worry about ourselves.

Dawn finally came, but we could see nothing but an occasional fencepost for a second or so. About 8:30 a.m., a huge yellow machine suddenly appeared on the left side of our car and stopped just a foot away!

It was the rotary snowplow from Crookston. The driver had not seen us until he was almost on top of us! He climbed down from the cab, half expecting to find the car deserted or its occupants frozen. I lowered the window an inch or so, and was delighted to tell him that we were all alive, though very cold. He told me not to open the car door. He proposed to tie the car to his machine and tow us to Marcoux Corner. I then discovered we were 7½ miles from Marcoux.

When we arrived there, we went inside and had a hearty breakfast, for we were hungry, thirsty and cold. The manager told us that 26 people had been found frozen to death within a radius of 50 miles. People who left their cars to seek shelter invariably didn't make it. Many were not found for days.

Our friends and relatives had been very much concerned about us, knowing only that we were out there somewhere. Telephone lines to Crookston were out, but the sheriff, police and others knew that it was unlikely that we had reached Crookston ahead of the storm. At dawn, a search party was organized. Twelve men with a pickup truck and four cars left Red Lake Falls at 8 a.m. and battled their way eight miles to Marcoux by 4 p.m. They were relieved to find us safe and sound. We had been able to reach Red Lake Falls by telephone soon after our arrival at Marcoux, but the search party did not know we were safe until they arrived.

My car was towed back to Red Lake Falls and put into a heated garage. It took nearly 24 hours to melt the accumulated snow so that the car could be started.

I feel very fortunate to have been raised in central South Dakota. I had experienced many blizzards in the horse and buggy days, and had been well trained in what to do and what not to do.

Many lives would have been saved that March 15, 1941, had people known that their best bet was to stay with their cars. Even without the motor running, most of them probably could have survived, uncomfortable, but alive. Thirty years have passed since that night, 30 years the three of us would not have had if we had started for Marcoux Corner on foot.

People who live in this great Upper Midwest area should be warned repeatedly about the danger of sudden winter storms, and the best ways to survive. We have come a long way since pioneer days, but we have not yet learned how to do anything about the weather. Blizzards still will come howling out of nowhere without warning, and the whole countryside will suddenly become a confusing welter of driving snow, with familiar landmarks gone and any kind of travel impossible for hours.

Here are a few winter travel suggestions that I would make. Always start a trip with a full tank of gas, and never let the tank go below half. Always carry one or two blankets, a box of chocolate bars, drinking water, three or four cans of Heet, and an empty can for emergency use. And, above all, NEVER LEAVE YOUR CAR, EVEN IF YOU ARE UNABLE TO KEEP THE ENGINE RUNNING. Help will come sooner or later. End

Gift Of Life Donor Program Set By Legion

"If I were dying and you were dead, would you help me?" These startling words will be asked of each citizen of Minnesota during the last two weeks in March when the American Legion and auxiliary, for the second year, set out to enlist persons willing to donate their organs—after death—so that others may live.

Highly successful in 1970, its initial year, the Legion has committed itself to carry on the "Gift of Life" campaign, a donor enlistment program sponsored by the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest and dedicated to providing human organs for transplant.

As proof of the campaign's first-year success, the national Kidney Foundation is patterning its nation-wide campaign for organ donors after Minnesota's. Thanks to the efficient and highly dedicated corps of Legionnaires and their ladies, more than 20,000 Minnesotans registered for the Gift of Life organ donor program last year. Not bad when you consider the program was new and started late.

Posts and auxiliaries have vowed not to rest until the Kidney Foundation's central donor registry has at least 100,000 state names in its files of persons who have signified their willingness to donate—after they die—one or more of their 25 organs or tissues which may be transplanted into another's body so that that person may continue to live. Thus the slogan, "If I were dying...!"

Thanks to the Legion, Minnesota is leading the nation in a heroic and humanitarian attempt to stop the needless death of more than 100,000 persons who die every year in the U.S. from kidney disease alone. Latest research shows that nine out of 10 of those who receive a healthy kidney from a donor will survive. And at least 70 per cent of those can expect to return to a normal, productive life. Approximately 100 kidney transplants were performed in Minnesota last year.

Police And Peace Officers Hold Essay Contest

Sgt. Richard Felder of the St. Paul police department and president of the Minnesota Police and Peace Officers association has announced that the statewide organization will again sponsor an essay contest for high school students in Minnesota. The subject this year will be, "The Prevention of the Use of Drugs by Juveniles."

The contest has been conducted annually as part of the association's juvenile delinquency prevention program for the past 24 years. In 1970 over 8,000 essays were received.

"It is our belief," Felder said, "that participation in this contest will provide the student with an opportunity to examine in depth the drug use problem as it relates to youth and to suggest methods of prevention."

A total of $750 in cash will be awarded to students for the best essays. The first place winner will receive $300. A South St. Paul high school girl, Barbara Cale, was declared the winner in 1970.

Rules of the contest have been mailed to all high schools in the state. Essays are limited to not more than 1,500 words and must be submitted for judging not later than April 1, 1971. Winners will be announced on May 15, 1971.

The panel of judges includes: Governor Wendell R. Anderson; Senator Walter F. Mondale; C. Donald Peterson, associate justice of the Minnesota supreme court; Richard G. Held, special agent in charge, FBI; and Richard Felder, president, Minnesota Police and Peace Officers association.

Further information on the contest may be obtained from: Executive Secretary, Minnesota Police and Peace Officers Association, 3000 France Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55416.

MPCA Adopts Regulations On Feedlot Wastes

At its March meeting, the Minnesota Pollution Control agency (MPCA) adopted in final form a series of regulations on feedlots.

Proposed feedlot regulations in various forms have been discussed in Minnesota since 1967. There are an estimated 20,000 feedlots in the state. The MPCA board deleted a sentence which would have required each of the 20,000 to comply with the regulations by 1980. At current rates of compliance, about 1,000 feedlots per year can be upgraded to meet the standards or certified as meeting the standards without having to upgrade.

The regulations will now be sent to the state attorney general for legal review and then be filed with the secretary of state and the commissioner of administration and have the effect of law. Copies are available at the MPCA offices and will be available from the state printer's documents section.

Five municipalities appeared at the MPCA's request to explain their sewage works progress.

Austin was granted a time extension to April 15, 1971, for submission of final plans, with construction to start by June 30 and to be complete by October, 1972.

Crookston is to submit by July detailed reports on ponding of sewage and potato processing wastes and on separation of storm and sanitary conduits.

Turkey Growers Are Honored By Land O'Lakes

Fiftieth anniversary meeting of Land O'Lakes, Inc., was held in Minneapolis March 11 and 12 to celebrate 50 years service to its members, and two Thief River Falls area turkey growers received awards for production quality.

Laveen Bergit, Oklee, received a plaque for the highest quality turkeys in the 5-10,000 bird category. Leonard Hedland, Roseau, received a trophy for having the best turkeys in the 10-20,000 bird category.

More than 3,000 people attended the two-day meeting.

D. H. Henry, general manager, stated, "For the first time we have passed the $600 million mark in sales, and for the first time our margins exceed $14 million. I should also mention that we set a new record in equity retirement of $7.5 million."

Malvin Sprecher, president, said, "Since the merger last spring with Felco, the board now represents farmer-owners in seven of this country's most productive agricultural states, representing a great diversity of interests."

A number of special programs were conducted in conjunction with the annual meeting, including the Young Farmer program for 125 member farm couples who had a special tour and participated in special programs at the meeting.

Mayer-Ookes To Take New Post

Prof. William J. Mayer-Oakes, head of the department of anthropology at the University of Manitoba, will leave that post to establish a department of anthropology at Texas Tech university in Lubbock.

He is the nephew of Mrs. Sara Mayer-Oakes and the late Dr. G. H. Mayer-Oakes of Thief River Falls. The latter taught for a number of years in the Thief River Falls school system.

Virtually every successful U. S. civil transport aircraft has benefited from Government support, usually through military development programs. It is doubtful that the 707 and DC-8 jets of today could have been produced without the technologies and the hardware resulting from the nearly $2 billion Air Force B-47 and B-52 development programs. The Government investment in the U.S. SST program is expected to be $1.3 billion, but in this case the Government will get all of its money back when 300 SSTs are sold, and will make a profit of $1 billion by the time 500 (the expected U. S. share of the market) are sold.

"We believe we can change things according to our wishes because that's the only happy solution we can see. We don't think of what usually happens and what is also a happy solution: things don't change, but by and by our wishes change." —Marcel Proust

Curing The Illness

The following editorial appeared in a recent issue of the Swift County News:

Protests against the level of real estate taxes are becoming behement, organized and dedicated to decrease present levies and put a ceiling on the amount that can be raised by this method.

A growing organization founded for these purposes, the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association, is attracting relatively large crowds in this part of the state. An estimated 300 persons were at a meeting of the organization here Thursday night, and similar gatherings in Stevens and Pope counties have had crowds at least as large.

We have no quarrel with the desire to lower taxes on real property, nor limiting the amount of money that can be raised by this tax. However, looking at "zero budgeting" and making claims of fat in local units of government especially school districts, is a negative approach. In this area, at least, we have no more waste in our county, city or school district organizations than does the average rural or urban business.

It should be emphasized again, and again, that the increase in real estate taxes is merely a symptom of massive waste on the part of the federal government, centered in an outsize military budget and throwing billions of dollars down overseas rat-holes.

Examples of prodigious misuse of tax money are common at the federal military level. The Deaprtment of Defense spends $30-million a year on public relations, it is common for military contracts to go millions, and even billions, over original figures, at least $30-billion a year is pumped into Indo-China where graft and waste are proven rampant.

Continually increasing taxes are cutting the heart out of the middle class in the United States and it is no wonder feelings of rebellion and outrage are growing. The symptoms of the disease, such as property taxes approaching impassible levels, need to be treated. But, the sickness is at the federal level, with the military spending problem. We need to seek temporary relief from our agony at the local level, but the major effort must be to cure the illness, or soon the disease will become fatal.

The Proud Farmer

We recently read an article by Msgr. John George Weber which was reprinted from another publication not identified. It sheds no new light on an oft-repeated subject, but it does provide a little different angle of perspective. Msgr. Weber writes as follows:

If I were a farmer I would be proud to be a steward of God's most precious gift to man, the soil. I would be proud to be a collaborator with God in producing "daily bread" for millions and millions of people. I would rejoice at the opportunities of seeing God's laws of nature in action which reveal God as the Psalmist says, "The heavens are telling the glory of God and the firmament proclaims his handiwork." Ps. 19:1.

As an American farmer I would be proud of the great achievements of our profession. Agriculture is still our nation's number one industry. Seventy per cent of our new wealth comes from the land; this in turn generates billions of dollars in the economy. The total assets of American agriculture is $298 billion, equal to about two-thirds of the current assets of all corporations in the United States. The American farmer helps considerably in the balance of payments of our nation with the produce of one acre in four going to foreign exports. One out of every four jobs are found in agribusiness. The American farmer has established an enviable record for the entire world and the abundance of American food is a marvel of modern times. I would be happy in all of this to be one of them.

However, there are two sides to every coin. If I were a farmer I would not and could not be proud of the other side, the dark side. As a farmer I would hang my head in shame that the American farmer has not kept pace with the other sector of the economy in organization, legislation, bargaining power, and pricing structure. I would still be selling my wheat at 1942 prices and my livestock at 1952 prices. In 1947 the realized gross farm income was 34.1 billion, and the realized net income was $17.1 billion. In 1968 the realized gross farm income was $51 billion, but the realized net income was only $14.7 billion, almost $3 billion less. Today the consumer spends only 16.5 per cent of [illegible] take-home pay to buy food which is better prepared, better preserved, better wrapped, compared with 20 per cent as late as 1960. In Western Europe the comparative figure is 25 per cent to 30 per cent, and in the Soviet Union 45 per cent to 50 per cent. Only because the American farmer has greatly increased his efficiency and is willing to work cheaply, is he able to survive.

Did I say survive? Many are giving up farming. Admittedly all are no longer needed, but the average age of 57 for the American farmer carries a potent message. The young people are moving out fast. In addition, millions of farm families in the past twenty years have been forced to urban centers which already have difficult problems of housing, transportation, palution and crime.

As a farmer I would be ashamed that I have not taken a more active part in farm organization in farm legislation, in getting a fair return on my investment, labor, management and risk.

Yes, as a farmer I would be proud of what I have done, but I would strike my breast in regret in what I have failed to do.

Party Designotion

Minnesota's league of women voters has announced a petition campaign during the month of March to "show citizen support of a return to party designation for state legislators".

Since 1913, candidates for the legislature have run on a non-partisan ballot, the league reports. After election they choose membership in either the conservative or liberal caucus. Their choice of caucus is not required to be revealed to their constituents prior to election.

Mrs. O. J. Janski, state president of the leage, is quoted as saying: "The governor and other state constitutional officers are nominated and elected with political party choice and support. They campaign on the platforms of political parties which reflect citizen concern for issues.

"But who is pledged to enact this legislation when legislators run without telling voters which party they favor or support?" she asks.

Nobody is pledged to party platforms in the state legislature. That is one of its blessings. Representotives and senators are free to read the mail from people back home and form their own opinions; they are free to read the legislation introduced and decide for themselves if it is good or bad; they are accountable to their constituents rather than their party's chairman or its central committee.

Once an official has been elected, the electorate knows whether he caucuses with the liberal or conservative element. Most candidates select one philosophy or another the first time they seek office; few choose to run as independents. Only a very few of those who do run as independents are elected. There is sort of an understood relationship of candidate to party without the formal endorsement and commitments. That should be enough.

There is still a tendency for Minnesota voters to "vote for the man". With this tendency, party endorsement helps only the straight party voter who doesn't have to take the time to learn about the candidates. He or she lets the party make up his or her mind instead. The independent voter will still vote for the man, and the man must do the job or not be reiected.

Party endorsement or party control does not make for better candidates in the legislature or for other state office. The DFL endorsed a brewery worker named Donovan for secretary of state after he beat the endorsed candidate in the primary. Endorsement didn't make the man a better candidate, nor did it weld him to the party line.

Minnesota needs a lot of things, but one of the things it doesn't need is party designation for legislators.

Interesting Opinions

"We are becoming 'top heavy' with educated people who can't do 'anything'. We have millions of volunteers to participate in the space program, yet we cannot hire someone to mow the lawn. It is imperative that we thwart the idea that everyone must have a college degree for his life's work." —Journal of Business Education

"I do not think deficits help anybody. The federal budget should be managed like any other budget. We should live within our income and let other forces manage the economy. We should not deliberately court a deficit to influence the economy. It might work for a year or two but in the long run you really pay the piper. You can do it for awhile and hope to get out of office before you have to take a wheelbarrow full of money to the grocery store." —Caspar W. Weinberger

"Most people believe that the Christian commandments are intentionally a little too severe—like setting a clock half an hour ahead to make sure of not being late in the morning." —Soren Kierkegaard.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

When will the voters of District 67 decide they've finally had enough of Donald Sinclair? We had another example of his blindness to the needs of the people when a couple of weeks ago he actually voted in the Senate Education Committee to approve appointments of a former governor to serve during the current governor's term.

On the surface this appears to be inconsistent; why, even the Democrats agreed with the Republicans at the beginning of LeVander's term to let him make his own appointments instead of forcing those of his predecessor, Rolvaag, upon him. But when we take a broader view of Sinclair's prolonged (since 1947) senate career, we may also more charitably interpret his behavior as symptomatic of the encroaching problems of gentlemen of his era—he probably just forgot that Anderson was a Democrat!

Very truly yours,
Mr. K. N. Halldin
416 Kneale Ave. So.
Thief River Falls, Minn. 56701

To the Editor:

Last Thursday eve we had the privilege to attend the historical banquet at Ada for Norman County. The program brought to mind again how much the pioneer people endured and still never gave up. The development of a new country was indeed a great task and a race privilege. It required courage, sacrifice and privation.

We heard how the grasshoppers were like black clouds, that the ground almost moved with grasshoppers. In 1872 the grasshoppers ate everything—wild hay-potatoes, anything green, even the posts, trees and buildings leaving the country stripped.

A Diphtheria epidemic broke out in 1881—some lost four, five, six children, one family lost 11 children—five in 1881—and in the second epidemic, some years later, lost six more.

Fuel was a problem also—they gathered stumps and fallen logs, but later they found groves and bought wood for 20 or 30 cents a load. Prairie fires were a constant hazard. Another hardship was frozen feet; men wore leather boots which got hard and caused much misery. When they hauled wood or supplies they walked alongside the wagon for miles to keep warm.

Floods were also common—and one spring the snow melted so fast that the Wild Rice River rose to 20 feet in one day—the highest known to white men.

We take for granted our "push button" way of life. However grandpa and grandma worked un-complainingly to help shape our future, we race in our high-powered automobiles but they enjoyed their leisurely ride too, because the horse knew his way home.

The county had purchased a large church—both the basement and first floor were filled with items from pioneer life. A complete bedroom with a spread made by women embroidered with names of the community, childs room, dining and living room all in perfect settings, a kitchen with the old stove and wood box, wash tub, and wash board, at least 10 different churns; every type of baby carriage, several items from churches and schools that had been discontinued, a black pastor's gown with the ruffled white collar, several memorial crosses, Bibles and pictures.

They also have started their pioneer village of church, one room school, log house, a long building for machinery used in early days.

We had a very educational trip—and now we ask everyone to be a part of putting articles in the local museum that can be kept in years to come. In 25 years we will be 100 years old. Start saving things now. Anything 5, 10, 15 years old—will be history in time.

We would like some mannequins—also for boy and girl dress, old catalogs. Is there a block pastors gown with the white ruffled collar? Church meant so much to our pioneers that we would like to have one for our museum, and items to put in our log home when it is ready.

We would like a civil war uniform, World War I, World War II, Viet Nam, "Lest we forget"—these to be preserved in a special way, with special mention who lost their lives in the wars. These were displayed very fittingly at the museum in Ada.

Our plans are to have special programs as time goes on. After all, that is the historical society. We ask anyone to write about their early life and send it to me, it will be preserved and kept in the museum with the history of any pioneer that will give this to our Historical society. Only in this way can we put before our children and grandchildren the tremendous courage and endurance the pioneers had. Then some day—we can write a history of Pennington County, from each township, and each village in this county. Maybe by the 100th anniversary this can be done. If some one from each family that pioneered here will write a history of their family this will be kept separate in the museum.

The museum here is being remodeled to make more room and when this is finished we will have it open to the public again.

We have so much to do and so little time to do it. Working together at this will help us realize the worth of our common heritage from the past, and will strengthen our faith in the future.

I hope that many will visit the museum at Ada. Mrs. Lindberg and myself came back much more inspired than ever. We were happy to represent Pennington county, even tho it stormed and we had to spend the night there—the people were so kind and it was well worth our stay.

Pennington county Historical Society President

To The Editor:

Riding the slipstream of industrial development, community airports are becoming major contributors to the economy of the state and areas they serve.

In recent years, this story has been retold in hundreds of small towns and communities across the country. The community airport story takes on added significance when one considers that today business and industry are continuing to move their centers of operation away from the urban environment and into the non-urban areas where operating costs are lower and the employee's dollar goes farther.

In doing so, however, access to the air transportation system remains a must in the minds of many corporate executives and business leaders, according to J. T. Geutlng Jr., president of General Aviation Manufacturers Association, Inc. Companies planning to locate a new plant have consistently listed the availability of a nearby airport among the first five requirements.

The growing importance of general aviation also reflects in the fact that it serves as the community's link to the nations air transportation system. Today's community airport, in fact, is becoming the modern means of connecting a community of any size with any other community—if it has an airport.

There are now 11,050 airports serving more than 18,000 communities in the U.S., recent Federal Aviation Administration figures show. Scheduled airlines served about 530 of these airports. As airline service to the nation's smaller cities and towns continues to decrease, the role of general aviation and the community airport becomes necessarily greater. General aviation aircraft have access to all the country's airports and thereby bear the responsibility for bringing the benefits of air transportation to the entire country. In this regard, the role of the air taxi operator and commuter airline has increased to fill the gap left by discontinued or decreased airline service. This vital and fast growing facet of general aviation now numbers more than 1500 individual companies serving close to 150 communities.

The present system of airports and airways, however, is limited in its ability to accommodate the projected growth of general aviation and the rapid expansion of the entire air transportation system.

These circumstances have prompted the federal government to underwrite a nationwide program to expand and improve all segments of our air transportation system.

Signed into law on May 21 by President Nixon, the Airport and Airways Development Act of 1970 will pump $15,000,000,000 in federal funds into the development and expansion of a modern air transportation system during the 1970's.

It is in the local community, however, where the most dramatic impact of the legislation will be noticeable. Last year, requests from 412 communities for federal airport development funds were denied to the the lack of adequate appropriations for general aviation airports. The new legislation, however, specifically sets aside $30,000,000 a year for the exclusive development of new and existing general aviation airports.

At the heart of the new legislation are grants amounting to $280,000,000 to be spent annually for the actual construction and improvement of airports throughout the country. Airport construction projects that are eligible for federal funds include site preparation, paving of runways, taxiways, and aprons, airport lighting, and access road construction. Also eligible for federal funds is the purchase of land for future airport construction.

For the people who don't fly, general aviation might not seem so "vigorous and fabulous" but, airplanes operated solely for business purposes out number all domestic scheduled airlines more than 20 to one. These business airplanes fly more hours than all the airlines combined.

If bringing new business is important, if helping present business stay competitive is important, if transient dollars are important, if emergency facilities are important, then the airport is important.

TRF Airport Manager

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

March 2nd was Norman E. Borlaug Day in Minnesota. Dr. Borlaug was the first agricultural scientist and the first University of Minnesota graduate to win the Nobel Peace Prize.

The Nobel Peace Prize is awarded by a committee of five persons elected by the Norwegian Storthing (parliament) and was presented in Oslo on December 10, 1970. The other four Nobel Prize winners are selected by various Swedish academies and [illegible].

The Nobel Prizes were established in the will of Alfred Bernhard Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite who is said to have suffered from a feeling of guilt at having created an instrument of death and destruction, a substance which could be used in war when he had intended it for peace. Nobel bequeathed $9,000,000 and specified that the interest from the fund was to be divided equally each year for five prizes in physics, chemistry, physiology or medicine, literature, and peace.

The Nobel Peace Prize is recognized as one of the most prestigious awards in the world. Five Nobel awards are made annually to persons who have made valuable contributions to the "good of humanity" and is given specifically for the most effective work in the interest of international peace.

Probably only once in a lifetime will I have the opportunity that I was privileged to share with two other rural legislators when we visited with Dr. Borlaug for an hour and a half on Thursday, March 4th. I was particularly interested in his thoughts on the need for continued research in agriculture and the role he feels the state and federal government should play. He was raised on a farm and still thinks of himself as a farmer.

"Farmers are the same the world over," he said, "and they are the most important minority in the world."

He is extremely concerned that within our nation there is a strong and growing effort to dominate agricultural policy by non-agricultural people. He feels very strongly that the course of American agriculture must be guided by people with a working experience and involvement in agriculture.

Specifically Dr. Borlaug was credited with developing a dwarf variety of wheat with short, strong, and very stiff straw which can be heavily fertilized to produce a high yield. The new strains are disease-resistant and adaptable to a wide variety of climates. Borlaug's success with wheat also contributed to the development of a new "miracle" rice in the Orient.

It has been estimated that these super grains have added a conservative 20 million tons of cereal grains to the Asian food supply, or more than $2 billion worth. Mexico increased its national average wheat yield from 11.5 bushels per acre (in 1943) to over 40 bushels by the mid-60's. Wheat production in India jumped from 12 million metric tons to over 20 million tons in three years. West Pakistan has almost doubled its cereal production during the past five years.

This man is without a doubt one of the most genuinely humble and sincere individuals I have ever met. This visit with Dr. Borlaug will be long remembered.

In An Eskimo Camp

Canoeists Exchange Ideas With Eskimos

Part VIII

(In the last installment of Hilary Stoltman's diary, Hilary and Bob O'Hara had just met two Eskimo hunters at a rapids in the Thelon river. The Eskimos had asked about caribou, but none had been sighted for a number of miles. The date is August 3.)

Knowing the Eskimo custom of always asking the other party to eat with you if you suspect that they might be hungry, we asked if they cared to have lunch with us. They did, so Bob and I made a quick ham lunch and we ate together.

They sensed that we might be having a bit of trouble and asked if they could help. We talked to them some more and found out there was a bigger hunting party camped a few miles down stream. They also said that they were going back to Baker Lake, where they all lived, tomorrow late in the afternoon.

Bob and I talked it over and decided to have them take one canoe and we'd paddle the other canoe. We agreed to stay at their camp tonight and Bob and I were going to get an early start and beat them to Baker Lake.

We pulled into their camp at 8 p.m. They had three big tents with 16 men, women and children. It was a very happy camp with everyone laughing and talking. They had gotten two caribou and had the hides stretched drying on the ground.

They looked our equipment over very well. Watched us put up our Eureka tent which they had never seen before. One asked me how much it cost, another wanted us to try carry one of our canoes with a carrying yoke, which we did. I told the Eskimo that could speak the best English that we didn't have much candy left, but would give it to the kids who were all around us after that and would do anything to help us.

We were all camped by a very scenic spot with a stream with a rapids in it coming into the Thelon by our sides. We talked until midnight with the English speaking Eskimo. The others sat in a circle and listened to what was being said. I think most of them could understand some of the conversation.

We asked them what they'd want to tow one canoe and four packs to Baker Lake but they didn't know. Bob offered them 20 dollars and they thought that it was more than enough as they were going that way anyway.

August 4—We got up early and were on our way from the Eskimo camp before they had gotten up, as we wanted to be ahead of them in case we were to run into trouble as the river was still rough. The river then turned a little milder but still very fast with many rapids in various spots. But we didn't have to line the canoes from the camp to Baker Lake and shot all the rapids with many giving a rough and fast ride.

In four hours we were at the mouth of the lake itself. Stopped and had dinner here, put on our most colorful clothing and paddled the last four miles into Baker Lake. We stepped ashore at the Hudson Bay Post and I reached over and shook Bob's hand. We both had big smiles on our faces. It had been quite a trip in more ways than one.

The Bay Store was closed due to a Canadian holiday but the manager had seen us come in and came down to greet us. He told us we could use the facilities at his staff house and pitch our tent to the side of it.

The first thing we did was walk through town which consists of 600 Eskimos and 70 whites. The only business in town is the Bay Store and government personnel. They have trucks that pick up all bathroom waste in big plastic bags from all the buildings in town because of the permafrost. Also trucks haul lake water to tanks in all buildings on a systematic schedule for drinking and washing.

Stopped in and saw Father Claque, the Oblete missionary, stationed here. Has been in the north 31 years. He gave us a Scotch drink and we talked of the Eskimo problem for a few hours.

We spent the evening with two Scottish boys training with the Bay company at the staff house until midnight. Had trouble sleeping because of howling Eskimo dogs from all over town.

Next Issue: The Conclusion

MEAL TIME for the Hilary Stoltman party didn't follow a regular schedule. The party paddled when wind and ice permitted and stopped to eat when it seemed to be the most appropriate. Warm meals were provided in the morning and evening with a cold lunch at noon, or some time during the day's travel. —Photo by Bob O'Hara

EGF Favored In Region 8 Play

East Grand Forks, Littlefork-Big Falls, Mentor and Stephen will collide tomorrow night (Tuesday) as the region eight basketball tournament gets underway at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse.

"East Side" dumped Crookston 67-47 to claim the district 31 title while Littlefork-Big Falls stopped Remer 57-46 in district 29, Mentor ripped Fertile 63-48 in district 30 and Stephen trimmed Kennedy 65-46 in district 32 action.

The first game tomorrow night will pit Littlefork-Big Falls against Stephen at 7:00 with East Grand Forks and Mentor playing the second contest. The consolation game will be played Wednesday night at 7 p.m. with the championship contest to follow.

"East Side" jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the opening minutes of the first quarter as they built up an 11-point, 21-10, first quarter lead over Crookston in the district 31 title game Wednesday night at UND.

The Green Wave ran up a 20 point, 33-13, lead with 5:05 remaining in the second quarter as the Wave coasted to a 39-26 bulge at the intermission.

East Grand Forks held onto a 55-40 advantage going into the final quarter for the 67-47 win over the Pirates. "East Side's" Don Johnson was the game's leading scorer as the senior forward connected for 19 points while teammate Mark Syrstad netted 14. Bob Menzhuber was the only Pirate to reach double figures with 11 points.

Mentor won its second straight district 30 title as the Trojans built up an 11-point first quarter lead and led by 16 and 15 points at the end of the second and third quarters. The final seven points difference was the closest the Falcons came within the Trojans after the first quarter.

Lee Austin led the Mentor attack with 21 points while Mark Austin chipped in 17 and Dave Super 14. Dale Sotie was Fertile's leading scorer with 15 points and Mike Ness added 13.

Littlefork-Big Falls blitzed Remer for a 14-3 first quarter lead before the Eagles rallied to within two points, 25-23 at the half. Littlefork pulled out to a 44-37 lead after three quarters enroute to the easy win.

Martin Cody was the game's leading scorer with 14 points while Walt Jookkola and Tom Anderson each added 12 points. Roger Brown led the Eagles with 13 points with Jim Clark adding 11 and Greg Renn collected 10 points in the losing effort.

Stephen held a slight, 17-13, advantage after one quarter against Kennedy in the district 32 title game at Stephen Friday night before the Tiger exploded for a 37-24 halftime lead and ran up a 53-34 margin at the end of three quarters.

Jeff Russel paced the Stephen attack with 20 points while Phil Chwialkowski and Ron Jenson collected 15 points apiece and Scott Laudol 11. Milton Ehard and Rich Murray with 10 apiece, led the Kennedy scorers.

JV's Produce Bright Future For Icemen

Don't be surprised if Lincoln high school hockey coach Bob Tuff shows off a wide smile when the future of the ice sport at LHS is mentioned in a conversation.

John Schmitz' junior varsity sextet finished their 1970-71 season undefeated and marked up a few impressive figures while running up the 18 wins to make the hockey future of Thief River Falls shine brightly.

The goaltending on the JV team was remarkable as Pete Sullivan and Joel Folger combined for seven shut-outs during the year. Sullivan recorded four blankings himself while the two netminders each worked part of the other three contests. The most goals a team managed to score against the Prowler Bee's in a single contest was just two tallies. The duo allowed just 16 goals in 18 games while the Lincoln attackers ran up 94 goals in the 18 contests.

Defensemen usually don't put too many marks in the record books during a hockey season but the Prowler blueliners were so effective that the goalies were called on to make on average of just 12.6 stops per game.

Junior center Don Brown led the Prowler attack this past season as he racked up 20 goals and added six assists for 26 points. Larry Sampson, another junior, scored eight goals and 10 assists for 18 points while Jon Markstrom added 17 points, Mike Drury 17, Dick Penning 16 and Mike Fitzgerald 12.

Four skaters recorded hat tricks for the Prowler JV's this season as Sampson and Penning got the "tick" and Mike Hamilton and Brown scored four goals in one contest.

The Prowler Bee's rolled up a 16-0 blanking of the Hallock Bears for their biggest point total and most lopsided win while they were involved in five games where they won by a single goal. Included in the win column was a 9-2 thumping of the Alexandria A team.

The complete scoring summary for the 1970-71 junior varsity hockey season is as follows:

Chasing A Fox Costs Man $150

Chasing a fox with a snowmobile has cost a Jackson resident a $150 fine, the department of natural resources announced today.

Leslie Svoboda was arrested by conservation officers on January 7. Svoboda pled innocent to the charge but later changed his plea to guilty.

Minnesota law makes it illegal to chase or harass wildlife with a snowmobile. Several persons have been prosecuted under the law this winter, according to the department's division of enforcement and field service.

Remind Boaters To Buy License

Warm weather enjoyed during recent days has prompted a reminder from the department of natural resources to boat owners that they must have a valid license before their watercraft is placed in the water this spring.

Those who received renewal notices and those who have purchased new boats should make sure they have licensed them. "Preferably", said a department spokesman, "before the ice goes out and the fishing season opens."

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS

March 15, 1971
REGULAR MEETING
March 8, 1971

A regular meeting of the School District Board No. 564 was held at 8:10 o'clock p.m., on Monday, March 8, 1971 in the cafeteria of the Lincoln School Building.

The following members were present: Dr. George Martin, Kenneth Murphy, C. C. Olson, Mervin Prestebak, Charles Samuelson, Maynard Wedul and Superintendent Johnson. Absent was Wallace Sperby.

Chairman Prestebak presided.

A motion was made by C. Samuelson, seconded by C. Olson to approve the minutes of the regular meeting held February 22, 1971 and the special meetings held February 25, March 1, and March 4, 1971.

A motion was made by C. Olson seconded by G. Martin and carried to approve the financial report.

At tonight's meeting there were 225 visitors.

A spokesman for a Citizens' Group voiced objection to the suggestion of busing Mark Twain students for the coming year.

Chairman Prestebak read the board's statement to the group.

Dr. Martin made the motion that the School Board reopen negotiations with the Redeemer Lutheran Church in regards to usable space at a reasonable cost for the use of the junior high school overflow. Pending a satisfactory outcome, the Board will enter into a rental agreement with said church. The motion was seconded by C. Samuelson and carried by the Board.

The question was asked what we are going to do about needed classroom space next year. Chairman Prestebak explained that at the present time we are trying to solve one problem at a time.

In answer to a question about rescheduling in the schools, Superintendent Johnson explained the possibility of a 45-15 schedule as the School Board explained at an earlier meeting.

Mr. Robert Flynn read a statement from the Northwest Taxpayer's Association.

The School Board held a discussion period with the audience in regard to busing, new classrooms, and scheduling.

Dr. Martin made a statement to the effect that the different groups should come together and set up a committee or citizens' group to assist the Board in its housing and financial problems.

A motion was made by M. Wedul, seconded by E. Olson and carried to close the meeting at 9:05 p.m.

March 15, 1971
SPECIAL MEETING
March 9, 1971

A special negotiating meeting of the School District Board No. 564 was held at 7:00 o'clock p.m., on Tuesday, March 9, 1971 in the cafeteria of the Lincoln School Building.

The following members were present: Dr. George Martin, Kenneth Murphy, C. C. Olson, Mervin Prestebak, Charles Samuelson, Maynard Wedul and Superintendent Johnson. Absent was Wallace Sperby.

Chairman Prestebak presided.

On behalf of the School Board Chairman Prestebak made the following statement. (See attached Board of Education's Reply to Negotiating Council No. 5, dated March 9, 1971)

The Negotiating Council requests a short caucus following this board action on accepting the Teachers' Negotiating Council's request for an adjustment panel.

Mr. Vern Isaacson gave the following statement to the School Board:

"Gentlemen:

You realize that the law states that we must file prior to March 1 for an adjustment panel. We, too, are concerned about the economy of this area. The adjustment panel will cost the school district a needless amount. We feel that both groups were trying to negotiate and arrive at a settlement despite unfavorable conditions. It was our hope that all efforts could be made to meet some agreement and we would like to continue to meet and reach that agreement."

The School Board requested a short caucus to arrive at an answer to their statement. Upon the return of the School Board Chairman Prestebak gave the following statement:

"It, too, was our hope that all efforts could be made to meet the agreement and we would like to continue to meet and reach that agreement. However, it is apparent to the members of the Board that a new approach is necessary at this time. In order to continue our efforts to reach an agreement, the Board hereby requests the Negotiating Council to select a panel member to meet and confer with a panel member to be selected by the Board of Education. It is our hope that these two panel members will be able to attain fruitful results."

Chairman Isaacson of the Teachers' Council inquired if this was not settled by the 19th of March, what contract would be offered?

The Teachers' Council also wanted to know if they picked one of their members, would the School Board select one from their Board and could these two meet for the next five (5) days so that a possible settlement could be reached by the 15th of March. Mrs. Edith Eller of the Teachers' Council said that this would be another waste of the tax dollar and we would be better off to settle this ourselves than to go to the cost of a panel.

Mr. Isaacson asked if it was the Board's intention that these temporary members meet for the next five days to negotiate before going to the adjustment panel? Chairman Prestebak said that this was not necessary.

Chairman Prestebak answered the Teachers' Negotiating Council with the following facts:

1. Contracts will be given teaching personnel on March 20, 1971 on the basis of the last bona fide offer made by the Board of Education on March 4, 1971. (No. 300) According to law a board of education may use the last official offer or last year's contract offer. Therefore, the Board of Education has chosen to grant the contracts on March 20th on the basis of its bona fide offer.

2. By law we cannot do this or cause it would subvert the intentions of adequate negotiation. So based upon your request we suggest that you submit the name of your panel member as soon as possible.

After the return of both Boards, Vice Chairman Samuelson presided as Chairman Prestebak was called away.

Chairman Isaacson made the following statement:

"Gentlemen:

We feel we have a better solution to continuing negotiations. We feel your proposal is a stalling tactic. Updating two negotiators will involve time and tax money in getting persons selected and to work on our differences. We are very concerned about the education that each child can obtain in Thief River Falls. We realize pressure and emotions from the community are reflected into the various classrooms during adjustment panel hearings. Therefore, knowing what the students and teachers had to endure two years ago, we want to come to an agreement by March 19th by continuing to negotiate. Let's be realistic, an adjustment panel member for you will be using more tax dollars needlessly. Are you trying to take the pressure off yourselves? Have you forgotten that the final decision rests in your hands? We want to negotiate; we feel we don't need new ideas but just a willingness to communicate and to negotiate on each else. Would you please, gentlemen, give it serious thought on your part and let's agree to meet again the first part of next week? If you are willing to negotiate, we will submit another proposal at this time."

A short discussion was held between both parties. Vice Chairman Samuelson affirmed that we do not wish another proposal now and at this time we will enter into a different type of negotiations by way of a panel.

Chairman Isaacson said now that leaves no alternative but to select panel members.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:45 p.m.

APPROVED: Mervin Prestebak, Chairman

Board of Education
Reply to Negotiating Council No. 5
March 9, 1971

Members of the Negotiating Council:

The proposal submitted by your group on March 4, 1971 has been reviewed by our central office staff and it was found that the base cost of the salary proposal amounts to $194,680 over the $1,880,626 scheduled for teachers' salaries for the school year 1970-71. This amounts to some 10.4 per cent increase over this year's salary expenditures. Your request for an increase on the extra-curricular pay schedule to be set at 4 per cent of the base pay proves to be far too expensive for the school district to consider valid at this time. Since these two items make up the bulk of the problems under consideration, the Board of Education has no alternative but to reject the Council's Proposal No. 5 dated March 4, 1971. It appears from calculations that the Negotiating Council and the Board of Education are over $150,000 apart in defining what the annual cost for salary increments should be for the school year 1971-72. Thus, it seems at this point that the most expedient thing to do is to honor your request for an adjustment panel as stated in your letter to the President of the Board of Education dated February 26, 1971.

We have enjoyed the cordiality, the professionalism, and the genuine interest for better education displayed by the Negotiating Council during our several conferences. We commend you for these high ideals and hope that we may continue, at a later date, our conversation regarding professional organization, improvement of learning, etc. that we started at an earlier Saturday meeting.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

March 15, 1971
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS
PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA
March 2, 1971

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of County Commissioners met in the Commissioners room in the Court House in Thief River Falls at 10:00 a.m., March 2, 1971.

Members present: Henson, Olson, Anderson, Stenberg and Tase. All present.

Si Henson and Frank Hamerlinck representing the Total Community Action Committee appeared and presented a resume of the Action Committee's purposes and presented a letter from the Committee which reads as follows:

Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County
Gentlemen:

County planning was one of the topics discussed at the January meeting of the Total Community Development Committee. We were impressed with what has been accomplished in this area so far and feel that the information in the Comprehensive Plan booklet has much to offer toward the future welfare and development of Pennington County.

We are also aware of the problems facing the County Commissioners if all of the proposals in the report were to be implemented as presented. However, we feel the county should continue to plan on a long-range basis and should be aware of planning and zoning levels. How you would implement and accomplish the task of continual long-range planning is a complex problem for your group but we do urge you to come to grips with this problem.

Our committees' concern is development of the total community and county planning and action falls within the broad definition of community. This is our reason for contacting you and urging you to continue your efforts on planning and action for Pennington County.

Sincerely,
Total Community Action Committee

The minutes of meetings of January 5th and February 9th were read and approved as read.

A group of taxpayers appeared at 1:30 p.m. and announced that they were representing a newly formed Northwest Taxpayers Association. Maynard Wedul spoke in behalf of the group and explained the purpose of the organization and Albert Koop presented a prepared statement which reads as follows: (in part)

TO THE PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

The taxpayers association came into being simply because so many taxpayers in this area now feel that our real estate and personal property taxes are on the way to being oppressive to the property owner and digressive to the financial condition of the community. With our system of open-end taxation on our real estate and income, the individual taxpayer should exercise much more control and interest on most government spending. The Northwest Taxpayers Association now offers the taxpayer an opportunity to have an immediate and direct united determination and expression on many tax spending matters, whether it be the City of Thief River Falls, County of Pennington, School District 564 or the State of Minnesota.

NORTHWEST TAXPAYERS ASSOCIATION

Moved by Olson seconded by Tase that a proposed schedule of salaries, based on satisfactory performance, be adopted for Deputy Sheriff's, according to the following schedule and effective March 1, 1971, to wit: starting wage, $520.00; after 6 months, $545.00; after 1 year, $570.00; after 1½ years, $580.00; after 2 years, $590.00; after 2½ years, $610.00; after 3½ years, $630.00.

Evidence of satisfactory performance to be by letter to Auditor according to schedule. Motion carried.

Pursuant to a request by the Treasurer that the salary of the Treasurer and his added duties as Civil Defense Director be paid separately, it was moved by Olson seconded by Stenberg that the intent of the Board at its meeting in February was to adjust the total salary of the Treasurer, together with his Civil Defense duties by 5 per cent as were the other County Officers and that $25.00 per month be charged to Civil Defense as in the past several years and that separate checks be issued each month for the Civil Defense obligation. Motion carried.

Moved by Tase seconded by Henson that the Engineer and Auditor be authorized and instructed to advertise for the season supply of culverts, diesel fuel and gas and oil with bids to be called and opened at the next regular meeting of the Board to be held April 6, 1971. Motion carried.

Chairman Anderson relinquished his chair at this point to better expedite the matter of improvement of CSAH No. 10 which runs north and south thru Bray Township and connecting with State TH No. 1 in Numedal Township. Moved by Henson seconded by Anderson that the Engineer and Auditor be authorized and instructed to advertise for bids for grading of 9¼ miles of CSAH 10 between SAN No. 3 and TH No. 1 with bids to be opened at 11:00 a.m. April 19, 1971. Motion declared carried by Acting Chairman Olson.

Chairman Anderson then assumed his position as Chairman and continued with the business at hand.

Moved by Olson seconded by Tase that Contract with Border States Paving for improvement of CSAH 30 north of the Fairgrounds in the total amount of $124,037.80 be approved and final payment in the amount of $22,357.55 be paid. Motion carried. (57-630-01)

Moved by Tase seconded by Olson that Contract with Sirom Construction Co. for grading of CSAH 10 from 11 miles west of St. Hilaire to the south County line be approved in the total amount of $23,984.75 and final payment of $3,693.75 be paid. Motion carried. (57-610-02)

Moved by Henson seconded by Olson that Contract with Vernon Nelson for grading of CSAH 1 on the county line in the SW corner of the County be approved in the total amount of $10,614.90 with half of the obligation being paid by Red Lake County and final payment be paid in the amount of $862.64. Motion carried. (57-601-08)

Moved by Olson seconded by Tase that the following resolution be adopted:

RESOLVED, by the Pennington County Board of Commissioners, that Joseph Seidel, County Engineer, be and he is hereby authorized to, in addition to the Statutory limitations, restrict the load limits on Pennington County roads during the spring breakup to no less than 2 tons per axle, according to conditions of each road and to "POST" the road limits accordingly where they exceed the Statutory limits. Motion carried.

The proposal by the Soil Conservation Service to make a soils test of the entire County was brought up for discussion and it was the unanimous opinion of the board that the offer be rejected because of the cost.

Moved by Olson seconded by Henson that the sum of $200.00 be appropriated and made available to pay for a Canoe landing site in St. Hilaire as a part of the Red Lake River Trails project and the sum of $5.60 be made available for the same project to pay the 1971 real estate tax on the several small tracts acquired in 1970 that were already appraised and on the tax roles and now split off from the terms. Motion carried.

Moved by Olson seconded by Stenberg that the sum of $4,500.00 be appropriated and paid from the Revenue Fund to the Pennington County Historical Society pursuant to their budget request. Motion carried.

A request for planning funds for the Agassiz Health Planning Council in the amount of $593.35 was denied.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tase that bids for the proposed Micro-film system as called for in the December 1970 meeting be rejected because of lack of agreement as to which system should be installed and the bid checks be returned to the bidders. Motion carried.

The annual report of Dr. Hazard as Livestock Inspector was received, reviewed and filed.

Requests for abatement and reduction of tax on Personal Property were approved, as follows:

State Farm Mutual Auto Insurance Co., cancel total tax of $56.22; National Family Insurance Co., cancel total tax of $4.92; Petroleum Products Resources Co., cancel total tax of $44.76.

The above items are exempt by State Law and should not have been assessed.

Rheem Mfg. Co., Tipper Tie Div., a reduction of $260.00 to $783.54. Assessors error in calculation of value. Application sent to State Dept. of Taxation for approval.

Applications for Homestead classification were approved for the 1971 tax, as follows:

James Jude, Rocksbury Township; Oliver Twistol, Conleys 3rd Addn., Thief River Falls; Leverne Lamen, Knox Addn., Thief River Falls; Carl S. Widing, Porters Addn., Thief River Falls; Alvin Swenson, Knoxs' Rearr. to Red Lake Rapids, Thief River Falls; Wm. Wahlbeck, Black River Twp. Nell Homestead.

An application for reduction of the valuation of the buildings and attached machinery of the pelleting plant was presented by Wm. LeFeve of Alfalfa Products, Inc. The request for reduction asked that the total value of the plant be reduced to $45,000 from the valuation placed on it by the County Assessor of $172,351. The request is based on the fact that the former operators were unable to operate with a profit and the property was lost to the financing agents. The petitioner maintained that the purchase price should indicate the market value and the additional claim of not being able to show a profit the petitioner claimed would tend to strengthen that position.

The petition was referred to the State Department of Taxation because of the complex problems that required expert appraisals and State wide policy determination not available within the membership of the Board.

PROWLER FORWARD Dale Hanson drives toward the basket for a lay-up over Gary Hanson of Climax during the first quarter of the district 31 consolation game Wednesday night in the UND fieldhouse. Others identifiable in the photo include Pat Hamilton (30) and Mike Hamerlinck (42) of the Prowlers and Jamie Tronnes (25), Wayne Kobbervig (31) and Jerome Paulsrud (33) of Climax. The Prowlers won the contest 82-69 to end their 1970-71 cage season.

KENT SMITH is set to get off a short jump shot during the district 31 consolation game against the Climax Vikings Wednesday night as Climax guard Les Palm (23) goes up in an attempt to block the shot by the sophomore guard. The Vikings' Jamie Tronnes (25) looks on and Rande Smith (40) of the Prowlers trails the play. East Grand Forks won the district 31 crown with a 67-47 win over Crookston Wednesday night in the championship contest.

LHS Cagers End Season With Win

Thief River Falls fell behind the Climax Vikings 21-13 at the end of one quarter Wednesday night in the district 31 consolation game before storming back to bury the Vikings 82-69.

The Prowlers out-scored the Vikings 50-30 in the middle two quarters of the ball game to pull out to a 42-39 lead at the half and held onto a 63-51 margin going into the final quarter of action.

The win left the Prowlers' final over-all 1970-71 season record at 12-0. Thief River Falls lost a 76-68 contest in January to Climax.

Rande Smith again led the Prowlers in rebouding as the 6-5 junior pulled down 28 caroms while Pat Hamilton grabbed eight. The Prowlers out-rebounded Climax 47-33 for the game.

The Vikings pulled out to a seven point, 11-4, lead with 4:31 remaining in the first quarter before the Prowlers were able to trim the margin to 13-12 on Dale Hanson's short jump shot with 2:05 remaining.

Climax held the Prowlers to just one point the last two minutes of the first quarter while they ran up eight points to lead by eight, 21-13, at the end of the quarter.

The Prowlers chipped away at the Viking lead until Kent Smith hit from the top of the key with 2:25 remaining in the half to tie the contest 33-all. Rande Smith connected on one of two free throw attempts with 1:51 remaining to give the Prowlers their first lead, 34-33.

Thief River Falls sped to a quick 49-39 lead with 1:21 gone in the third quarter and maintained comfortable leads throughout the third frame as they built their biggest lead of 14 points with 1:11 remaining.

The Vikings trailed by 13 points, 66-53, with 0:51 remaining in the game before they reeled off ten straight points and were behind by only one, 68-67, with 2:56 remaining.

Dale Hanson stopped the Vikings' momentum with a lay-up for a 70-67 Prowler lead with 2:40 remaining as the Prowlers ran up 12 unanswered points for an 80-67 bulge with 1:10 remaining.

Rande Smith was the game's leading scorer with 28 points while Dale Hanson hit for 15, Tom Kays 12 and Mike Hamerlinck 10 points for the Prowlers. Jamie Tronnes led the Vikings with 27 points, followed by Gary Hanson's 22 and Jerome Paulsrud's 11 points.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

Whitey Olson has resigned as Lincoln high school basketball coach after six seasons at the Prowler helm. The announcement was made Thursday following his team's 61-60 loss to Crookston in the district 31 semi-finals Tuesday night.

Coach Olson said, "I can no longer coach (basketball) at Lincoln." Olson cited the conditions as being impossible to continue as head coach of the Prowlers.

Olson said he held no resentment toward anyone and wished the team success in the future, but said while most other teams around the area have two full sized basketball courts to work on and have successful programs in the lower grades, Thief River Falls is falling behind.

"There is no community involvment," Olson stated, "and what put the icing on the cake was the fan turn-out for the Crookston game."

Olson has coached basketball for 14 years, 13 years as head coach. Before coming to Thief River Falls in the 1965-66 season Olson coached at district 29 title winner, Littlefork-Big Falls.

Coach Olson holds a 179-94 win-lost mark in 13 years as head coach, including a 75-50 record at Lincoln. Only two times have Olson-led quints finished below the 500 mark.

While at Lincoln, Olson has claimed three district 31 titles, two region eight runner-up spots, a region consolation title, a district 31 consolation title and a Big Five Conference crown.

Olson plans to continue as the Prowler tennis coach "for the time being".

Prowler cage coach Whitey Olson mentioned the lack of fan support for the Crookston game as the final straw in his resignation from the head coaching position.

The players themselves mentioned the fan support to coach Olson. It was embarrassing for anyone from Thief River Falls to be at the game as the fans from Crookston, East Grand Forks, Warren, Climax and Alvarado easily outnumbered the few Prowler fans.

We imagine a good number of people sat around the next day and questioned coach Olson's moves during the loss to Crookston. These "fans" had stayed home to listen to the game on the radio and from the description of the game on their set they would have done this or that instead of what coach Olson did.

No matter how talented the play by play announcer is, he cannot describe everything that is happening on the court that would prompt a coach into a certain move. A coach has just seconds during a time-out to decide what strategy his team will use and sometimes the plans fold completely, but they have to be made immediately, not the next morning.

It makes people wonder about the fan support in Thief River Falls when Climax and Alvarado send more people to a basketball game than Thief River can muster up.

Northland state junior college sophomore guard Ron Visness was given honorable mention on the All-MJCAA basketball team last week.

Coaches from the 21-member Minnesota junior college athletic association named a 15 member All-State team and gave honorable mention to 24 others.

Visness was a starter both years at Northland and is the third leading scorer in NSJC history with 531 points. Ron is a 1969 graduate of Kennedy high school where he played for coach Louis C. Deere.

All-State players Northland faced during the 1970-71 season include Tim Beaudry, Inver Hills (18.5 average); Karl Beck, Fergus Falls (18.7); Terry Grewe, Brainerd (21.5); Dave Homeky, Hibbing (20.7); Jim Mitchell, Vermillion (20.4); Pablo Ronderos, Crookston (23.2); Tony Pecha, Vermillion (17.7); and Jerry Schwantz, Fergus Falls (22.8).

East Grand Forks will be the heavy favorite when the region eight basketball tournament begins tomorrow night (Tuesday) in the UND fieldhouse.

The Green Wave will take on district 30 champ, Mentor, in the second game tomorrow night and should advance without any difficulty to meet the winner of the first game featuring Littlefork-Big Falls and Stephen. Littlefork should be able to handle Stephen and watch for the Vikings to pull the plug on the Green Wave in the finals Wednesday night.

Larson Rink Wins NSJC Bonspiel

First intramural Northland state junior college curling bonspiel was completed Tuesday. The Steve Larson rink won the eight team tournament by defeating the Bob Lundbohm rink in a closely contested match.

Tom Reierson rink defeated the Tony Madunich rink for third place and the Tim Olson rink was the consolation winner by defeating the Bob Johnson rink.

Because of enthusiastic student interest and participation, the Northland intramural department is planning to hold an annual bonspiel.

CUPS AND RIBBONS cover the walls of the recreation room in the Everett Amundgaard home in Thief River Falls. Everett has won the awards in four years of bench rest shooting. His favorite rifle is the .308 Enfield pictured—somewhat of a crude-looking weapon but highly effective. It weighs about 50 pounds and can place 10-shot groups at 100 yards through a hole you can easily cover with a dime.

A REALLY BIG SHOW will be presented on the stage of the Lincoln senior high school auditorium Friday, Saturday and Monday nights. The cast for the musical "Oklahoma" is assembled on stage during dress rehearsal Monday night. Members of the cast are putting finishing touches on the production this week in preparation for the Friday night curtain at 8 p.m.

For Everett Amundgaard ....

Bench Rest Shooting Is Latest Challenge

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

You might say that Everett Amundgaard of Thief River Falls is a slave to miniaturization; his ambition is to place all 10 bullets of a 10-shot group through the same hole in a paper target. And although he admits that it's probably impossible, he intends to keep on trying to do it.

An avid sportsman for longer than he cares to remember, Everett was bitten by the bench rest shooting bug only recently. He began taking part in the specialized sport only four years ago and goes to about four matches each summer. In that time he has collected enough trophies and ribbons to make his home look as though he manufactures them.

Bench rest shooting is an exacting sport, popular only with the meticulous shooter who strives for a perfection he never expects to attain. To the uninitiated, it may seem almost boring. To the enthusiast, it is more exciting than a kid's first circus.

50-Pound Rifle

It takes special equipment to become a bench rest shooter. For instance, Everett's rifle for the unrestricted class weighs 50 pounds. The extremely heavy barrel is glass bedded in a 6x8 inch timber about four feet long. A portion of the timber has been cut out to permit the trigger of the barreled action to protrude. The action itself is clamped into the heavy timber with heavy blocks of steel and bolts.

Steel rails have been mounted under the stock and these rails ride on a roller mounted on a heavy tripod. Each time the rifle is fired, it recoils on the rollers and returns to position for the next shot. The Enfield action is chambered for the .308 cartridge and the roller apparatus he built on the tripod is what Everett calls his "plumber's nightmare".

No real attempt has been made to make this precision shooting instrument look anything like a rifle. Topped with a long variable power scope it looks almost ridiculous. But take a look at the targets shot with it and the gun assumes some authority. When you can cover a 10-shot group at 100 yards with a dime and not have to worry about covering the frayed edges of the paper, you know some fine shooting has been going on. Everett has such targets.

Down To Fine Points

For bench rest shooters of distinction, the desire for perfection becomes almost fanatical. Rules now require that shooters use five different shell casings to fire their groups. Shooters reload these cases at the matches. They used to take just one pet case and reload it 10 times to shoot one 10-shot group; that's why the five shell rule was adopted. Some even went to the extreme of marking the casing so that it went into the chamber in

Taxpayers Ass'n. Sets Meet

Jerry Deal

First organizational meeting of the Northwest Taxpayers association will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln senior high school auditorium, according to temporary officers of the organization. Guest speaker, will be Jerry Deal, executive secretary of the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association.

A slate of 12 directors will be elected at the meeting and officers will be elected by the directors at a later organizational meeting. Every citizen interested in lowering taxes is invited to attend the meeting at which a history and goals of the local association will be presented. Membership in the association will be available at the meeting and only members will be permitted to vote for directors of the association.

Deal is a 38-year-old Wheaton grain farmer and executive director of an organization dedicated to bringing about real property tax relief. Since November he has been speaking in about three counties a week and enlisting new members. He says the association now is the largest taxpayers group in area in the state and one of the largest in the country.

"We are not trying to incite the people," Deal said in an article in the St. Paul Pioneer Press. "We are trying to educate them and inform them. As a bloc, they could be more powerful than a union. We have to have a freeze on property taxes right now and we have to have the amendment."

The amendment in question is an amendment to the state constitution which would place a limit of one per cent of fair market value on real estate tax levies. Many protestors are reportedly threatening to withhold real estate tax payments on their property until the amendment is adopted.

Deal said the amendment's one per cent ceiling would cut $500 million from the state's income. He said the freeze on real estate taxes would be necessary since an amendment would not be put to a popular vote until the 1972 general election.

Taxpayer dissent is growing and organizations are being formed throughout the state. More than 3,500 persons repor-

Teachers, Board Name Adjustment Panel Members

Appointment of representatives to form an adjustment panel has been made by the Thief River Falls teachers' negotiating council and the local board of education. The two will meet within the next 10 days in an attempt to agree on a third member of the panel.

In a letter to the board of education Tuesday, the teachers' council named A. J. Kramer, Roseau high school faculty member, as its representative on the panel. Today the board of education received confirmation of its appointment of S. O. Johnson of Fosston. He is a former superintendent of schools, is now a member of the board of education and a Fosston businessman.

Should the two representatives fail to agree on a third member within 10 days, that member will be appointed by the district court.

Supt. L. M. Johnson said that contracts will be issued to Thief River Falls faculty members Friday on the basis of the last bonafide offer made by the board of education during negotiations. That offer calls for a $150 annual increase for all faculty members except those on the maximum experience step of the BA and BA plus 15 lanes.

According to law, contracts must be signed and returned or resignations submitted by April 1, or teachers are required to teach the following year under terms of the existing contracts for 1970-71.

The last time an adjustment panel was called in the local district, agreement was reached after the contract deadline and new contracts were issued on the basis of the agreement.

Myster To Teach NSJC Course In Business Law

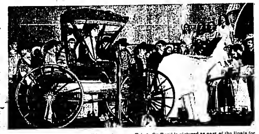
Lloyd Myster has been appointed the instructor in business law for the evening spring quarter offering at Northland state junior college. He will also be teaching business law at Roseau as an evening spring extension course for Northland.

Myster received his B.S. degree and a B.A. degree in accounting from the University of North Dakota and his law degree from the University of North Dakota in 1966. He is also a certified public accountant with business experience in accounting and management.

During 1969-70, Myster was an assistant professor of business at Bemidji state college where he was a professor in business law, income tax, real estate and accounting.

Myster is presently associated with the law firm of Wurst and McDowell in Thief River Falls.

Oklahoma Opens Fri. As Lincoln HS Musical



WHEN THE DIRECTOR starts talking to horses (and they start listening), it's time for the production to be performed. The "Surrey With the Fringe On Top" is pictured as part of the finale for the Lincoln high school musical "Oklahoma". David Morken, director, is shown at far right.

The roaring and rollicking smash broadway musical "Oklahoma!" debuts in Thief River Falls at Lincoln high school Friday night. There will be two more performances March 20 and 22.

Produced by the Lincoln high school concert choir and orchestra, "Oklahoma!" was written by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, II, and is based on the play "Green Grow the Lilacs".

The musical tells the story of the sometimes hilarious, sometimes heart-rending conflicts between the farmers and the ranchers in the early history of Oklahoma.

Hit musical numbers from the production include "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'", "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top", "Kansas City", "People Will Say We're in Love", and, of course, "Oklahoma!"

The role of Laurey is played by Valerie Hanson, a junior at Lincoln high school. This makes her first appearance in a dramatic production. Brian Peterson, who was King Pellinore in last year's production of "Camelot", plays Curly.

The roles of Ado Annie and Will Parker are played by Shelly Worner and Rob Swenson, both juniors. This is the first stage experience for both of them.

Senior Cheri Ripley portrays Aunt Eller. She has had roles in "Camelot" and "The Heiress". Making his first appearance on Lincoln's stage is Lee Sorensen, a junior, who has the role of Andrew Carnes. Senior Dave Cameron plays Jud Fry. Dave has appeared in "Romeo and Juliet", "The Night is my Enemy", "Camelot", "Caesar and Cleopatra", "The Heiress", and "Three Actors and Their Drama".

The role of Ali Hakim is taken by Bruce Anderson, a senior who has seven earlier productions to his credit. Other roles include Cindy Nesland as Gertie Cummings and Don Bren as Cord Elam.

Members of the production staff include David Morken, general director; James Solsten, orchestra director; Kay Novak, choreography; Everett Marshall, lighting; and Michael Tillmann, make-up.

Student production crews include, lighting and sound: Brian Schelin, Bob Craik, Chuck

City Receives Grant For Sewer Work At Airport

Senator Walter F. Mondale and Congressman Bob Bergland announced in Washington, D.C. Monday an environmental protection agency water quality office grant of $16,000 to the city of Thief River Falls.

The money will be used for the construction of an intersector sewer and a secondary sewage treatment plant to serve the city's municipal airport.

The Minnesota department of aeronautics has also approved $5,600 for the work.

The cost to the city will also be $5,600, and this amount has already been budgeted and will be paid out of normal city operating funds.

Trautner-Jurgens Vows Spoken At Naytahwaush

Miss Sharon Trautner and Gene Jurgens exchanged marriage vows recently at an all white wedding at St. Anne's Catholic church at Naytahwaush. Rev. Adrian Fox, O.S.B. officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar graced with white carnations accented with cedar. In contrast, the bride placed a bouquet of red roses on the altar before the Blessed Virgin.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Trautner of Mahnomen. Mr. Jurgens, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jurgens of Leonard, is a member of the teaching staff at Lincoln High school.

Nuptial music was provided by Miss Deanne Redland of Mahnomen, organist, and Mrs. Mary Ann Brisbois of Hibbing, soloist. Serving as acolytes were William Trautner and Curtis and Robert Pawlitschek.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in an empire fashioned, floor-length gown of white crepe which she had designed and made. The gown was styled with a stand-up collar, long fitted sleeves and a gathered skirt that flowed back into a self train. Enhancing the train was a veil of white lace that fell from a Juliette cap of white crepe, which were also designed and made by the bride. To complete her attire, the bride carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations accented with cedar.

Mrs. Carol Griffieth of Denver, Colo., was the bride's personal attendant.

Serving as maid of honor was a close friend of the bride, Miss Nancy Bruggeman. Mrs. Richard Noll, another friend of the bride, was bridesmatron and Renee and Judy Trautner, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. All were floor-length gowns of white crepe styled in Mother Hubbard fashion. In their hair, they wore matching ribbons and each carried a bouquet of white carnations with green cedar.

Wearing similar gowns of white crepe were the flower girls, Paula and Jacqueline Trautner, sisters of the bride, who served as flower girls. They carried miniature bouquets similar to the ones carried by the attendants. Jeff Storhaug of Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom, was the ringbearer.

Best man was James Huseth of Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Robert Borene of Faribault, Glen Klitzke of Jackson, friends of the groom, and Steve Jurgens of Clearbrook, cousin of the groom. Seating the guests were Michael Trautner and Alan Jurgens, brothers of the bride and groom, respectively.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Trautner selected a yellow bonded wool dress accented with brown accessories. The mother of the groom wore a woolen dress in yellow and green complemented by black accessories. Each wore a corsage of white roses and carnations.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception and buffet supper following the ceremony. Serving as reception host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stuvland of Moorhead, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Dale Sanden of Thief River Falls presided at the guest book as Mrs. Betty Langseth of Leonard, Mrs. Bonnie Siverson of Minneapolis and Miss Sue Ludkry of Fond du Lac, Wis., served the punch.

Mrs. Norma Olson of McIntosh and Mrs. Loren Bruggeman of Mahnomen cut the wedding cake baked and decorated by the bride's mother. Mrs. Jacqueline Kreslen poured.

At the gift table was Mrs. Carol Griffith of Denver, Colo. Waitresses were Margie Thielen, Ila Rae Langseth, Barbara Burdick, Ann Marie Snobl, Debbie and Rosalie Paro, Susie Strandamo, Cindy Kjos, Debbie Darco and Phyllis Miller. Several other friends and relatives also assisted with the reception.

Following a wedding trip to Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Jurgens are now at home in this city.

Farm Income Sets New Record In State In 1970

Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald today announced a preliminary estimate that Minnesota cash farm income from marketing of production set a new record in 1970.

He said the estimate of $2,016,268,000 in cash receipts assures Minnesota of retaining its national ranking of fifth among the 50 states in agricultural income production.

The preliminary estimate, compiled by the economic research service of the U.S. department of agriculture in cooperation with the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service, also indicates that Minnesota continues to hold sixth place in livestock and livestock products income, and eighth in crops income.

Livestock and livestock products cash receipts for Minnesota last year are estimated at $1,376,798,000, crops receipts at $639,470,000.

Estimated total receipts represent an increase of $58,819,000 over prior record 1969. This includes a gain of $35,105,000 for livestock and livestock products, and a $23,714,000 gain in income from sale of field crops.

New figures show Minnesota gained sharply and is in challenging position to possibly nudge ahead of Wisconsin into fourth place in livestock and livestock products receipts. Minnesota now trails Wisconsin by only $1,430,000.

Final figures on 1970 farm cash income from marketings, plus government payments, will be issued in July.

California, Iowa, Texas and Illinois rank ahead of Minnesota in farm cash receipts. These top five, Commissioner Wefald stated, account for one third of the total cash receipts of agriculture in all 50 states.

Iowa leads in livestock receipts, followed by Texas, California, Nebraska and Wisconsin. Crops income leaders ahead of Minnesota, respectively, are California, Illinois, Texas, Iowa, North Carolina, Florida and Indiana.

But Commissioner Wefald emphasized that another aspect of the same report dramatizes the continuing price-cost squeeze on the farming industry.

"We rank 27th among the states in gross and net income realized per farm. And, while gross receipts also hit a new high, averaging $18,812 per farm, the net receipts—after subtracting operating costs—slipped to only $5,200 per farm. The gross increased $22 and the net dropped $47 from 1969 figures," Commissioner Wefald reported.

He noted that Minnesota's per farm income was less than the national averages, $19,218 gross and $5,392 net, from marketing of crops and livestock. Arizona leads the nation in per farm receipts with a $125,433 gross and $25,363 net.

Glare From Snow Is Dangerous To Human Vision

Whether sledding, skiing or snowmobiling, winter fun in the snow can be safer and more enjoyable if the participants, both youngsters and adults, take precautions to protect their eyes from winter's elements, the Minnesota Optometric association advises.

Willard Betlock, O.D., president of the association, said, "While most winter sports enthusiasts recognize the importance of wearing goggles to protect the eyes from harsh winds and flying snow, many fail to realize the need to protect their eyes from glare."

It can be up to 10,000 times brighter on the ski slopes and snowmobile runs than indoors. "Eyelids and brows provide natural protection for the eye from overhead light and glare. But when sunlight hits snow and is reflected up into the eye, there is no natural defense against the two most damaging rays—ultraviolet and infrared", Dr Betlock said.

"Actually, the sun need not be shining at all for the rays to be present," he continued, "since most of the ultraviolet rays entering the eye are reflected from the snow itself." A concentration of these rays may burn the delicate inner lining of the eye, resulting in pain and possible permanent eye damage.

"Professionally-prescribed, impact-resistant, tinted glass lenses are the most effective in absorbing injurious invisible light rays, although most ready-made ski goggles have plastic lenses," Dr. Betlock said.

While all sunglasses reduce light entering the eye, not all screen out infrared and ultraviolet rays. "The best color for sunglasses or goggles for winter sports enthusiasts is a neutral gray that reduces all wavelengths about the same amount. With bright sun on heavy snow, a dark filter which would cut out 80 to 90 per cent of the light is necessary. Many expert skiers carry several pairs of goggles with different tints to enable them to adapt to varying light conditions. A yellow tint may sharpen shadows and aid in judging surface contour on cloudy days," he said.

A new lens developed for outdoor wear is the photochromic gray, which changes its density as the light increases and decreases. "However," said Dr. Betlock, "it does not darken enough for the brightest conditions. The double gradient density lens is excellent for use by skiers and snowmobilers as it has a lighter area in the center, sufficient to shut out average glare but light enough to ensure good visibility."

To maintain a wide, unobstructed field of vision, skiers and snowmobilers should wear large frames, yet side pieces should not block side vision. If possible, the goggles or sunglasses should conform to the facial contour to protect the eyes from wind. "Frames should fit snugly over the bridge of the nose and the ears to prevent them from slipping or falling off while the wearer is going at high speeds," Dr. Betlock said.

For effective vision, persons wearing corrective lenses should have their prescription ground into the sunglasses or goggles. Contact lens wearers should use tinted goggles or ground sunglasses over their lenses to reduce exposure to wind and sun.

Whether sledding down a neighborhood hill, skiing at Quadna or snowmobiling across a snow-covered field, both youngsters and adults should be certain to protect their eyes from wind and glare.

Taxpayer Group Plans Meeting Here On Tues.

tedly turned out for the St. Cloud meeting of the Central Minnesota Taxpayers association, a group which includes three counties. That association reportedly has 20,000 members and is affiliated with Deal's group.

Deal's message is reported to be the same wherever he goes.

"Why are our real estate taxes so high?" he asks. "To a great extent it is our own fault. It is also the fault of the school districts and the town and county officials. It could have been prevented if we had taken an active interest before things got this bad.

"Taxes must be lowered. Otherwise they will take your home; they will take your farm, they will take your business. There is no limit to where taxes will go."

Deal believes that property taxes should finance services for property, including police and fire prevention. He does not believe they should be used for "people programs" such as welfare, health and education projects.

According to a study report issued by the Minnesota Taxpayers association—the oldest and perhaps the best organized taxpayer organization in the state—property taxes payable in 1970 amounted to $873.4 million, with school district levies accounting for about 70 per cent of the total.

Deal will explain the objectives and purposes of his organization at the public meeting Tuesday evening.

Rep. Bergland Announces Plan For Internship

U.S. Representative Bob Bergland has announced the establishment of a 12 week summer internship program in his Washington office. The program, which will be conducted between June 14 and September 3, is for college students in their sophomore through senior years.

In making the announcement, Bergland said: "This internship program is designed to bring government closer to the people—especially young people—by offering them a greater knowledge of the workings of Congress and the federal government. It is our hope to assist, in some measure, in the training of good citizens and the leaders of tomorrow," he said.

Although primarily for students who both live in and attend school in the 7th District, Bergland said that students from the district who attend colleges in other areas, and students from other areas who attend school in the 7th district, "will be given every consideration."

Details on the summer internship program can be obtained in college registrars offices or by writing to Bergland's Washington office—1008 Longworth House Office Building. Applications must be postmarked no later than April 20.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I have been listening to the radio broadcasts, and reading the news items in the Times relating to the controversy over excessive taxes, and teachers salaries in our city and in other towns. I cannot help but feel that the teachers are using poor judgment in asking for salary increases this year. I also feel that it is equally poor judgment for the school board to offer a salary increase of one hundred fifty dollars for this year. The salaries should have remained in the same amount until next year, and without any change in fringe benefits, until we see just what future economic conditions will be in the near future.

According to what has been said and written, the teachers are now getting annual salaries of from seven thousand and up to ten thousand dollars, with principals and superintendents getting from fifteen thousand and up to twenty-five thousand dollars per year, and in addition thereto all sorts of fringe benefits. It would seem that both the teachers and the school board should give a little serious thought to the welfare of the public, and especially to the welfare of the farmers and the working people who must help to pay the tax bill.

I am told that there is now a large supply of teachers, and that there is also a large number of applicants whenever a teaching vacancy occurs in our schools. The teachers cannot now in any manner justify salary increases if they also take into consideration the income of the rest of our people.

This city and school district constitute a large area and includes a lot of farms and farmers. These farmers and their farms will have to pay a large part of the taxes arising from excessive salaries and school expenses. Most of the farmers now have an investment of about fifty thousand in land, tractors, combines and swathers and other heavy tractor machinery. I am told by many farmers that when fall comes they are mighty glad if they have a net farm income of three or four thousand dollars for their labor and investment during the year.

The teachers have a net salary income for nine months work of from seven thousand to ten thousand dollars, with twice that amount for the principals and superintendents. The school board should wake up, take a good look at the situation and see what is going on. Are you going to tax the farmers earning about four thousand dollars net in order to pay salaries of ten thousand dollars or more to the teachers for about nine months work?

I want to say most emphatically that it is time for the farmers to wake up, have their say, and make themselves felt. In my opinion the farmers, and the working men in overalls constitute the two most important groups in our society. They do the hard manual labor, work in the dust and dirt, and ride the tractor all day and produce the food to support and keep all our people alive.

A wild, reckless spending spree is now going on, but it is not the teachers and school boards alone that are at fault. The people themselves are also to blame when they go the polls and vote for a bond issue which they know the community cannot afford. If you want to spend public money recklessly and needless then you must also know that soon the day will come when you must pay.

President Nixon wants to keep the war going, sacrifice our young men, and spend billions in Vietnam. Governor Anderson wants to spend seven hundred sixty-five million dollars in Minnesota. So long as the people permit such reckless spending they must know the tax collector will bring you the tax bill. There will be unemployment and hard times for all.

Thanking the Times and its editor for space for these comments, I am,

Very truly yours
H. O. Berve
Thief River Falls, Minn

Dear Sir:

Not as a Democrat who enjoys seeing squabbles in the Republican Party, but as a citizen who firmly believes in the two party system, I must applaud the recent initiative demonstrated by the Minnesota Young Republicans.

By sponsoring a low-cost dinner, featuring former Senator Goodell, on the same evening as the higher priced dinner for Governor Reagan, they provide an important and dual service to their party. First, they offer, to a larger number of people, the opportunity to participate in a party function. Too often both political parties sponsor events which become exclusive because of their cost. Second, they provide the platform for a differing point of view—an action essential for the preservation of a viable democracy.

Even if I were a Republican, I would have to take exception to the unjustified criticism being heaped on the YGOP. They should be praised, not criticized, for their service.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Berglond

Reagan To Speak At Fund Dinner For Republicans

Minnesota Republicans are going straight to the grass roots to raise money for their annual fund raising dinner on March 26 at the St. Paul auditorium, according to J. Robert Stassen, So St. Paul and "Operation Comeback" dinner chairman

California Governor Ronald Reagan will be the guest speaker at the March 26 Republican fund raiser. First elected in 1966 by a 1 million vote majority, Reagan, 60, was recently re-elected to his second four year term. The former movie star and sports announcer will be introduced by former Minnesota Governor Harold LeVander

Special recognition will be paid to former Lt. Governor James Goetz and former Attorney General Douglas Head at the dinner.

"We depend heavily on the 'little guy' to support the Republican party in Minnesota. Last year more than 17,000 people contributed an average of $40 each to the dinner. This year we hope for a similar response," Stassen said

"We encourage large contributions as an investment in good government, but there is plenty of room for the small contributor to this dinner and to our annual neighbor-to-neighbor fund drive. Last year the Republican party raised $1,200,000 from about 84,000 Minnesotans. That's an average of $14 each," he noted.

Stassen questioned the amount of out of state money contributed to the coffers of Minnesota Democrats. "How much out of state money was raised by Hubert Humphrey and others in the 1970 Minnesota elections for use by Humphrey and other DFL candidates?," Stassen asked.

"It is time for an appraisal of the sources of these funds to make sure there is no similar situation to the Boyle contribution," Stassen said, in reference to the recent indictment of United Mine Workers President, Tony Boyle, for an alleged embezzled $50,000 donated to the 1968 Humphrey presidential campaign.

Public Hearing Set For Lake

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to discuss a proposal to manage Rice Lake in Faribault county primarily for waterfowl and other wildlife.

The hearing will be conducted by representatives of the Department's game and fish division and will be held on Thursday, March 18, at 7 p.m. in the Winnebago American Legion Hall.

Designation of the lake for wildlife purposes allows the Department to carry out management practices that will benefit waterfowl.

Rice lake is a marginal fish lake and in many respects is better suited for waterfowl and other game species.

The lake periodically freezes out and presently has a population of rough fish.

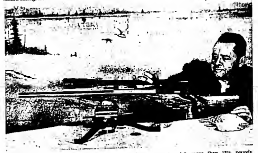
ALWAYS ALERT for new ideas which could improve his shooting performance, Everett Amundgaard pages through a recent magazine in his basement workshop. He has a number of guns which he enjoys shooting, but favors bench rest shooting in an attempt to "put all the bullets in one hole".

IN HIS WORKSHOP, Everett Amundgaard operates his reloading press to seat a bullet in a loaded casing. He makes his own bullets from metal wire and, when taking part in bench rest shooting matches, reloads his five pet cases at the site of the match over and over again.



HEAVY VARMINT RIFLE is this .222 Sako action mounted on a stock made by Everett Amundgaard. In bench rest shooting, a rifle in the heavy varmint class may not weigh more than 13½ pounds. Background for this photo is a mural painted on the basement wall of the Amundgaard home.

Shooting From Bench Rest Is Exacting Sport

exactly the same position each time. Many still follow that practice

Everett himself uses only five pet cases at a match. He isn't thoroughly convinced that other cases wouldn't perform as well, but he isn't about to give his competitors an edge just to find out if they will. Besides, all the other shooters only use five casings, and psychology has to be a big factor in precision shooting.

For the shooter who likes to burn some powder, hit what he's aiming at, but have a little more mobility than the 50-pound unrestricted rifle allows, there are other bench rest classes. The heavy varmint class is for rifles of any caliber weighing a maximum of 13½ pounds (unloaded). The sporter class is for rifles of larger than .22 caliber and weighing less than 10½ pounds.

A match usually consists of five 10-shot groups at 100 yards and a like amount at 200 yards. At a two-day shoot a contestant will fire between 100 and 150 rounds in competition.

Only One Phase

To Everett, however, like to most bench rest shooters, punching holes in paper targets is only one phase of the sport. Equally enjoyable, if not more so, is building the rifle, developing the most accurate loads, experimenting with variables and generally tinkering to develop just a fraction more accuracy than has been possible before.

Everett makes many of his own bullets, pressing them out from metal wire. He re-forms and modifies shell casings, experiments with different powder loads and different bullet seating depths. The more of the work he does himself, the more satisfaction he derives from his successes. He now has a lathe to turn, thread and chamber barrels, his next project.

Never content to make shooting a summer only hobby, he takes part in the winter .22 shoots sponsored by the Thief River Rifle club, of which he is secretary. The club shoots every Thursday night from 7 to 10 p.m. at the indoor range above the warming area of the old city arena. Don Toomey is president of the club

.22 Target Shooting

In the .22 competition, shooters fire 10 shots from each of standing, sitting, kneeling and prone positions. Perfect score is 400. Scores of 380 or higher qualify the shooter for Master status; 370 to 379 rates Expert status. Below these are the Sharpshooter and Marksman divisions. Distance from firing line to target is 50 feet.

Started on March 24, 1927, the rifle club will be 44 years old next week. Membership dues are $2 per year and allow the members to use the club's firing range facilities located three miles west and one-half mile south of St Hilaire. There will be six bench rests at the range this year.

"Sure, we can use more members," Everett says about the rifle club. "Shooting is a lot of fun and a really enjoyable hobby. It's too bad that more people don't take part in it. We'd like to help any of our members who are willing to learn. A person doesn't have to be an expert to get a lot of satisfaction from target shooting."

Enthused as he is about competitive target shooting, Everett still enjoys hunting experiences as well. He uses either a 30-06 Enfield or a Savage chambered for the .300 Winchester magnum when he hunts deer, elk or moose. When gunning for birds he uses a 16 gauge Browning automatic. And when varmint hunting, including crows, he takes the .222 Sako for which he built his own custom stock

Speaking of crows, a few are starting to find their way back to this part of the country about now, and...

...Hey, Ev, wait a minute. I'll get my gun and go with you.

Kelly Objects To Extending Of Seventh District

Representative William Helly of District 66B, Polk and Red Lake counties, has spoken out in opposition to the congressional reapportionment plan which would redraw the 7th Congressional district to extend it to the outskirts of the Twin Cities.

The proposal was passed by the House of Representatives on Thursday, March 11, reportedly on a partisan vote of the members.

Rep. Helly's main objection to the House-approved reapportionment plan is that it compounds the problem of the trend of population shifts toward the suburban metropolitan areas by adding Anoka county to the 7th District, which is 79.8 per cent rural in composition.

"Anoka county is estimated to be an area to have the greatest potential for growth during the next decade," commented Kelly. "It is projected that the population there will increase to more than 200,000 by the late 1970's.

At present, the 7th Congressional district is one of only 36 remaining rural congressional districts in the country. Should it be placed with Anoka county, the degree to which the interests of residents of smaller agricultural communities are represented would, over the first several years of the decade, begin to diminish as the suburban population increases to a point at which it will total more than that of the rural portion of the district.

On the other side, for the first several years of the decade, the people of Anoka county would be at a disadvantage with respect to the present population distribution which is largely in the rural areas. "The interests of the people of the suburban area would not be well served by this arrangement," emphasized Rep. Helly.

"Many of their occupations are not the same as those residents of the 7th district. And certainly, suburban life is not the same as that which exists in most of the present rural 7th Congressional District.

"Indeed, I do not know how any state legislator from the present 7th Congressional district could support this bill," exclaimed Rep. Helly.

Rep Kelly explained that the legislature is reapportioning congressional districts because it is required to do so. He emphasized that the legislature should provide for community of interest within districts; ease of internal communication, and in the case of the 7th Congressional District, Rep. Helly affirmed his belief that the legislature should permit rural agricultural interests to be adequately represented by a Congressman whose responsibilities are not split between considerations for metropolitan concerns and agricultural issues.

"This is exactly what would result if the plan supported by the Conservative House caucus is enacted," noted Helly. "It is an unfair proposal for the people of the 7th District and for the people of Anoka county, and I hope it will be substantially altered before final reapportionment is approved.

Economist Gives His Reasons For High Tax Bills

If you've been wondering why Minnesota taxes appear a bit stiff, a University of Minnesota economist says there are three basic reasons.

Minnesota has more than its share of both children and senior citizens, which creates a heavier tax burden. In addition, the population density in Minnesota is low, which means that road construction and maintenance costs are higher per $1,000 of personal income.

The largest public expenditures for state and local governments are for education, highways and welfare—in that order. Minnesota's per capita expenditures are higher than the national average in all three categories—with the largest difference for education and highways, says John Helmberger, agricultural and applied economist at the University of Minnesota. He points out that Minnesota ranked eighth among the states in public education expenditures, ninth in public welfare expenses and 13 in highway costs in 1967.

Minnesota's per capita public expenditures for education are greater than the U.S. average for four reasons:

— The state has proportionately more children than the U. S. average. Minnesota had about 73 children 0 to 18 years of age per 100 population aged 18-65 in 1967—12 per cent higher than the national average of 65 children.

— Minnesota has a better than average educational system. Salary averages and per cent of teachers with at least standard credentials are both above the national average. "Minnesota can't get Minnesota teachers on Mississippi salaries," Helmberger says.

— A larger per cent of Minnesota youth attend college, and a larger per cent attend public colleges, compared to nationwide figures.

— The migration from Minnesota's many farms and small towns to metropolitan areas plus the flight from the city to suburbs has necessitated building many new schools while others are not filled to capacity. This has increased the cost of education.

Differences in highway expenditures among states are due to differences in population density plus higher winter and spring maintenance costs due to plowing, salting and repair of frost bumps and chuckholes.

In 1960 the U. S. population density was over 18 per cent greater than Minnesota's. However, this figure actually understates the low density in Minnesota, Helmberger emphasizes. He points out that the population of the Twin Cities metropolitan area is very large in relation to the population of the state.

Minnesota's per capita welfare expenditures were $4.68 in 1967, or over 11 per cent greater than the U. S. average. The ratio of Minnesota citizens over 65 compared to those 18-65 was 21.4 or 25 per cent greater than the U. S. average of 17.4 in 1967.

Nursing Program Offered Through Army Recruiter

"Registered nurses who have graduated from an associate degree program in nursing and are now enrolled as full-time students in a baccalaureate or higher degree program in nursing which is accredited by the national league for nursing are now eligible to apply for commissioned officer status through participation in the registered nurse student nurse program of the army nurse corps", according to Army Recruiting Sergeant Ronald Anderson in Thief River Falls.

Under this program, qualified nurses, receive the salary and allowances of an officer in the Army Nurse corps. Formerly nurses in this category were only eligible to receive the salary and allowances of a private. Additional benefits include free medical and dental care, shopping privileges at military installations and a paid vacation.

"In this program you are commissioned as an officer in the ANC, but you remain as a full-time student at the school you have chosen," Sgt. Anderson said. "You pay your tuition from the salary you receive. If you have participated for 12 months or less, you agree to continue in the ANC for 2 years. If you have participated in this program for more than 12 months and up to 24 months, you agree to continue in the ANC for three years."

Army financial assistance programs are offered to young women and young men. One of these programs may help a student complete studies for a diploma or a degree or to go on for advanced professional education. For more information, contact Sergeant Anderson at 109 East 2nd Street in Thief River Falls, or call him (collect) at 681-1154.

Mondale Cites Veteran's Task In Finding Work

Unemployment is a problem across the country, but it is a particularly severe problem for our veterans, especially those recently separated from military service, states Sen. Walter Mondale.

"The statistics show that 9.4 per cent of our veterans between the ages of 20 and 29 are without jobs. The figure is 25 per cent higher for veterans in this age group than for non-veteran males in the same bracket," he said.

"Although there are no official statistics on the unemployment of disabled veterans, they have an extraordinarily difficult time finding work.

"It is a personal tragedy for any individual to be unable to find a job. But when that individual has just spent 12 months or more risking his life in support of his country, being unemployed is a terrible injustice," Sen. Mondale added.

"To help correct this injustice, I have introduced legislation to provide work in the public sector for unemployed veterans. It requires that a portion of the funds appropriated under the emergency employment act of 1971 be used specifically to create jobs for veterans.

"There is a good deal said these days about supporting our troops. Yet our concern for their welfare too often seems to stop when they leave the battlefield.

"No matter what our differences are about the war, we have a national obligation to do everything in our power to see our veterans settled back into civilian life with decent jobs. In light of what these men have done for their country, it is the least we can do," he said.

If you're going to spend more than 89 bucks for a mattress and it isn't Posture Bond, it's only half a mattress.

If you've harbored any thoughts about spending $89.95 or more for a mattress, you've probably looked over the advertising of the major brands. Manufacturer #1 plays up his individual coil springs as his big advantage. Remember the commercial where the two big barrels didn't clonk together on this brand of mattress? Or, more recently, the cut-away view showing how the springs react to every luscious curve of the reclining (and very shapely) model? Very convincing. In fact, we're sold on the idea of individually conforming coils as being a Good Thing for comfort.

Manufacturer #2 pushes his "firm, posture-supportive" theme illustrating it with the gal with the aching back. After some extensive research of our own we also believe that firm support is mandatory for a very restful night's sleep . . . another Good Thing.

Firm support. Comfort. Up to now in order to get both you'd have to buy two of the top selling mattresses (and end up with a pretty weird looking bed). And you still wouldn't get the combined benefits of both. So we're offering you a third alternative — the Posture Bond mattress from King Koil.

The Posture Bond mattress has coils that are permanently bonded, both top and bottom, in a honeycomb arrangement. And hidden in that simple little sentence is the crux of the Posture Bond story. Bonding means that there are no wired-together coils in a Posture Bond mattress . . . so each coil can react individually to your every move. The unique honeycomb coil arrangement eliminates the ridges and valleys of mattresses where the coils are wired together in rows. So you get more over-all firm support. There it is. Firm support. Comfort. You'd have to buy two of the top-selling mattresses to get what Posture Bond gives you for the price of one. And that's certainly something to sleep on.

We're making it a Posture Bond world. Visit the King Koil dealer nearest your world. Soon.

Voyageurs Park Bill Introduced

A bill to facilitate the donation of state and county lands to the federal government in order to establish Voyageurs National park was revealed Tuesday by Commissioner of Natural Resources Robert Herbst.

At a press conference in the Capitol, Herbst and the bill's chief authors explained that the legislation was needed to satisfy the provisions of the federal act creating the park and to meet requirements of state law.

The bill withdraws state lands from the Kabetogama State Forest and directs the Governor to donate these to the federal government for park purposes.

Trust fund lands will be condemned by the Minnesota Commissioner of Administration along with lands owned by local units of government and then donated to the federal government.

The Minnesota Supreme Court has ruled that condemnation satisfies state constitutional "public sale" requirements. The bill provides for an appropriation necessary to acquire both the trust fund lands and those owned by local units of government.

The amount was left open, however, until more precise appraisal figures are arrived at.

Herbst said the bill was drawn by the Attorney General's office and satisfies all the legal requirements of both state and federal law.

The bill has unusually strong bipartisan support. Its main authors are Senator Stanley Holmquist, majority leader in the Senate, and Representative Tom Newcome, chairman of the Minnesota Resources Commission.

Other authors include Senators Edward Novak and Gene Mammenga and Representatives Irv Anderson, Richard Fitzsimmons, Willard Munger and Jack Fena.

Is This Enough Punishment?

A snowmobiler was arrested for chasing and killing a fox. The local conservation officer arrested the Gaylord, Minnesota man after the offense in Sibley Township was reported by five persons witnessing the action. The Gaylord man was given a choice of ten days in jail or a $25 fine. We feel that persons harassing and killing animals should also have his snowmobile confiscated, just as in hunting violations where a man's gun and car may also be confiscated.

Punishments imposed upon violators are the best "guides" to a violator's future hunting practice if he is unable to learn by good sportsmanship and rules set up by our society.

Due . . laws should be revised to aid Judges in applying punishments, and new laws written to provide protection for society and progress. Outdated laws simply don't fit today's crime nor criminal. It isn't the Judge alone . . that decides punishments. It belongs to the lawmakers to correct obsolete or inadequate punishments to fit the crime.

Today, it appears all one has to do to have his own way, is to pay a measley fine . . now he can do it again!

Snowmobiles Trails

Fifty of the 55 forests in Minnesota have snowmobile trails according to the reports of the Natural Resources. Most of the longer trails do have some shelters which may be used for rent and lunch stops too. Some trails are six to forty miles long. William Aultfather, director of lands and forestry stated snowmobiles should be advised to remain on the established trails instead of to unfamiliar terrain.

Grouse Enjoying Winter Weather

Minnesota ruffed grouse are enjoying favorable weather conditions this winter, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Reports from game research personnel at the Cloquet Forest experiment station and other northern locations indicate that grouse have found the abundance of soft snow to be ideal roosting places.

The birds dive into the snow and tunnel back three to six feet where they are virtually immune from predators. In addition, temperatures are often 50 to 60 degrees warmer under the snow than at the surface six inches above.

The birds often remain in their snow roosts 23 hours out of the day, emerging once or twice a day to feed. During the evening feeding period they gorge themselves as rapidly as possible, usually on flower buds of aspen trees, and then return to their snow roost.

Crusting is beginning to occur and the birds are therefore starting to roost in trees or on the surface of the snow. By now, however, warmer weather and a decline in predators through winter mortality and emigration, gives the grouse good odds to survive to the breeding season.

If the grouse winter food source of aspen buds has been adequate and the favorable nesting conditions occur this spring, hunters can look forward to a good population of grouse again next fall.

University of North Dakota is a charter member of the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, one of the nation's strongest NCAA College Division circuits. The loop was organized in 1921 and competition began in 1922.

Lincoln Quint Ends Cage Season 12-9

Prowler basketball coach Whitey Olson said a coach is never satisfied with his team's season unless his team wins it all.

The head Lincoln cage mentor said he wished his team could have done better than their third place finish in the district 31 tournament but he thought his squad improved 100 per cent over the course of the season.

"We started the season very inexperienced with only two starters returning from last year's squad and only one of those boys played in the same position he held before," said Olson. "Dale Hanson was a starting forward for us last season but Mike Hamerlinck was our center and before the year was out Mike was shifted back to guard," Olson noted.

"We had our ups and downs during the year and we started the season with a tough opponent in Breckenridge when they were rated 11th in the class A poll," said Olson. "We had a fine stretch during the season when we won four in a row during the middle of the season. I think we played real well against Ada and our second half against Warren was excellent. Our best piece of basketball for the year was the second quarter against Fergus Falls," said the coach.

"Our shooting was a big factor in the beginning of the year when we hit about 26 per cent of our shots," stated Olson, "but we came around at the end of the season and ended up hitting over 40 per cent of our shots from the field."

"Thief River Falls has always had trouble getting guards," stated Olson, "and we did have trouble bringing the ball down the court this year. Kent Smith played well for us although he was inexperienced as a sophomore and he was troubled by a leg injury all season. Hamerlinck adjusted to his new position real well and was coming around at the end of the year for us," Olson said.

"Rande Smith did an excellent job for us and rebounded real well," the coach said. Smith pulled down 332 rebounds in 20 games and averaged 15.5 caroms per conference game. Former Prowler Sheldon Joppru holds the conference record for rebounds with an average of 15.8 per contest.

"I thought Dale Hanson played real well for us offensively," said Olson, "and people like Pat Hamilton filled in well for us and Mark Thyren fulfilled the job of captain as it should be done." "Our JV team did a fine job for us and people like Tom Kays should be able to help the varsity next season," Olson said.

Senior forward Dale Hanson led the club in scoring for the 1970-71 season as he scored 415 points for a 19.7 average. Rande Smith was the only other player averaging in double figures with a 16.2 average in one less game than Hanson.

Rande Smith was by far the most effective rebounder for the Prowlers with his 334 caroms while Hanson grabbed 223 and Hamerlinck 147 rebounds during the year.

Hamerlinck led the squad in free throw shooting with a 71.7 percentage as the senior guard made 38 of 53 attempts from the gift line. Senior captain Mark Thyren hit 68.4 per cent of his shots from the free throw line.

Junior Craig Knutson was the leading percentage shooter from the field as he connected on 67 per cent of his shots, although he appeared in just seven games. Dale Hanson was the leading shooter for the starting five as he hit on 166 of 324 shots from the field for 51 per cent.

Sophomore Kent Smith was the assist leader with 68 assists in 20 games. Hanson was credited with 51 and Hamerlinck had 49 assists during the season.

Hanson logged the most time for the Prowler cagers this season as he played 578 minutes in 21 games. Rande Smith played 560 minutes in 20 contests and Mike Hamerlinck put in 560 minutes in 21 games.

The Prowlers shot 41 per cent from the field for the season on 510 of 1,244 shots from the floor. The Prowler opponents hit on 484 of 1,295 for 37.4 per cent. From the free throw line the Prowlers hit on 344 of 561 for 61.2 per cent with the opponents hitting 64.5 per cent of their shots from the charity stripe. The Prowlers outscored their opponents for the season 1,364 to 1,261. In the rebound department the Lincoln quint pulled down 967 caroms to their opponents' 668 rebounds in 21 games.

Only six times in the history of the NFL has a team gone an entire game without attempting a forward pass.

Wave and Vikings Meet For Region 8 Cage Title

East Grand Forks and Littlefork-Big Falls advanced into the finals of the region eight basketball tournament with first round wins last night in the UND fieldhouse.

The Green Wave bettered Mentor 97-58 and Littlefork-Big Falls did away with Stephen 59-43 in last night's semi-final play.

The championship contest is set for 8:30 this evening (Wednesday) in a re-match of the 1968 title game which found "East Side" defeating the Vikings 81-69 for a state tourney berth.

Stephen took an early first quarter lead in last night's first game against Littlefork-Big Falls as senior guard Phil Chwialkowski scored three free throws for a 3-0 Tiger lead with 6:53 remaining in the opening stanza.

The Tigers held onto their slim lead until Tom Morris stuck in a rebound for the Vikings to give Littlefork-Big Falls its first lead, 11-10, with 3:55 remaining in the first quarter.

Morris gave the Vikings a five-point, 17-12 lead with 1:19 remaining before Chwialkowski countered twice from long range to trim the Viking lead to 17-16 at the first quarter break.

Stephen held its last lead of the contest on Scott Laudal's short jump shot with 7:16 left in the half to give the Tigers an 18-17 advantage.

Stephen managed to tie the score three times before falling behind 30-27 at the half. Chwialkowski tied the contest for the last time, 34-34, with 5:18 remaining in the third quarter before Stephen's outside shooting eye faltered and the Vikings' advantage in size paid off as Littlefork-Big Falls led by six, 44-38, going into the final eight minutes.

The Tigers continued to have trouble hitting the bucket in the final quarter as Stephen managed just five points in the final period. Littlefork-Big Falls' Tom Morris was the game's high point man as he collected 13 field goals and two free throws for 28 points. Walt Jaskkole also reached double figures for the Vikings with 11 points. Phil Chwialkowski dumped in 18 points for Stephen while Jeff Russell added 12.

District 31 champion East Grand Forks has little trouble with Mentor in last night's second contest as five "East Siders" reached double figures.

Mentor actually managed to hold two leads on the Wave as the Trojans bounced back from a 5-0 deficit to lead 6-5 and 7-6 and force Green Wave coach Larry Selk to call a time out with 4:06 remaining in the first quarter.

East Side came back to score eight straight points to lead 16-7 with 2:20 remaining as they coasted to a 23-12 first quarter lead.

Junior Kurt Knoff showed flashes of the form that won him most valuable player honors in the Big Five last season as a sophomore as the rangy forward led his team to a 36-12 lead with 4:51 remaining. Knoff has been bothered with an injured heel most of the season and is just returning to form as he collected 18 points.

"East Side" romped to a 53-28 lead at the half before rolling to a 34-point lead going into the final quarter, 76-42. The Trojans managed to salvage something from the evening as they held onto the ball in a stall for the last 1:06 of the game with the Green Wave fans chanting "we want a 100." (points)

Mentor's Dave Super led all scorers with 24 points while Mark Austin chipped in 15 for the Trojans. Don Johnson led the Green Wave with 19 points followed by Knoff's 18, Rip Thompson 15, Scott Gravseth 14 and Stan Leach with 10.

Mentor and Stephen will meet for consolation honors tonight beginning at 7 p.m.

NSJC Enters State Puck Tourney Fri.

Northland state junior college has entered the first Minnesota junior college athletic association hockey tournament.

The first state hockey tourney will be played at International Falls with the host college being Rainy River state junior college. The dates for the tourney are March 19 and 20.

Four junior colleges are entered: Itasca (Grand Rapids), Lakewood (White Bear Lake), Rainy River (International Falls) and Northland (Thief River Falls). In the first session (March 19), Itasca will play Lakewood at 6 p.m. At 9 p.m. Northland will play Rainy River. Consolation and championship games will be played on March 20 with the consolation game scheduled for 6 p.m. and the championship game to be played at 8 p.m.

Coach Lund of Northland feels his team can make its first season a success with a good showing to this tournament.

During the tournament, Minnesota junior college athletic directors will meet to plan next years hockey program. Probably four more Minnesota junior colleges will be entering hockey competition next year so scheduling will take a great deal of time at this meeting.

The advance sale of tickets for the Minnesota junior college hockey tournament is progressing very well and officials at Rainy River junior college expect the tourney to be a tremendous success.

Warnings Issued On Dog Chasing Deer In State

Enforcement officials at the Minnesota department of natural resources asked dog owners today to keep their pets under control to prevent them from chasing deer.

Don Fultz, director of enforcement and field service, said crusting conditions are appearing in widespread areas of the state with the onset of warmer weather making it easy for dogs to run deer.

"It's the same old problem that we have practically every year," said Fultz. "The dogs can run along on the surface of the crusted snow while the deer with their sharp hooves break through."

Frequently, he said, deer are simply run until they drop dead of exhaustion while in other cases the dogs attack the deer causing extensive bleeding and eventual death.

Conservation officers are required under the law to shoot any dogs they sight chasing deer. Private citizen may shoot dogs "caught in the act" also, but Fultz said anyone shooting a dog should make certain the animal is actually chasing a deer and not just following a fox or coyote trail.

"Fox and coyote hunters complain that their dogs are sometimes shot while running game by persons who mistakenly think the dog is after deer," he explained.

Freshman swimmer Eric Uthus of Minot, N. D., holds the University of North Dakota 200-yard freestyle record of 2:00.6.

RECEIVING SPECIAL recognition for their play during the 1970-71 Prowler basketball season were these three members of the squad. Dale Hanson, left, was voted by his teammates as being the most valuable player on the team and will receive an MVP trophy purchased from locker room contributions by the players. Rande Smith, center, was voted to be next year's Prowler basketball captain and Mike Hamerlinck, right, will receive a trophy from the Jewel Box for leading the squad in free throw shooting during the season. Hanson and Smith were also honored last week as they were selected to the Big Five All-Conference team.

EGF Dominates Big Five Conference Statistics

East Grand Forks placed three men on the Big Five All-Conference team, including the league's most valuable player, while Thief River Falls placed two performers on the team and Crookston, Warren and Climax each placed one man on the squad.

Junior center Rande Smith and senior forward Dale Hanson were the Prowler eagers chosen for the team with Smith being the only underclassman on the eight man squad.

Don Johnson of East Grand Forks was picked as most valuable player for the 1970-71 season with Scott Gravseth and Mark Syrstad of "East Side" also making the team.

Others named to the All-Conference squad were Bob Menzhuber of Crookston, Mark Maruska, Warren, and Gary Hanson, Climax. Gravseth and Menzhuber were repeaters from the 1969-70 team.

Named to the All-Conference team as honorable mention picks were Jim Hill from Warren and Wayne Kobbervig and Jamie Tronnes of Climax. Kobbervig is the only other junior on the team besides Smith.

"East Side" finished the conference season with a perfect 8-0 record, followed by Thief River Falls and Crookston. The Prowlers finished the conference campaign with a 5-3 mark while Crookston was 4-4 in Big Five play. Climax finished their conference season with a 2-5 mark while Warren finished in the cellar while holding a 1-6 record.

"East Side" finished their regular season with a 16-2 record in all games while Crookston was 13-5, Thief River Falls 10-7, Climax 11-7 and Warren 9-9.

Kurt Knoff, although injured most of the season, retained his individual scoring title as the junior from "East Side" finished with a 24-point average in three games. Teammate Don Johnson was second in the scoring parade with a 22.3 average while Dale Hanson was third with a 19.3 mark and Rande Smith was right behind Hanson with an 18.5 average in six conference games.

Knoff also led the league in shooting percentage with a .644 mark from the field. "East Side's" Scott Gravseth led the conference in assists with an average of 9.6 per game.

Rande Smith led the Big Five in rebounding with an average of 15.5 per game while Dale Hanson of the Prowlers was ranked fourth among rebounders with an average of 10.2 per contest. Smith also ranked among the leaders in free throw shooting percentage as he hit on 35 of 52 from the gift line for a .672 per cent. Crookston's Tom Smerud led the conference in free throw shooting with a .709 mark while connecting on 17 of 24.

As a team, East Grand Forks finished on top in every category. The Green Wave shot 48 per cent from the field, ahead of Crookston's 44 per cent and Thief River Falls with a .396 mark. The Prowlers were on target with 139 of 351 shots from the floor during conference games.

The Wave led the conference in free throw percentage as they hit on 115 of 186 for 62 per cent. The Prowlers finished second in the free throw department with 98 of 162 going through the net for a .605 mark.

In the assists averages the Green Wave led the conference with an average of 22.1 per contest while Thief River Falls was a distant second with an average of 13.7 assists per game.

The Prowlers again finished second to the Green Wave in another department, as "East Side" led the Big Five in rebounds with an average of 46.5 per game to the Prowlers' 43.2 per contest.

East Grand Forks averaged 80.1 points per game, a new conference record, while giving up just 52.6 points in eight conference battles. The Prowlers scored an average of 62.7 points per game while giving up 63.7 points a game. Climax scored at a 58.7 clip but the Vikings gave up 78 points a game to the opposition.

Scott Gravseth and sophomore Rip Thompson of East Grand Forks were each credited with 13 assists in two different games to set an individual single game assist mark for the Big Five. Gravseth's 9.6 average in the assist column is a new individual season record.

As a team "East Side" set new single game records for points in a single game as they scored 95 against Climax. The Wave also recorded the most assists by a team in one game as they came up with 28 assists against the Vikings.

The Green Wave tied the record for most field goals in a game with 40, that mark also coming against Climax. The Wave's 80.1 scoring average also was a new season record for a team.

Canoe Voyage Down Thelon River Ends

Conclusion

(It was with a feeling of accomplishment that Hilary Stoltman of Thief River Falls and Bob O'Hara completed their canoe trip down the Thelon river in Canada's far north country. Having arrived at their destination of Baker Lake, they began making preparations for the return home.)

August 5—We got up early so that we could make arrangements to square up at the Bay company, also to ship the canoes home on the Bay ship that comes into Baker Lake but once a year. They will go by rail to Emerson from Churchill. We also split our packs and divided up our gear and also split up the artifacts, etc.

I was going on a plane to Churchill either Friday or Monday. Bob, being a bachelor and teacher, had no reason to be in a hurry, and he wanted to get to know the people better.

I bought some soap stone sculpture and also an Eskimo-made winter parka, very flashy and colorful. Got the kids each an Eskimo belt and one for myself. Bob went with me to the plane and snapped the last few pictures and of course we shook hands for the last time for good measure.

Landed at Churchill at 5:15 p.m. and checked in at the C.N. train depot. Couldn't get sleeping accomodations as they were full. Took the coach and walked uptown for two hours until leaving time at 6 p.m.

The town is only 3,000 and very split up. The bay store is the only big store in town. When I left Baker Lake, the Bay store was out of just about everything except staples like flour, sugar, lard, etc., as that ship comes but once a year. Anything light they can get by plane.

August 8—The country from Churchill to the Pas is all Muskeg. Most of the time the speed of the passenger train was only 40 m.p.h. It is 1,100 miles by rail from Churchill to Winnipeg and the fare is only $24. You get a very good meal for $3.

Had many passengers talk to me as I was dressed as I had been when canoeing, with my Eskimo cap and belt and month-long beard and red Jack shirt as the Canadiens call them here. Had dinner on train and supper at the Pas as we had a 15-hour lay over there.

Most of the little settlements between Churchill and the Pas were very primitive with at least 70 per cent Indian or Metis population. They lay planks on all their paths from their houses as other wise they would sink in the ever present Muskeg.

I was impressed with the good passenger trains they run from Winnipeg to Churchill. Two each way on a tri-day week. Today there even was a special passenger train running an hour ahead of us. My train has 16 coaches with a good many passengers.

August 7—Will write tomorrow's log now as I know what I'll be doing then and I have the time to write now. Will arrive at Winnipeg at 9 a.m. Will take a bus to where my pick up is parked, then pick up a few items at the Hudson Bay store and pick up my fiddle at Graft and Son as I had left it there for repairs on the way up.

From there I'll be on my way home. Should be in Thief River Falls by 4 p.m. and try to get a hair cut as its quite long. Doris will probably insist on me cutting my beard right away. I wouldn't mind leaving it for a few days though. We'll see when the time arrives.

Further Comments

Will make a few statements to add to the understanding of some of the segments of this trip.

First, being a diary, much was left out for it is difficult to put in a few paragraphs all the events in a day. Also, being a diary, it was written in as few words as possible and still retain a record of this trip.

The question might arise as to us shooting a caribou for food. We had discussed the possibilities with a game constable of running short of food in case of unforeseen accidents or adverse weather. He mentioned that if there was a need to harvest a bird or animal, to do so. The Eskimos harvest the same the year around.

If it becomes necessary for someone to be rescued, as in our case, the going flying rate has to be paid and it might develop that you couldn't afford to be rescued. (My wife would like that.)

One incident that I found amusing developed as I was applying for a fishing license at Yellowknife, Northwest territories. I noticed that the clerk was making out a $2 resident license in my name so I mentioned the fact that I was from Minnesota.

He then said that while I'd be fishing in the Northwest territories, I'd be a resident but if I were to go back to Minnesota, then I couldn't fish in the Northwest Territories at the same time as then I'd be a non-resident. I guess it makes sense if you think about it long enough.

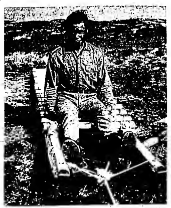
Thought I'd mention one closing statement. On March 8th, I, Al Sampson, Omer Olson and Vernon Stoltman attended an Arctic seminar at Brainerd, and one of the six trips shown at it was the one you have just finished reading about.

Bob O'Hara and Einer Anderson went through the trouble of compiling a slide and 16 mm movie of this trip. They did a wonderful job of it and if some organization would wish to present it, I'm sure either Bob or Einer would come and present it for a very reasonable amount.

Thanks for being with me.

Hilary P. Stoltman

Editor's Note: We extend our thanks to Hilary for sharing his diary with our readers, and to Bob O'Hara for the use of his photos. We hope that our readers found the account to be interesting, and reader comments would be appreciated.



THE ESKIMO SLED is an important vehicle. Crosspieces are held to the runners with ropes, allowing the sled to "give" when pulled over rough ground. The Eskmos—like Barnabas in the above photo—use the sleds to pull their canoes over land. When they reach water, they put the sled in the canoe and travel in that manner. —Photo by Bob O'Hara

New Farm Program To Offer Freedom

Most important feature of the 1971 program may turn out to be the opportunity that it gives producers to streamline their farming operations, Dr. Carroll G. Brunthaver, associate administrator for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, told a farm forum audience meeting in Minneapolis recently.

Dr. Brunthaver pointed out that previous agricultural acts used rigid crop-by-crop planting restrictions to control production. These controls were based on historical cropping patterns and tended to freeze farming operations into old patterns, some of which went clear back to the 1930s.

"Instead of basing our farm management on cooperative advantage, on the soils, climate and resources of the farm and the skills and the equipment of the farmer, we were simply trying to maintain the past," Dr. Brunthaver pointed out. The fallacy of this type operation becomes even more evident when one considers the tremendous developments that have taken place in farming and the great increases in selective demand in the marketplace, he added.

"For the first time since the 1930s, acreage allotments and bases don't control what the farmer plants in 1971," Dr. Brunthaver said. "They are used to determine his set aside requirement and his payments, but they do not limit his planting."

The significance of this can be seen from producers' plans for the 1971 season as indicated by the planting intentions report, the ASCS associate administrator pointed out. In the Midwest, farmers seem to be going heavily to corn and soybeans. Minnesota producers are planting 950,000 more acres of corn; those in Nebraska, 600,000 more acres, Iowa, more than a million additional acres; and in the Eastern corn belt states of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan it will be up 200,000 acres each, he said. Many of these acres will replace oats which the previous rigid programs forced farmers to produce, resulting in huge and costly surpluses in that crop, Dr. Brunthaver added.

Examples of how the new set aside program will benefit farmers in specific situations were then cited by the Associate Administrator of ASCS. For example, a Midwestern feed grain farmer with 480 acres, a feed grain base of 200 acres and a wheat allotment of 33 acres last year would have planted 160 acres of corn—his best crop—and 35 acres of wheat because he had the allotment. That left him 235 acres on which he planted something else—generally soybeans.

Under this year's set aside program, the same farmer would have a domestic wheat allotment of 15 acres. Since wheat is not very profitable for him, the farmer would probably drop it. He would then set aside 40 acres of feed grain base plus 11 acres of wheat set aside, qualifying for payments under both programs. The remaining 429 acres on his farm can then go to corn if he chooses—giving him 2½ times as much as he grew last year.

This production will also help meet the market demand created by the corn shortage that resulted from blight last year, Dr. Brunthaver said, adding: "Such an example simply illustrates the added decision-making freedom that producers have under the agricultural act of 1970. They have much more freedom to respond to changes in the market. And that's one of the main ideas behind the new law."

Feeding Cattle By Computer Is Being Studied

A new computer system will soon assist Minnesota feedlot operators as a decision aid and help them get the most profit from their feedlot, according to agricultural educators Edgar Persons, Gary Leske and George Copa.

They foresee use of computers in determining least-cost feeding programs for beef cattle, lamb, swine and turkeys.

They are now using computers to demonstrate their usefulness in calculating least-cost beef cattle feeding rations. The demonstration called Computerations-Beef, consists of having the computer determine rations for beef cattle which would minimize the feed cost per pound of beef produced.

The procedure takes into account cattle information such as age, physical condition, breed, sex and weight. The feed information gives consideration to feed stuffs available, nutrient composition and cost.

Initial testing of Computerations-Beef has been completed. The entire system has been tested by using data from actual records of research trials compiled by the animal science department of the university, the agricultural educators said.

When completed, cost of the computer system to clients would be about $25 to $30. Both large and small feedlot operators may find the computer assisted decision aid useful in getting the most profit from their feedlot. Vocational agriculture teachers will also use Computerations-Beef in high school, post-secondary, adult and extension instruction in beef cattle management, they said.

Through workshops, short courses, telelectures, and other media, teachers of agriculture and other agriculture educators will be informed of the purpose and operational procedures of the system, they said.

The use of electronic data processing, and computers as managerial aids will become increasingly necessary and vital as a farmer's managerial ability continues to become more important to the success or failure of the farm. Computerations-Beef is only one of a series of computer assisted decision aids that farmers may find useful in their business, the agricultural educators said.

Social Security Major Source Of Elderly Income

Social security payments account for the largest single share—about 34 per cent—of total income of people 65 or older and their wives or husbands, according to Clifford Kittelson, social security district manager in Grand Forks, N.D.

Social Security administration studies of the nation's 20 million older people indicate that their annual income is about $59 billion, with social security benefits accounting for $20 billion.

"Studies show that social security is an economic base for retired workers and their dependents," Kittelson said. "The monthly benefit checks are a partial replacement of pre-retirement earnings."

About 28 per cent of the income of older people comes from earnings, according to the study. Income from assets accounts for 15 per cent. Other sources are: public pensions other than social security, seven per cent; private group pensions, five per cent; public welfare, four per cent; veterans' benefits, three per cent, contributions from friends or relatives not in the older household, one per cent; other sources, 3 per cent.

According to the study, about 21 per cent of older people receive income from wages and salaries; six per cent from self-employment; six per cent from government-employee pensions; 12 per cent from private group pensions, four per cent from railroad retirement pensions; 10 per cent from veterans' benefits; three per cent from personal contributions, two per cent from private individual annuities; one per cent from unemployment insurance, and 12 per cent from welfare.

When Tom retired, it seemed as if his dreams had come true. For years he and Grace had been planning. There would be that little pink house in Florida and time to do all the things they wanted. They could keep in touch with their friends back home, and there would be occasional visits back and forth.

What they hadn't realized was how much they would miss their church. It had been such a part of their life! Now it seemed that no other church could fill the gap. In fact, they didn't go to another church their first few weeks in Florida.

But finally one Sunday they went to the little church they had been passing each day on the way to the golf course. True, it wasn't like the church back home—outwardly. But, when you got down to essentials, it was the same.

If you have moved to another community, find a new church home. Regardless of its appearance, remember that it is God's House and in it you will be welcome.

Indian Population Shifts Into Cities

Minnesota's Indian population increased from 15,496 in 1960 to 23,128 in 1970 with much of the increase in urban areas, according to population census data supplied by the Minnesota analysis and planning system (MAPS).

Although the census data shows a 67 per cent increase in the Minnesota Indian population from 1960 to 1970, the Indian total was less than some Indian officials and spokesmen had estimated.

Artley Skenandare, director of the state Indian affairs commission, said there was "some inaccuracy" in the 1970 census figures on Indians, considering the tribal enrollment at Minnesota's White Earth Indian reservation alone is 17,000 and the official census population for the state is 23,128. Skenandare estimated the present Minnesota Indian population at 30,000.

Indian officials and spokesmen said several factors may have contributed to what they described as a low Indian count for the state:

There may not have been sufficient education on the significance of the census. Some Indians may have refused to respond by not returning the mail-back survey forms or purposely avoiding the census taker after ignoring the survey forms. Some may have refused to answer census takers questions and others may have returned the form, but declared themselves white rather than Indian. Unmarried Indians living in cities may have been left out of the count, which is one of the difficulties of census-taking with a population that migrates frequently between reservations and urban centers.

Indian population in Minnesota's major urban centers increased significantly in 10 years and more than trippled in one instance. Indian populations from 1960 to 1970 increased from 524 to 1,906 in St. Paul, and from 2,077 to 5,829 in Minneapolis, according to the census data.

Most of the metropolitan Indian population is in the central cities rather than the suburban and outlying areas. The Indian population for Hennepin county is 0,722 with 5,829 in Minneapolis and for Ramsey county, 2,146 with 1,906 in St. Paul. The census data shows that about 77 per cent of the Indian population in the seven-county metropolitan area is located in the Twin Cities. The total Indian population for Hennepin, Ramsey, Anoka, Carver, Scott, Dakota and Washington counties is 8,958 with 7,735 in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Gains in Indian populations throughout the state were generally in the cities. In St. Louis county, where the Fond Du Lac Indian reservation and Duluth are located, the Indian population increased from 1,259 in 1960 to 1,531 in 1970, according to census data. But much of the increase was in Duluth where the Indian population went from 402 in 1960 to 815 in 1970.

Indian population increases in Minnesota counties with reservations were slight and in some cases there were decreases. In Cass and Itasca counties, where Leech Lake Indian reservation is located, the Indian population was 1,536 and 770 in 1960 and 1,518 and 821 respectively in 1970, according to census data. In Becker and Mahnomen counties, where White Earth Indian reservation is located, the populations were 1,236 and 789 in 1960 and 1,224 and 719 respectively in 1970, census data shows.

In Beltrami and Clearwater counties, where Red Lake Indian reservation is located, the populations were 2,959 and 318 in 1960 and 3,021 and 461 respectively in 1970, according to census information.

MAPS provides sociological and economic data to state and local government agencies, the University of Minnesota and state colleges to enable policy planning, research and aid in solving administrative problems.

MAPS is administered by the university's agricultural extension service and has been designated as a summary tape processing center for 1970 population census data by the bureau of the census. Census data is available to individuals and organizations at low costs because of the efficiency of computer processing of special requests for information, according to Professor John S. Hoyt Jr., MAPS director.

Roman Roads Were Not Unlike Interstates

Sometime in the late 1970's, according to the Minnesota department of highways, Americans will enjoy 42,500 miles of interstate highways.

The ancient Romans would shrug this off and point out that Rome built 54,000 miles of highways which traversed the then-known world from Scotland through Asia and Africa.

Some of the problems, rules and regulations they encountered are not unfamiliar to the twentieth century motorist. For instance, the average American man believes that women are terrible drivers. And the same was true in the Roman Empire centuries before Christ.

Roman chariot drivers had to have a driver's license and, at one time, the officials revoked the licenses of women. As a result, the distaff drivers lobbied fiercely for 20 years against the law. It is on record that Cicero himself was prevailed upon to make a speech in the Senate and as a result the women of Rome got their driver licenses restored.

The Romans also issued licenses for chariots, and those who thought they were important wanted low numbers which apparently won them special attention along the roads.

MPCA Has Final Hearing About Feedlot Wastes

Minnesota Pollution Control agency (MPCA) held the sixth and final hearing on proposed feedlot regulations defining "animal wastes" as excreta not used as fertiliser. "Feedlot," "poultry lot" and "pasture" are also defined.

The 13-page document proposed would regulate wastes from all animals except those kept as pets. The purpose of the regulation is to encourage animal wastes to be recycled back to the land as fertiliser.

The farmer-approved regulations were written in their final form following a series of public hearings held in farming communities throughout the state.

The board extended the deadline for the city of International Falls to separate storm sewers from sanitary sewers to December, 1971, and extended Boise-Cascade's deadline to December 31 for wastewater treatment.

The board extended time for the village of McIntosh to begin construction to July of 1971, on additions to its sewage treatment plant and to have the job finished by November of 1972.

Moorhead got a time extension to: Submit by February 15, 1971, a specific schedule for separating sewers by November, 1972; submit by April, 1971, the progress report on optimizing phosphorus reduction at its existing sewage treatment plant; award a contract by December, 1971, and complete construction of stage 2 treatment plant expansion by September, 1971, subject to approval by the state-federal enforcement conference.

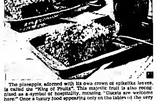
Dessert Royalty



The pineapple, adorned with its own crown of spikelike leaves, is called the "King of Fruits". This majestic fruit is also recognized as a symbol of hospitality, meaning "Guests are welcome here." Once a luxury food appearing only on the tables of the very wealthy, pineapple is now available year 'round fresh, frozen and canned. In this recipe the sweetness of pineapple teams with the rich nutty flavor of bran cereal in a cinnamon spiced cake and with coconut, another historic fruit, in a broiled topping. Kay Kellogg suggests serving Pineapple Dessert Cake warm at its moist and tender best.

PINEAPPLE DESSERT CAKE

2 cups bran cereal in flake form
½ cup milk
1½ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup regular margarine or butter, softened
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs
1 cup cream style cottage cheese
¼ cup drained, crushed pineapple

+ + + +

¼ cup regular margarine or butter, melted
⅔ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup drained, crushed pineapple
⅓ cup flaked coconut
1 tablespoon pineapple syrup
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

1. Measure bran flakes, then crush to 1 cup. Combine crushed bran flakes and milk; let stand until most of moisture is absorbed.
2. Sift together flour, soda, salt and cinnamon; set aside.
3. Measure sugar and margarine into mixer bowl; beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add dry ingredients alternately with bran flakes mixture, mix only until batter is smooth. Stir in cottage cheese and pineapple. Spread evenly in slightly greased 9 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan.
4. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 50 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center of cake comes out clean. Combine ingredients for topping and spread over hot cake. Broil about 3 minutes or until topping is lightly browned. Serve warm.

Yield: 12 servings, 3 x 2¼ inches.

Pollution-Free Autos Making Breakthrough

Highways are far from obsolete! The Minnesota highway department recently received notification about two dramatic breakthroughs in the development of pollution-free automotive systems.

One of these is the steam engine which has been developed by William P. Lear at his testing laboratories in Reno, Nev. Lear has been working on this engine for a number of years and about a year ago, after having run into technical difficulties, was ready to give up. Later, however, a couple of important breakthroughs were realized, the most important of which was the development of a non-flammable, nontoxic, non-corrosive compound with a very low freezing point which can operate at temperatures as high as 600 degrees F., using any type of Fuel, the engine is expected to have a life of 400,000 miles.

The turbine, which is only eight inches in diameter and nine inches long, weighs only 30 pounds. Lear predicts the production cost of the entire power plant should be about that of the present-day internal combustion automobile engine, is designed to mate with present automatic transmissions for automobiles, will accelerate a 4,000 lb. car to 60 mph in about 10 seconds, and will easily meet the new Congressional standards requiring a 90 per cent reduction in pollutants.

Of interest to Minnesotans is the fact that there are no cold weather starting problems involved since the starting principle is no different from lighting a flame under a pan of water. It takes 20 seconds to start a "cold" engine. The top speed of Lear's vehicle is expected to be about 87 mph.

Of equal interest and importance to Lear's steam engine is the new electric automobile currently being built by Robert R. Aronson and his company, Electric Fuel Propulsion, Inc., of Ferndale, Mich. Aronson's electric auto, the EFP Electric, accelerates to 40 mph in ten seconds and reaches a top speed of 85 mph with a range of 300 mph before the batteries need recharging. Expecting to produce 300 EFP's by June, the company will sell them for $10,000. Projections are for increasing the production of 5,000 per year, reducing the rest to $6,580, and thereafter in annual lots of 20,000 the price is expected to drop to about $4,000.

The breakthrough on the electric was the development of a Tri-Polar lead-cobalt battery, series-traction DC motor, solid-state control unit, and a patented fuel cell which trickle-charges the batteries at a constant rate. The batteries take about 20 minutes to recharge and are expected to last about 50,000 miles or five years. Costing only $700, this amounts to about 1.4 cent per mile.

With absolutely no air pollution, no oil to change, antifreeze to add, tune-ups to perform or energy wasted running an engine on cold mornings, and with battery power ready to go instantly in any weather, it is expected the car will easily compete with current internal combustion engines.

It is expected that recharging will be accomplished by having plug-in parking meters and already 70 courtesy charge points have been installed across the country.

Minibikes Are Dangerous When Driven On Roads

"When the late winter thaws begin, we get a rash of inquiries about licensing minibikes for use on public streets and highways," Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

"Although under state law minibikes can be equipped and operators licensed to operate them on public roads, their size and low horsepower makes them dangerous in competing with other traffic. Actually, although retailers will assure buyers that they are safe under all conditions, our traffic records tell us otherwise.

"In a high percentage of accidents involving two-wheeled vehicles and cars or trucks, the automobile driver reported that he 'didn't see the bike at all' or too late to avoid the accident.

"If an owner is determined to operate a minibike on public roads, he should avoid freeways or expressways which have minimum speed limits of 40 or 45 mph. For some models these speeds are impossible, and for most all of them these speeds are not safe for the design and capabilities of the vehicle."

If they are to be used on public roads, the bike must be equipped with at least one but not more than two headlights, and one red tail light with stop light capability. Turn signals are recommended, but not required by law. The operator must conform to all laws applicable to motorcycle operators—approved head gear and driver license with motorcycle endorsement.

"For those who like to carry a minibike along on a camping trip, to be used in camping and trail areas, this is a very enjoyable sport. But we strongly recommend against using them on public roads at any time, and especially at night."

Rate Of Return On Management Training Noted

Important questions for any continuing education program for farmers are: What kind of returns can be expected? How much time and money is required? What kind of program is involved?

In an eight-year study of a well-organized continuing education program in Minnesota, $4 were realized by farmers for each dollar invested in education, according to University of Minnesota agricultural educators Gordon T. Swanson and Edgar Persons.

The total cost to the farmer for eight years of participation in the program was $849. The benefits to the farmer were computed at $3,562, giving the farmer over four dollars return on each dollar invested in the program, they said.

Education in management is not restricted to the formal classroom. While most farmers in the study attended classroom and small group instruction—ten or more sessions per year—on-farm instruction was an important element. The intensity of instruction declined after the first three years.

Costs incurred for farmers in the study included the farm business record analysis, miscellaneous class purchases, transportation expenses and cost of the farmer's time, the agricultural educators said.

It was assumed for this study that no economic return to farmers from the program would be seen during the initial year of instruction. However, the researcher acknowledged other studies which have shown that returns can be expected even in the initial year.

The continuing education program in this study was an intensive goal-oriented, educational program. The classes were taught by full-time instructors who had responsibility only for the adult program. The classes were oriented toward farm business management topics and had a high degree of continuity.

Now there are about 100 public high schools and area vocational-technical schools in Minnesota that employ special instructors for farm business management for farm operators. Many other high schools offer adult farm business management courses as part of the total vocational-agriculture program.

The researchers reported that a typical program in a school with one full-time adult instructor includes 40 to 60 farmers enrolled in farm management education courses plus additional offerings emphasizing mechanized agriculture or farm production enterprises.

The farm management program usually consists of at least three and usually four classes which may be titled: "Farm Records and Accounts," "Farm Business Analysis," "Farm Organization," and "Advanced Farm Management."

Individualized on-farm instruction is an essential element of an effective program and teachers generally meet with the farm family six or more times during the year in order to provide continuity of instruction and adaptation of classroom materials to the farm situation, they explained.

Ideally, monthly on-farm instructional visits to farm families are made in their first year in the program. For second, third and subsequent years of enrollment, on-farm instruction may be slightly reduced. However, many farm operators demand more, rather than less, on-farm instruction as they make progress in the program, the agricultural educators said.

State Payroll Costs Proposed At $900 Million

Payroll costs of the state government for the next biennium would exceed $900,000,000 if salary adjustments and new civil service and academic positions proposed in the governor's budget win legislative approval, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

The pay increases and additional staffing would add nearly $133,000,000 to state operating expenses, Harold T. Miller, research director, of the MTA said, citing figures compiled by the budget division of the state department of administration. Major components of the asked for pay increase and new position costs are:

Salary increases of 12 per cent this year and six per cent more next year for most of 30,972 present civil service employees: $75,791,598.

Salary increases of eight per cent this year and seven per cent more next year for most of 7,917 present academic personnel: $19,854,445.

Creation of 1,356 new civil service positions at average salaries of $8,800 and 625 new academic positions at average salaries of $10,660: $38,119,504.

Included in the 30,972 civil service and 7,917 academic personnel are more than 700 department head and unclassified administrative positions in institutions of higher education for which the governor's budget proposes no specific salary increase, leaving that determination to legislative judgment.

"For the last six years, the state's approved personnel complements have been expanding at a rate averaging about 100 new positions a month," Miller said. "The further expansion now proposed would swell the total number of authorized employees to 40,870.

"By mid-1973 the total payroll—exclusive of 'exceptional performance recognition' and the cost of state-paid insurance—would exceed a half billion dollars annually.

"By that time," Miller added, "the authorized annual state payroll would exceed the total of state income taxes estimated to be paid in 1973 at present tax rates by the state's 1½ million individual income taxpayers."

Pain Is Body's Warning Signal

"In our drug oriented society, if you would ask most people if they would like to have life without pain, they would readily say 'yes'—yet pain is actually a blessing in disguise," states Dr. John F. Beaty, president of the Minnesota Chiropractic association.

The doctor of chiropractic explained that pain is a warning that nature employs to indicate a health problem. He described pain as an alarm signaling trouble somewhere in the body.

"Of all the so called triumphs of the pharmaceutical industry, the headache remedy is the most dangerous to life and health because it covers up or suppresses the symptom," said Dr. Beaty.

"The real trouble is that the less toxic and the more apparently effective a headache remedy is, the more dangerous it becomes. Without pain, the victim is content, while the trouble causing the pain remains to progress in gravity, often until a serious condition develops."

Dr. Beaty warned that headaches are not simple conditions:

"Where there is a headache, there is a cause. Putting out the pain without curing the real cause is like concentrating on stopping a fire alarm from ringing without putting out the fire."

Brake Failure Warning Issued For School Buses

School administrators, private operators and school bus drivers are again reminded by Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund of a potential safety hazard existing in certain makes and models of school buses.

The department issued a warning last November, after having been advised by the department of transportation of potential brake failure hazards in 1959 through 1962 Chevrolet and GMC school buses.

"Since our initial warning," Hoaglund said, "this danger has become real, with this very hazard directly responsible for the death of a school child in another state."

The possible failure exists in those buses in which the exhaust system tailpipe is located above a flexible brake line near the rear axle. These buses have a single hydraulic system in which all braking is lost if the tailpipe comes in contact with and ruptures the brake line at the flexible hose section.

This danger can be corrected by installing a bracket to guard the flex hose from contact with the tailpipe in any circumstance.

"We have printed up a good supply of instructions for installation of the bracket, and many have been mailed to operators on request. However, to make sure that all of these dangers are corrected, the department of education is mailing these instructions to all school districts and private operators this week.

"I have also instructed the highway patrol to carefully inspect this item when they start inspecting school buses on April 1. At that time, they will require those buses which have not yet been modified to install the bracket."

Blood-Alcohol Tests Reveal Drinking Drivers

A preliminary report of blood-alcohol tests taken on fatally injured drivers indicates that evidence of drinking and intoxication among drivers is increasing, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

Of 247 fatally injured drivers tested by county coroners during 1970, 150 had been drinking and 127 tested at or above the .10 per cent presumptive level of intoxication. This represents a six per cent increase in drinking and an eight per cent increase in those intoxicated over the previous year.

Again, levels of intoxication were high for those who were tested over .10 per cent. Of the 127 drivers at or over the presumptive level, 82 had .15 per cent or over alcohol content, and 25 tested at .25 per cent and above.

In pedestrian deaths, the trend was reversed, with fewer testing positive and intoxicated than during the previous year. Although the number testing positive was close to 1969 figures, there was a nine per cent drop in the number of those who reached or exceeded the presumptive level of intoxication.

"Although the coroner's reports do give us a very good sample of driver and pedestrian drinking involvement, we are still lacking definite information on those drivers who survive. We can safely assume that approximately 60 per cent of all drivers involved in fatal accidents had been drinking, but there are still too many surviving drivers whose licenses should be revoked.

"We are again asking the legislature for authority to test all surviving drivers, and hope that it will be granted this year. We also have several other proposals dealing with the problem of drinking and driving before the current legislature."

"If this life be not a real fight, in which something is eternally gained for the universe by success, it is no better than a game of private theatricals from which one may withdraw at will. But it feels like a real fight—as if there were something really wild in the universe...." —William James

Cold and Cruel?

"For years, teachers have been harassed, hindered in many ways that intrude not only into their personal lives but into their professional lives as well. But never in my nearly 20 years in the classroom have I seen any action as blatant, cold and cruel as this one."

Robert F. Arnold, president of the Minnesota Education association, was talking about a letter received by several faculty members in the Appleton school system. The Appleton district is under sanctions imposed by the MEA following an MEA-sponsored "study".

The letter in question stated: "Though transmitted with this letter is a contract for the school year 1971-72, it is the desire and wish of the board of education that you make an attempt to find employment elsewhere." Among the recipients of the letter was the president of the Appleton MEA local.

An MEA release about the letter states that the Appleton schools "...'have dropped another bomb' on the embattled faculty".

We don't see what the big fuss is all about, as far as the MEA is concerned. That organization—at its own invitation—conducted a study of the Appleton schools. It determined—in its own opinion as the result of its own investigation—that the Appleton district is not a good place to teach. It decided—at its own initiative—to advise others of this determination.

So what's the big fuss over a letter suggesting that teachers find employment elsewhere? Isn't the object of imposing sanctions to make it difficult for the district to employ teachers? Why should someone get up tight about the suggestion that he leave a place which he has condemned as a poor place to work?

In our opinion, the Appleton board of education should go one step further. It should circulate among Minnesota schools a list of faculty members on 1970-71 contract, with the suggestion that they not be hired elsewhere in Minnesota. We think the board of that district should have equal rights to exert economic pressure as the teacher organization has. What is fair for one side should be fair for the other.

Admittedly, the Appleton district is in turmoil. There are undoubtedly problems rooted much deeper than simply teacher salaries. And the more that pressures are exerted by outside influences the deeper will be the wounds that time will later have to heal. Many years from now, the scars will still show in the Appleton school district.

We can understand the desire of the MEA to make its power play work at Appleton, and its opposition to any action which would erode its groundwork. But we can not rationalize with a group which says on one hand that a school district is a terrible employer to work for, and on the other hand cries about a suggestion that a person leave employment in that district.

In our opinion, the board's suggestion is neither cold nor cruel....especially viewed in the light of the previous MEA action of imposing sanctions.

Another Side of Coin

The following editorial comment appeared in the Truman Tribune:

I'm not certain exactly what causes it, but there's something about being a 'stew' and wearing an easily recognized uniform that encourages strangers to engage us in conversation. People of all sizes, shapes, and walks of life approach us—whether it is to ask questions or to vent their emotions.

While I was waiting at the gate to board my flight in L. A. this morning, a man about 28 years old, casually dressed, and clean shaven squatted down beside my chair and asked, "What's the latest on TWA's furloughing of hostesses?" (Since last fall, TWA has been cutting back severely on all of their personnel. Laying off crew members is called 'Furloughing.') After I brought him up to date, he said, "Well, all I've got to say is thank goodness for unemployment." And our conversation from this point left with my mouth wide open—well, almost.

This young man is presently unemployed and reveling in his $64.00 a week unemployment check which, he quickly points out, is TAX FREE. My $120.00 a week, however, is not so fortunate, and, by the time Uncle Sam takes "his share," I end up with about $85.00 a week. Perhaps I should break some windows to draw attention to my plight, but instead, I decided to pursue this conversation, for if I listen carefully and ask the right questions, I may learn something.

He continues smilingly, in spite of my frown, to tell me that he's in the movie business (a prop builder) and work is very sporadic (my word, not his). When I naively suggested he investigate a more reliable line of work, he gave me an extremely interesting rebuttal.

Why??? By working ½ the year, just 26 weeks, he makes $5,300. This is going on the regular 40-hour week at $202.00 per. Add to this, if you will, time and a half for anything between 40 and 48 at which point it moves into double time. Anything over 60 or any meals that are missed are deserving of 'golden time' about which I didn't have the stamina to ask.

The prop builders who went to Hawaii for 3 months of "work" on the movie "Tora, Tora, Tora" made $12,000 (A freely offered anecdote, I'm sure is meant to impress me. It did!) I wouldn't look for steadier work either. Not only does he make good money under great conditions (when he works), but he also loves his job.

His bed of roses isn't made yet. His wife is a tele-typist for an airline. Her annual contribution to their kitty is $11,000.00 plus any travel privileges she gets. She pays the rent; the unemployment checks buy the food, and they live happily ever after.

Suddenly, the girl he was waiting for arrives; he hurries toward her and gives me an over-the-shoulder smile and wink.

I'm left sitting there mulling over what I've heard. Has he no pride, no sense of duty, justice, fairness? Who is responsible for the holes in our system? How do you go about patching them up? At the moment, I feel underpaid and overtaxed. I'm inclined to think that all of us who put in "an honest day's work for an honest day's pay" ought to go on a strike of our own and let the parasites go hungry.

More Specialists?

There is no doubt that specialists in the medical profession play a vital role in the health of the nation. Only through specialization can concentrated effort be exerted to finding the causes and cures of various medical problems.

But when daughter Mary has a fever, or Billy breaks an arm at play, or Mother adds a new son or daughter to the family circle, a specialist is rarely needed. The general practitioner can handle these situations—all of them—and do so in a personal manner which makes all concerned more at ease.

The editor of the Murray County Herald at Slayton notes that his area needs more doctors of the type currently serving the area. "We do not need Dr. Christiaan Barnard," he writes. "Heart transplants are now and will continue to be rare here, but the daily efforts of a general practitioner are unending."

The editorial continues:

At the present time, and in the weeks to come, a great deal of pressure will be applied on the state legislature to increase the medical education program in Minnesota. They will undoubtedly do so, but the options they will be considering deserve discussion.

The Rochester influence appears to be the greatest at the moment. They would have a second medical school, under the direction of the University of Minnesota, located in Rochester which is internationally known as a medical center. It is also internationally known as the headquarters of unexcelled specialists in the various fields of medicine and this fact should be vital in the deliberations of the legislature.

The upper midwest area needs more doctors, but they do not need more specialists. The area needs people in general practice, and our fear is that a new medical school in Rochester would not fulfill this need. A new medical school under the guidance and control of the University of Minnesota is vital, but the Rochester concept is not.

Clinical facilities are available in many areas of the state. Students learning under these conditions would be far more likely to remain in general practice than they would if subjected to the Rochester or Mayo concept during their course of education.

The training and education of more doctors in Minnesota has our complete support, even though it may be a costly program. The location, however, of a branch of the University medical school in Rochester will not solve the existing needs of the vast majority of our people. More specialists we do not need.

Borrowed Nonsense

A pedestrian is a guy who didn't think his family needed two cars.

Counterfeiter to helper: "Now don't go passing any of this stuff. We lend it out at 10½ per cent."

Interesting Opinions:

"Few men realize that their life, the very essence of their character, their capabilities and their audacities, are only the expression of their belief in the safety of their surroundings." —Joseph Conrad

"A child thinks twenty shillings and twenty years can scarce ever be spent." —Benjamin Franklin

notes from the governor

In the last two months, most of my time has been spent on preparing a state budget, searching all over the nation for top men and women for my administration, drawing up a legislative program and the many other tasks that go with the governor's job.

Another part of my job is to meet and talk to people from all over the state, and this is perhaps the most interesting part of the job. Much of the talk is about nonpolitical things—what's happening in such and such a town, who is doing what and so on.

As we talk, I am continuously reminded of the unselfish and dedicated Minnesotans. All over the state people are giving of their time for local civic projects, scouting, boys club, FFA, 4-H and numerous projects like this.

If you look around your town or county I am sure you will see some person or persons who over the years has devoted much of his or her time to improving the community. Whenever something had to be done, you could always count on him to assist. Or perhaps this person isn't well known. Perhaps he has been Scoutmaster to the local troop. Year after year he has met with the young boys, helping them become men.

Whatever the activity, Minnesota has been especially blessed with these people. They have contributed much to our state, giving of their time and energy and largely receiving little or no thanks.

I urge every Minnesotan to look around his community and to take the time to thank these people who have done so much to improve Minnesota's quality of life. We should all be grateful to them. We are all in their debt.

In Our Time
FARMERS NOW INCORPORATE CHEMICAL HERBICIDES (BIODEGRADABLE WEED KILLERS) INTO THE SOIL BEFORE PLANTING FOR SURER, SAFER, WEED CONTROL... RAIN OR SHINE, WET OR DRY.
WHEN GRANULAR OR LIQUID HERBICIDES ARE MIXED IN THOROUGHLY THEY CAN'T BE DESTROYED BY SUNLIGHT, BLOWN AWAY BY WIND, OR WASHED OFF BY HEAVY RAINS.
NOR DO CHEMICALS LIE ON TOP OF SOIL WHERE THEY COME INTO CONTACT WITH BIRDS OR WILDLIFE.
SOIL INCORPORATION IS BETTER FOR OUR ECOLOGY.

Credit Farmers In Balance Of Trade

Farmers should get the credit for the current favorable balance in trade between the United States and other countries, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clarence D. Palmby told over 300 U.S. department of agriculture employees meeting in St. Paul Tuesday. Pennington county ASCS officials attended the meeting.

Speaking at a conference of Minnesota state and county agricultural stabilization and conservation service employees, Palmby said that he expects U.S. agricultural exports for the fiscal year ending June 30 to reach a new all-time high in both value and volume.

"For the first seven months, through January, farm exports have been 17 per cent above the same months a year before," the assistant secretary said.

The balance in agricultural exports over imports amounted to $1.2 billion, more than offsetting a deficit in our non-agricultural trade, he pointed out; adding: "The result is a favorable balance of all exports over all imports of almost $900 million, and U.S. farmers should get the credit."

U.S. farm exports in the current fiscal year are expected to be at least $7.4 billion with soybeans once again setting the pace, Palmby told the group. This is the second straight year that the U.S. has had a substantial rise in total farm exports, and the two-year gain will amount to $1.7 billion or 30 per cent, the assistant secretary added.

A native of Blue Earth county and a graduate of the University of Minnesota, Palmby is now assistant secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs. At the state ASCS conference banquet Tuesday night, he also mentioned an amendment to regulations affecting conserving bases. These base acreages are the 1959-60 average of cropland devoted to soil conserving crops, including summer fallow and idle land.

The intent of the amendment is to alleviate any conserving base inequities which presently exist. Such inequities result from the fact that conserving bases were established on the basis of farming operations carried out over a decade ago, Palmby pointed out.

ASCS procedure now allows local ASC county committees to adjust a farm's conserving base whenever it is determined that a change in farming operations had occurred or will occur. The adjustment can only be made when the change in farming is consistent with proper land use and the production adjustment principles of the set aside program, the Assistant Secretary emphasized.

Keynote speaker Tuesday afternoon at the conference was Elvin J. Person, formerly of Big Lake, who is now in Washington, D.C. as assistant deputy administrator, state and county operations, for ASCS. Person discussed the new agricultural program in his address entitled, "Change Is Challenge."

Other speakers during the two-day conference included Robert Mondlock, another former Minnesotan who is now a program specialist in ASCS' conservation and land use division in Washington, Dale H. Heisper, director of the northwest area for ASCS, also from Washington; Robert A. Landes, manager of the Minneapolis branch of the Kansas City commodity office.

A major purpose of the conference was to give policy guidance and program information to Minnesota's county ASC committees which provide grassroots management of USDA's farm action programs dealing with farm income and production stabilization, conservation of resources and pollution abatement.

Oregon Residents Invite People To Stay Away

"If you are planning to move to Oregon, don't.

"It rains 365 days a year, the people are uncivilized and boorish, it looks like a total disaster area and swarming insects there have been known to devour a baby in three minutes."

There are citizens of Oregon who would have the rest of the world believe such to be true, according to James F. Faulstich, assistant to Oregon Governor Tom McCall.

Faulstich was the keynote speaker at the Minnesota governor's conference on vocational-technical education at the St. Paul Hilton. His talk, entitled "Lean, Clean and Green" centered around his state's efforts toward maintaining its quality of life by keeping people out of the state.

"I am torn between attempting to dispel the misconceptions which have been carefully planted around my adopted state, while at the same time being afraid that anything I might say which depicts Oregon as anything less than total disaster area will trigger yet another carload of unwanted emigrants to the Oregon territory," Faulstich told the group.

He said that Oregonians have always held an awesome respect for the environment and that "growth for growth's sake" has never held an appeal there.

Instead, he said, the state seeks balanced and reasonable growth through industry that does not "belch wretched smoke or putrid sludge" but rather whose management is firmly committed to keeping "Oregon uniquely Oregon."

He said the watchword in the state for all development is "balance."

"Maybe we are just kidding ourselves, but in a sense we Oregonians want our cake as well as the chance to savor every last crumb," Faulstich said.

He added that most newcomers to Oregon settle there in order to escape polluted air and "wall-to-wall" people. They view Los Angeles, New York and Chicago as object lessons of how to spoil a paradise by succeeding in developmental efforts.

Faulstich said that he finds the prevailing attitudes in Minnesota to be remarkably similar to his own.

"It has become a popular pastime in certain circles to castigate all notions of economic development," he said. "This phenomenon is not altogether unhealthy as it reflects a growing concern which Americans are placing upon the quality of life rather than the quantity of people and goods produced," he said.

THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM OF UNITS (ABBREVIATED SI FOR SYSTEME INTERNATIONAL) IS A MODERNIZED VERSION OF THE METRIC SYSTEM FIRST PROPOSED BY THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF FRANCE ON MAY 8, 1790... AT THAT TIME TRADE WAS GREATLY IMPEDED ON THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT WHERE WEIGHTS AND MEASURES DIFFERED NOT ONLY FROM COUNTRY TO COUNTRY BUT EVEN FROM TOWN TO TOWN AND TRADE TO TRADE.

THE RESULTING METRIC SYSTEM WITH ITS UNITS DIVISIBLE BY 10, FOUND MUCH FAVOR WITH THE SCIENTISTS OF THE 19TH CENTURY, PARTLY BECAUSE IT WAS INTENDED FOR INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS, SINCE A VOTE IN 1876, HAS BEEN A LEADER IN EFFORTS TO CHANGE TO THE METRIC SYSTEM IN THE U.S. IN 1970, THE PROFESSIONAL SOCIETY REITERATED ITS SUPPORT OF THE METRIC SYSTEM AND BEGAN TO USE BOTH THE METRIC AND CUSTOMARY UNITS IN ALL ITS PUBLICATIONS.

It's Wildlife Week

National Bird Given Federal Welfare Help

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Thanks to the efforts of several different parties, one of America's disappearing wild creatures has a new lease on life. The outcome is as yet uncertain, but considerable effort has been expended to restore the living symbol of the United States to its rightful place in the out-of-doors.

Perched in the confines of a large cage at Agassiz national wildlife refuge, the adult bald eagle shrieks its defiance of man and casts a bright and disdainful eye on those who care for its needs. In spite of its government welfare program, it would prefer its freedom. In about six weeks it will be released.

Independent as the bird may feel now, it was considerably more docile when brought to the refuge last fall. At that time it was in a weakened condition, able to stand only on curled toes and accept food when hand fed. It could be handled easily but was a very sick bird. Most people who saw it didn't think it would live to see the next spring.

All that is known about the eagle is that it is an adult bird at least four years old. Bald eagles do not attain their distinctive white-headed plumage until about that age, and the bird at Agassiz is fully colored. Both male and female have the same coloring and nobody knows whether the eagle in question is a he or she. Maybe that's one reason why nobody has attempted to give it a name.

Found Near Plummer

Known history of the bird dates back to mid November when 15-year-old Jim Schiefert of rural Plummer was out hunting about eight miles northeast of Plummer. He noticed the big, dark bird in the snow-covered field and was able to approach it. Recognizing it as the national bird, and concerned for its life in its apparently serious condition, he decided to take it home.

Deciding to take an adult eagle home and actually doing it could well be two different things. But Jim slipped his rifle barrel under the bird until it stepped up on the barrel, then he lifted it and carried it to his car. Arriving at home, he brought the bird into the house and called the state game warden in the area. While waiting for officials to arrive several days later, the Schieferts fed the bird liver from a deer they had killed during deer season. A pliers was used for a feeding tool. The bird even made a trip to school with one of the Schiefert children.

Warden Gives Hand

Game warden Owen Josephson of Red Lake Falls finally arrived to pick up the bird at the Schiefert farm. He brought it to his own home where he kept it in his basement for several days, hand-feeding it raw meat. The middle talon on the left foot of the bird was missing, indicating that it might have been caught in a trap. No one knows for sure if that is what happened.

Determining that the national bird was deserving of federal attention, Josephson brought the FEEDING TIME for the bald eagle being cared for at Agassiz national wildlife refuge calls for some advance preparation. Thad Fuller, assistant refuge manager, defrosts a pail of perch which he secured from the state fisheries office at Bemidji. The eagle receives the fish every two days and seems to have developed a taste for it. Fuller has accepted the task of caring for the eagle which will be released this spring.

BSC Extension Course Here

A Bemidji state college extension course, supervision of student teachers, will be offered in Thief River Falls during the spring quarter for three quarter hours. The course is designed for experienced teachers who supervise or expect to supervise students assigned for student teaching.

The first meeting will be at 6:30 p.m., March 31, at Northland state junior college.

Tuition is $13 per quarter hour, or $39. Checks should be made payable to Bemidji state college and be presented to the instructor during registration at the first class meeting.

Plans Made For Scout Exposition Here On May 2

Annual Penn-Ro-Shall Boy Scout exposition will take place Sunday, May 2, at the Thief River Falls National Guard armory. The exposition is sponsored by the local district of the Lake Agassiz Boy Scout council and the Thief River Falls Jaycees.

Boy Scout units from communities throughout northwestern Minnesota and three units from Winnipeg, Man., will participate in the event, which will be held in conjunction with an adult hobby show.

The theme for this year's exposition is "Tomorrow's Manpower Through Guided Boypower", according to district chairman Art Heinze.

A scout exposition is designed to give the general public a demonstration of the purposes of the Boy Scout organization. Each unit will demonstrate a different phase of scouting, and the event will also give scout leaders an opportunity to see what other communities are doing in scouting, according to Heinze.

Pre-Schoolers At Goodridge Will Attend Round-up

A pre-school round-up will take place March 25 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Goodridge school.

All children who are six years old by September 1 and who will be entering first grade in the fall should attend, along with at least one of their parents.

Appointments have been made with a dentist, optometrist and the Thief River Clinic professional association and the Falls Clinic professional association. The bus will leave Goodridge at 9 a.m. and return at noon for the afternoon activities.

Invitations to the round-up have been mailed. Anyone who did not receive one is asked to contact Gordon Henrickson, elementary school principal.

Northland Opens Spring Quarter On Wednesday

L. B. Hartz was elected president of the society to fill the vacancy created by the death of Christensen, and Randall Noper was elevated to the vice presidency to succeed Gulbranson.

Jerry Deal To Speak At Taxpayer Meet

THAT TIME OF YEAR when river ice becomes treacherous is now upon us, and annual reminders to that effect are being placed by Post 2793 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Thief River Falls. Cliff "Squire" Overum, left, and Bernhard Johnson are shown as they put up the signs Friday by the Eighth street bridge. The post has adopted the safety project each year and hopes that the signs will remind parents to advise their children of the danger. Raising and lowering of water levels, coupled with a moving current, make river ice particularly unsafe at this season of the year.

Jerry Deal, a 38-year old Wheaton grain farmer and executive director of the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association—an organization dedicated to bringing about real property tax relief—will be the guest speaker at the first organizational meeting of the Northwest Taxpayers association at Lincoln high school auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Twelve directors will be elected at the meeting and these directors will elect officers at a later meeting, according to temporary officers of the organization.

Of the group's aim, Deal says, "We are not trying to incite the people. We are trying to educate them and inform them. As a bloc, real property taxpayers could be more powerful than a union. We have to have a freeze on property taxes right now and we have to have the amendment."

(The amendment Deal referred to is an amendment to the state constitution which would place a limit of one per cent of fair market value on real estate tax levies. Many protestors are reportedly threatening to withhold real estate tax payments on their property until the amendment is adopted.)

Deal said the amendment's one per cent ceiling would cut $500 million from the state's income. He said the freeze on real estate levies would be necessary because an amendment would not be put to a popular vote until the 1972 general election.

"Taxes must be lowered," Deal said. "Otherwise they will take your home, they will take your farm, and they will take your business. There is no limit to where taxes will go."

According to a study report issued by the Minnesota Taxpayers association, property taxes payable in 1970 amounted to $873.4 million, with school district levies accounting for about 70 per cent of the total.

Deal says that property taxes should finance services for property, including police protection and fire prevention. He does not believe they should be used for "people programs", such as welfare, health and education projects.

Foster Homes To Be Topic Thurs.

To supply further information on the shortage of foster homes for teenage children and retarded adults in Marshall county, a meeting will be held in room 1 at the Middle River school Thursday at 7 p.m. to discuss the foster home program and answer questions.

A county welfare department staff member will be present at the meeting.

In performing its duties of recruiting, licensing and supervising foster boarding homes for both children and adults, the welfare department welcomes inquiries from persons interested in providing foster care to children with no special problems, but there is a greater need now for families that can provide a home for a teenage child.

Requests for this type of foster home are more numerous than the homes available and may result from family trouble, health problems, school difficulties or Juvenile Court action.

For example, a foster home might serve a boy who had problems with the law and was failing in school. Because of parental absence, the boy was not receiving the necessary supervision and support. A foster home could be used in this case to motivate and redirect his abilities to do better school work and improve his behavior.

However, many more homes

Soil Scientist Predicts Higher Yields By 1980

Routine harvests of 300-bushel corn, 100-bushel soybeans and 10-ton alfalfa yields can be expected in the next 10 years, according to A.C. Caldwell, professor of soil science at the University of Minnesota.

Caldwell commented on the crop output situation for 1980 in a recent issue of "Minnesota Science," a university publication.

"It will be a major task in soil fertility to integrate the soil supply and the additional nutrients needed to get the yield and still maintain crop quality," he said.

Although computerized soil tests are now available, by 1980 more precise information will have to be fed into the computer to get maximum production, Caldwell added.

"In 10 years we will have a combination of better soil evaluation techniques and plant diagnostic methods, which will enable us to balance nutrients and non-nutrients in soils and to improve overall crop quality. We have seen how an imbalance in nutrients, such as excess phosphorus can interfere with zinc nutrition. By 1980 we will recognize other interactions, perhaps instances where more than two elements interact," Caldwell said.

He expected that by 1980 more nutritious crop species, such as high lysine corn, soybeans with higher oil content and better fruits and vegetables will be available. "Soil nutrients will have to be properly adjusted to maintain the quality of these crops," he added.

Caldwell predicted that more specialty crops, perhaps all bearing high sugar or relish sources, will appear that demand their own special set of soil conditions for high yield and quality. In the next 10 years, more will be learned about the palatability of crops—an elusive quality—and how it can be modified by manipulating soil fertility, he added.

Interest is expected to increase in using sewage effluent to provide water and nutrients to field crops rather than emptying the wastes into rivers. Soil fertility specialists will be called upon to evaluate the nutrient contribution of sewage wastes to crop growth and quality, he said.

To meet the quality and quantity of world food needs, it will be necessary to select plant species or varieties having the potential to form proteins high in essential amino acids. "These plants must then be fertilized with whatever nutrients are required for them to grow normally and to synthesize protein at an optimum rate," Caldwell said.

Advise Veterans To Check Before Starting School

Minnesota veterans who plan to begin their GI bill enrollment in high school or college at midterm should make an immediate stop at the Veterans administration center at Fort Snelling or their nearest veterans county service officer.

The VA will supply application forms and advise the veteran on whether the school courses he is considering are recognized by the state approving agency and the VA.

John R. Murphy, director of the Minnesota VA office, reminded veterans that attached to their completed applications should be a copy of military separation papers (DD Form 214), and marriage license and birth certificates of their children, if any, so the VA can correctly figure the monthly checks.

A married veteran, with one child, for example, is entitled to $230 a month for full-time school enrollment in high school or college.

Murphy said that when the veteran submits his VA certificate of eligibility to his school, he is advised to make certain the school promptly returns an endorsed copy to the VA so payments can start.

Veterans are entitled to a maximum of 36 months of school if they were on active duty for at least 18 months, he said. For less than 18 months of service, school time is earned at the rate of one and one-half months of schooling for each month of active duty.

Veterans are eligible for GI bill benefits if they had at least 181 days of active duty, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955, and were released under other than dishonorable conditions, according to the VA official.

Enrollment in high school under the GI bill is not charged against further GI bill entitlement, he emphasized.

Music Students May Apply For 'U' Scholarships

High school seniors from Thief River Falls with a special interest in both music and the University of Minnesota are eligible to try out for the freshman applied music scholarships.

Each year approximately 35 scholarships are made available by the music department to talented music students entering the university as freshmen majoring in music. These scholarships will apply toward payment of the major instrument lessons for the freshman year. The exact amount of the award will be announced at the time of the auditions.

Auditions for strings and piano will take place on Saturday, April 24, and those for winds and voice will be held on Saturday, May 1, both in Scott hall on the Minneapolis campus.

For the audition a student must be prepared to sing or play, on the instrument of his choice, two representative compositions which reveal his highest technical skill. The pieces need not be memorized. Accompanists will be available for those who need them.

Persons interested in auditioning should obtain application blanks from the university and file them by April 20. They will be notified of their audition time.

For further information or to obtain an application blank contact Music Department, 105 Scott hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn., 55455, phone (612) 373-3546.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

features from the kitchen of
Mrs. Olaf Wernes
101 North Merriam

When quick breads, using soda or baking powder for leavening, began to appear, old-timers wagered, "They will never be popular." Due to the persistence of homemakers who are constantly trying to improve recipes, quick breads did become popular. The coarse texture with tunnels, the size of a pencil, that was characteristic of these breads, has been eliminated together with the unpleasant taste of too much soda and baking powder. Today, slices of quick breads are served with pride at the most elegant social events.

We are grateful to Mrs. Olaf Wernes of this city for sharing her recipe for Cinnamon Bread, the first quick spice bread recipe in our Kitchen Karnival files.

Cinnamon Bread

- ¾ cup shortening
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 3 eggs
- 2 cups flour
- 2 level teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 level teaspoon cloves
- 2 cups sour milk or buttermilk
- 2 teaspoons soda
- 1½ cups flour
- 1 cup raisins

Method: Combine shortening, sugar and eggs in a large bowl. Mix well with an electric beater. Sift together 2 cups flour and the spices. Set aside. Combine sour milk or buttermilk and soda. While beating with the mixer, alternately add the buttermilk mixture and the flour and spices. Remove mixer and stir in the remaining flour. Generously grease and flour two large bread pans. Pour half of the batter into one pan. To the remaining batter, add the raisins. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, or until done.

Mrs. Wernes stated that this bread keeps for at least two or three weeks when stored in the refrigerator in a plastic bag.

Mr. and Mrs. Wernes came here four years ago from Milwaukee, Wis., where they had resided for 23 years. Before retiring, Mr. Wernes was employed as a carpenter. Mrs. Wernes, who is formerly of the Grygla area, enjoys raising houseplants. While in Milwaukee she had a large variety of African Violets. Since coming here, she has been specializing in Dieffenbachia, a broad-leaf plant.

Bergland Calls Hardin Action Unacceptable

U.S. Representative Bob Bergland labled the refusal, by Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin, to boost milk price supports to 90 per cent of parity, as "unacceptable" and said that current administration policies would "drive dairy prices down to 75 per cent of parity by 1972." Hardin announced Friday that price supports would remain at 1970 levels.

Last week Bergland had written to Secretary Hardin saying that 90 per cent of parity was "essential to maintain a viable dairy industry in the United States." In the same letter Bergland called for increased purchases of cheese for the school lunch program and asked the administration to close loopholes in cheese import programs.

Hardin has agreed to increase cheese purchases for the school lunch program and has, after conceding that cheese imports had exceeded expectations, asked the U.S. tariff commission to review cheese import policies.

While Bergland said he appreciated [illegible] of the secretary's actions, he added: "The major problem experienced by dairy farmers was—and remains—the lack of a fair price for their product."

Social Security Benefit Raise Starts June 3

Social security checks arriving June 3 will be the first to include the 10 per cent raise in social security benefits just approved by Congress. They will be the checks for the month of May.

The increase will be retroactive to January, 1971. A separate check containing the raise for four back months, January through April, will arrive later in June, Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security, announced.

Those now getting social security benefits do not need to contact the social security office to get this raise. By May 1 the computers will have figured the raise and back benefits for all of the 26 million beneficiaries receiving monthly payments.

The Treasury department will have the month of May to print the checks and turn them over to the Post Office Department to assure delivery on June 3.

Social security checks arriving on April 3 and May 3 will be in the same amounts as before.

Clacker Balls Rate High In Injury Potential

Whirling "clacker balls" rate high in eye injury potential as well as in popularity, warns the Minnesota Society for the Prevention of Blindness. On the market only a few months, the latest toy craze is under investigation by the Federal Food and Drug administration (FDA).

Danger lies in the balls' tendency to shatter upon impact, sending jagged chips flying. Eye injuries head the list of serious accidents attributed to the toy so far.

The toy is made of two small hard balls attached to two cords on a metal or plastic ring. The user swings the balls so they strike each other to achieve a rhythmic "clacking" sound. The FDA has found that several small manufacturers are using substandard materials for their "clacker balls". Some are casting materials in Christmas tree ornament molds. The mold markings and the drilling of the balls to allow affixing them to the cords weakens the toy.

The FDA and the National Bureau of Standards are developing manufacturing and testing requirements for the toy and the FDA is planning to issue a regulation covering materials, construction and pre-marketing testing of it. After the FDA regulation is in effect, "clacker" toys which do not meet the requirements will be subject to immediate recall.

In the meantime, suggests the Minnesota Society, consumers should postpone purchasing the toy until the FDA regulation takes effect. The Administration has promised fast action, anticipating regulation in April.

Warmer Weather Increases Hazard Of Ice On Roads

With warmer temperatures coming as winter starts drawing to a close, the Minnesota AAA today warned motorists to be especially cautious as temperatures rise from a hard-freeze to around 32 degrees above zero.

Under such conditions, says the motoring organization, a particularly treacherous, invisible and slick sheet of ice often forms upon pavements. Stopping distances on icy roads at 32 degrees are about twice as great as they are at zero.

The AAA offered the following suggestions for motorists:

Follow other cars at considerably greater distances during icy road conditions to compensate for longer stopping distances. Stopping is best accomplished by rapid application and release of the brake pedal, assuring maximum steering control while brakes are off and maximum braking while brakes are on.

To get the "feel" of a slippery road, AAA advises testing the vehicle's brakes at slow speeds on a level, traffic-free stretch of road. It should be remembered that a rapid increase or decrease in acceleration may put the car into a dangerous skid.

If the rear of your automobile starts to skid, the accelerator should be released and the front of the car steered in the direction of the skid. As soon as the car starts to straighten itself out, straighten the front wheels.

When ascending a hill under icy conditions, stay far enough behind traffic so you will not have to slow down or stop. This extra added space may also allow you to pull around the car in front should it become stalled.

On upgrades, a little extra speed at the bottom of the hill will give the extra momentum to help carry you over the top. If wheels start to spin at any time in the climb up the hill, release the accelerator until the spinning stops.

Finally, when reaching the crest of a hill before starting down, it's best to reduce speed to a minimum.

"For best results on the downhill run, put the transmission into second gear or a lower automatic range than 'Drive', and pump the brakes lightly to keep the speed down," says AAA.

Eggs tend to keep longer when stored broad end up because this position protects the sealed air cell just below the broad end of the shell.

Drivers Affirm: Fastened Safety Belts Save Lives

"My wife and I owe our lives to firmly fastened seat belts."

"My wife and I were both wearing seat belts. My son was in the car seat for children, also strapped in with the infant seat belt." (The car was a total wreck) "My wife had a small bruise on her forehead. My son didn't move in his car seat. I as the driver had no injury."

"I can only assume that without the seat belt I would have gone over the steering wheel and into the windshield, possibly landing on the hood or pavement all cut up. I might not have been killed, but would have spent considerable time in a hospital."

These testimonials to the effectiveness of safety seat belts are typical of many from the most recent members of the Saved by the Belt Safety Club, sponsored by the Minnesota department of public safety and the Minnesota safety council.

Gordon A. Sullivan, St. Paul, was driving on Interstate 94 with his wife near Madison, Wis., when a collision with a truck threw his car into a reverse spin-out into another lane, where it was hit head-on by another truck. The front end of the car was demolished, the windshield shattered and the roof partly collapsed. Mrs. Sullivan especially "would have been literally torn to bits were she not firmly fastened to her seat."

E. Randolph Ayler was driving north on highway 10 with his wife and son when a car ran a red light and crossed the highway into the path of the Ayler car. The other car was struck broadside at 35 to 40 miles per hour. Thanks to their foresightedness in buckling up, the Aylers survived with nothing more serious than a slight bruise.

Mr. W., who asked that his name not be used, was driving home on a well-traveled state trunk highway at 60 miles per hour. "All at once this old car seemed to drop right in front of me. I had no chance to turn right or left, and I hit the car. While my bumper absorbed a lot of the jolt, it was still about like hitting a stone wall .. The patrolman ... estimated I was going 45 miles per hour on impact."

These testimonials are among several hundred which have been received by the Saved by the Belt Safety Club. Each person reporting such experiences has received a personalized emblem to be placed on the dashboard of his car.

Anybody who has had an experience in which a safety seat belt prevented or reduced injury is eligible to membership in the club. Communications should be sent to the Minnesota Safety Council, Hamm Building, St. Paul, 55102.

IRS Will Help Many In Filing Tax Returns

If you haven't filed your 1970 federal tax return, don't overlook the offer from the IRS to figure your tax, and save yourself time and work, and possibly prevent later inconvenience.

Approximately 40 per cent of American taxpayers are eligible for this help, according to George Lethert, IRS district director. To have the IRS compute your tax, your income must be $20,000 or less, received from salaries, dividends, interest and pensions and annuities, and you must elect the standard deduction.

This same assistance is offered to elderly individuals who are entitled to claim the retirement income credit, Lethert said.

Use of the wrong tax table, line or column, or computing the retirement income credit was the greatest error category in income tax returns filed last year.

To have the IRS compute their tax, taxpayers need only complete certain lines on Form 1040—filing status, exemptions, income and credits, or include certain information on Schedule R and attach it to the return. After the tax is figured, the IRS will send a refund check or a bill for any tax owing.

Details are contained in the instruction booklet that comes with the tax forms.

'Wild' Potatoes Most Successful In Chipping Test

Potatoes that can be processed for chips without being warmed after cold storage have been developed recently by University of Minnesota and U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) researchers.

About 1,000 out of 2,200 potato seedlings tested within the past two months at the Red River Valley potato processing laboratory, East Grand Forks, passed the "chip test," according to Florian Lauer, university horticulture professor.

The potatoes retained an acceptable, light color rather than darkening after being stored at 40 degrees for at least six weeks and being processed without the usual warm up procedure known as "reconditioning," he added.

The research has been underway for more than five years and the potatoes were grown at the university's North Central branch experiment station at Grand Rapids.

Roy Shaw, processing laboratory director, predicted that in 10 years new potato varieties will be available for shipping from cold storage for processing.

Lauer said the research has shown that adapted potato varieties don't pass the "chip test" after cold storage followed immediately by processing—they always turn dark.

Reconditioning after cold storage with presently adapted potato varieties present other problems for the grower and processor.

Spoilage due to diseases, mechanical injury or frost, for example, usually is intensified during the warm up period, which is generally two to four weeks.

Potatoes used in this research were developed through crossbreeding, which involved a South American variety. Most of the potatoes that passed the "chip test" were "wild," having only half the number of chromosomes of adapted North American varieties.

"Wild" varieties don't generally yield as much weight as adapted varieties under Red River Valley conditions, but Lauer said at this point he hasn't ruled "wild" varieties unacceptable for Minnesota.

Crossbreeding research will continue, Lauer said, in an attempt to develop potatoes that not only can be chipped without reconditioning, but will also [illegible] adaptable to conditions in Minnesota's sand plains and Red River valley. It is anticipated that these new varieties will be adaptable to other potato-growing areas as well.

Red River Valley potato growers have recognized the need for new special purpose varieties for year-around processing which might require 11 or 12-month storage. Potato research in the valley has been supported by the Red River Valley Potato Growers association, agricultural experiment stations of Minnesota and North Dakota and USDA.

Bishop Povish Speaks At KC Banquet Here

Our Lady of Lourdes Council 4619, Knights of Columbus, held their annual past grand knight's banquet on Sunday, March 14, at St. Bernard's church with Bishop Kenneth J. Povish as the main speaker.

Father Gerold Foley served as master of ceremonies, and special guests included Knights of Columbus state deputy Medard Yutrzenka, district deputy Lawrence Brown, Father Keough Patnode and Fred Protz, a 50-year member of the Knights of Columbus.

Four $50 scholarships were presented to students at the Area Vocational-Technical school and Northland state junior college by Terry Courneya of the council's scholarship committee. Those receiving scholarships were Linda Robinson and Brenda Booth of Thief River Falls and Cindy Haugen of McIntosh and Shirley Rivera, Bogley.

Clarence Semanko introduced the past grand knights who were present and presented the past grand knight's pin to immediate past grand knight Robert Protz. Protz was cited for his leadership of the council during the previous year.

The church parlors were decorated in a St. Patrick's Day theme. John Shafer of Red Lake Falls was the banquet chairman.

State Jaycees Endorse Bill On Breath Test

A bill which would require a suspected drunk driver to take a breath test and permits police to make random spot checks for valid driver's licenses has been endorsed by the board of directors of the Minnesota Jaycees.

Under the provisions of the "Baggie Bill", a suspected drunk driver is required to blow into a plastic bag which changes color if sufficient alcohol is present. This technique permits the police officer to determine whether he has reasonable grounds to arrest but it cannot be used as evidence in court.

The "Baggie Bill" also legally defines the percentage of alcohol in the blood necessary to be "under the influence". This change is necessary because existing Minnesota Laws do not specify that it is illegal to drive with 0.10 per cent alcohol in the blood.

Police officers under the "Baggie Bill" would be permitted to make random checks for valid driver's licenses. In Minnesota one out of every 10 fatal crashes involves a driver who is driving without a legal license.

In addition to the Jaycees, the bill has been endorsed by the Metropolitan Safety council, the Minnesota Automobile association and the Minnesota Safety council.

Foster Homes To Be Topic At Thursday Meet

willing to accept such a challenge are needed.

The Marshall County welfare department is also responsible for the supervision and care of mentally retarded adults when no other resource is available. This includes providing medical care, guardianship services, and appropriate living arrangements.

For the most part these needs are being met adequately by community resources, but, again, there is a shortage of foster boarding homes for many of these adults.

There are several reasons for this shortage. Many group boarding homes in the area are at full occupancy, making it difficult to place additional persons. There is also a growing recognition that the retarded adult is happier remaining in his own community near friends and relatives. Finally, many who have been in state institutions have developed to the point where they are ready for community placement.

(This is becoming more common because of the special training and more effective medications the retarded receive at the institutions.)

Increasingly the Marshall County welfare department is using private foster boarding homes to fill its needs. There is currently one home in the county that has two retarded women discharged from the Fergus Falls state hospital. Welfare officials term this home "quite successful" and report that both the boarding parents and the residents are pleased with the placement, at the same time emphasizing the need for more homes of this type.

Everyone interested in providing foster boarding care now, or at some time in the future, to either teenage children or retarded adults is encouraged to contact by mail the Marshall County Welfare department, Box 66, Warren, Minn. 56762. All questions will be answered and all inquiries followed by personal contact.

Workshop Slated On All-Terrain Motor Vehicles

An all-terrain vehicle workshop for motor vehicle administrators, safety and law enforcement officials will be held at the Thunderbird Motel on March 29, 30 and 31, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund announced today.

"This workshop," Hoaglund said, "is being sponsored by the American Association of Motor Vehicle administrators, and will bring in state and provincial officials from the 48 continental states, Alaska and Canada.

"The vehicle to be included in the workshop discussions are snowmobiles, dune buggies, minibikes and other special types. Officials will attend sessions on registration, titling, driver licensing, equipment and enforcement.

"The sudden popularity of these types of vehicles in all parts of the country has brought many problems to state and local officials. Not the least of these is the high incidence of accidents, deaths, damage to property and wildlife, and law violations.

A highlight of the workshop will be a display of all types of vehicles under discussion.

Commissioner Hoaglund has been appointed chairman of the workshop.

Brian Buroker To Serve Mission Field In Calif.

Brian Buroker, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Gene Buroker of St. Hilaire, leaves March 27 for the mission home of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints at Salt Lake City, Utah, to begin two years as a missionary for the church.

Buroker will spend five days in orientation in Utah and will then serve in the California south mission area, headquartered in Anaheim, Calif.

A 1970 graduate of Lincoln high school here, Buroker attended one semester at Ricks college, a church-owned school in Rexburg, Idaho, before his call by senior church elders to the mission field.

Buroker was ordained to the office of elder in the church in February and was honored at a special service at the Grand Forks branch chapel on March 7, where he, his parents, and Robert Bromley of Thief River Falls, spoke of the challenges and opportunities of his new station.

Also at that time, Janice Buroker, his sister, sang "He Shall Feed His Flock," from Handel's "Messiah."

Huot Dam Will Be Discussed At Red Lake Falls

An interim survey report on the Huot dam project and related flood and water problems are the subjects at a public meeting to be held March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Red Lake Falls high school auditorium.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has called the meeting to exchange information concerning flooding and to discuss ecological and environmental problems in the area, as well as their possible solutions.

Recurrent flooding of urban development areas in the city of Crookston and downstream agricultural areas along the lower Red Lake river valley are considered the most critical problems in the Red Lake river sub-basin.

In its studies the corps of engineers also found that the Red Lake river contributes greater flood flow volumes to the Red River of the North than any other tributary.

One objective of the interim survey is to reduce flood damages sustained by downstream urban and agricultural areas along both rivers. Another objective, according to district engineer Charles I. McGinnis, is to provide additional water-oriented recreation opportunities desired by residents of the Red Lake river basin.

All interested parties and property owners who wish to express their views are urged to be present at the meeting. Everyone will have the opportunity to furnish specific data on matters pertinent to the study.

Child Restraint Seats Available For Auto Use

Contrary to reports that child restraining systems for automobiles are scarce in some parts of the country, they are readily available in Minnesota, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

The recommended safeguard for very small children is a padded seat which sets upon the front seat, and is firmly secured by a safety belt. They are generally used for youngsters from age one to three or four, and sell for from $9 to $25.

A survey of dealers and suppliers in the Twin Cities metropolitan area indicated that the infant restraint is becoming a popular item, with purchases particularly high in December. Following are the types and suggested retail prices of the seats in Minnesota:

Ford dealers carry one seat, a fully-padded model which sells for $25.

General Motors carried three models—one for small infants up to one year for $10, a standard model for small children at $9, and a deluxe, well padded model for $19.

Chrysler carries just one seat, a padded model for $19.

Most dealers carry just one or two seats in stock, but can order them out of the depots in a short time.

"It is not uncommon," said Hoaglund, "to see a mother and father buckled up with the mother holding a small child on her lap. In the case of a collision, this child has no protection whatever. The car seat gives the small child maximum protection, at the same time elevating him so that he can see out of the windows. A good car seat should be a must for all families with very small children."

Herbst Opposes Mineral Search

Minnesota Commissioner of Natural Resources Robert Herbst has registered a strong objection to announced plans of the U.S. Geological Survey to search for minerals in the Boundary Waters Area.

On Thursday, March 4, the U.S.G.S. revealed that they plan on sending a mineral mapping team into the BWCA this summer and that exploratory drilling might be undertaken later if the survey indicates possible mineralization.

Herbst said the mineral exploration is premature. The U.S.G.S. says the information is needed in order to establish a value on minerals in case the courts decide that private mineral holdings must either be purchased by the federal government or allowed to be developed by their owners.

Herbst stated in a letter to Secretory of Interior Rogers Morton that "It is my conviction that mineral exploration in the B.W.C.A. is undesirable and unnecessary until a judgement has been entered by the court in the lawsuit now pending in federal district court, Duluth."

Herbst requested Secretary Morton to reconsider any decision which may have been made to proceed with the geologic mapping program.

Staff members are Mrs. LaVerne Nyflot, director, Lake Bronson, and Mrs. Florence Clow, Lancaster. There are four students enrolled presently and two more will enroll by April 1. The center is expected to have at least 10 students within a few months.

The program at the center is designed to give special attention to the needs of the enrollees, ranging in age from eight to the early 20s, currently attending the half-day classes.

The center is governed by a board of directors who represent all the communities in Kittson County. On the board are Dr. Kenneth Melashenko, Robert Severson, Gary Treumer, Gary C. Erickson, Mrs. Kay Rosengren, Stuart Folland, Victor L. Johnson, Roy Starks, L. C. Ward, Rev. David W. Christman, George W. Dann, Verta Johnson, Dr. M. W. Hoffman and Mrs. LaVerne Swan.

The board and staff report satisfaction with the progress of the center, but say there is an urgent need for volunteer services. Anyone interested in assisting the staff may indicate so by making an appointment with the director at 754-3225.

Under state law day activities centers receive 50 per cent operating funds, while the other half of the cost must be raised through local sources or county funds.

Other instructors included John Krueger and James McHall, both from the state department of taxation in St. Paul.

Those passing the exams held on March 12 will be awarded certificates.

The school was sponsored through the university's general extension division department of conferences and institutes.

DONALD ERICKSON, far right, of the Soil Conservation Service work unit at Thief River Falls, talks to students at Washington elementary school on ways area farmers are dealing with pollution problems. The 15 minute presentation was given to 17 elementary classes at Knox, Washington, Mark Twain and Northrop schools in a two day period. Visual aids in the talks included two plastic-topped farm models, one of which is seen above, constructed by a Crookston cabinet maker, and aerial views of anti-pollution actions taken by local cattle feeders and dairymen. Erickson pointed out that owners of major cattle operations must deal with raw effluents totaling twice that produced by a city the size of Thief River Falls.

A discussion of the by-laws was held, and it was decided to have a 17 member board, made up of two delegates each from Red Lake, Polk, Kittson, Marshall, Mahnomen, Pennington and Norman counties and three at-large delegates. The by-laws were approved and the articles of incorporation, have been filed with the state.

"Like its predecessor, our present civilization may be no more than one of those crops farmers sow to improve their land by the fixation of nitrogen from the air; it may have grown only that, accumulating certain traditions, it may be ploughed into the soil again for better things to follow." —H. G. Wells

Hiding An Arplane?

President Malcolm Moos of the University of Minnesota is upset about an implication by legislators that the university had secretly expended funds to purchase an aircraft that is not in the best interests of the university and its educational mission

"The aircraft in question was purchased for $295,000 by the university in a perfectly normal, straightforward and open way," President Moos said in a press statment. "It has been operated on the same basis. None of the funds used to purchase the aircraft were appropriated by the legislature....The money for the purchase of the plane came from income on investments on non-legislative or otherwise restricted funds."

Later in the release, he notes: "My family and I have used the King Air on 30 occasions since it was purchased, for trips to my summer home in Walker, Minnesota. I spend invaluable time studying reports, conserving my energies and composing speeches and messages on my visits to Walker. There has been no effort to disguise the fact that the plane has been used to take me to Walker and I daresay that it is a prudent use of state funds to provide the President of the State University with such transportation when the plane is not other-wise occupied."

The university probably has legitimate use for the airplane in question and most likely did not try to keep the aircraft under wraps. After all, it would be somewhat difficult to hide a $295,000 airplane, especially if it is frequently used.

There might be some question about availability of funds to purchase the plane. At a time when the university is crying the blues to the legislature about badly needed appropriations for operation, there may be some validity to questioning the availability of $295,000 in "non-legislative or otherwise restricted funds". Even for a state university, more than a quarter of a million bucks is a fair piece of change.

There could also be a question of hauling the president's family to its summer home 30 times since Jan. 14, 1970. It might be suggested that a more economical way could be found for the president to study reports, conserve his energies and compose speeches and messages.

This is, however, an education-oriented society, and many things are condoned in the name of education. The airplane mentioned is only one of these. It can be justified in the rationale of the college administration, and apparently that is all that is necessary. It is easier to attempt to justify it than try to hide it anyway.

Poison Prevention

Instances of children requiring medical attention due to ingestion of toxic substances are more frequent than many of us realize. The inherent curiosity of children and the multitude of household substances in use today compound the problem.

This week has been declared Poison Prevention Week and is a good time to check the situation in homes where young children live or visit.

If a child does take a potentially toxic substance or is suspected to have taken it, a physician or emergency room of the nearest hospital should be contacted. If more than one adult is present, one should do the calling while the other reads the label for appropriate first aid measures. It is of extreme importance to get adequate information quickly and not wait "to see if anything happens".

Medications found in many homes are the most frequently involved in poisonings. Other potentially dangerous items include cleaning agents, paint thinner, furniture polish, pesticides, petroleum products and other household items.

It is a good idea for parents of small children to have immediately at hand the telephone numbers of a doctor and pharmacist. Medicines should be referred to as medicine rather than "candy" when given to children, and should be taken by adults while out of the sight of children so they won't be tempted to imitate.

Containers of household cleaning and polishing substances should be rinsed before discarding. In the case of pesticide containers, they should be buried at least 18 inches below ground. (Before burial, cans, with the exception of aerosols, should be punctured; glass containers should be broken.) These, and other containers such as bags, should never be burned because of the possibility of toxic smoke.

Prevention is the key to reducing accidental poisonings.

Truck Trains Again

Legislation to permit double-bottom trucks on Minnesota highways has again been introduced in the state legislature and the same old arguments are being expounded.

The truckers contend that the larger units would increase efficiency and provide greater, more economical service to business and consumers in the state.

The railroads claim that trains belong on the tracks rather than the highways and that double-bottoms would create additionally unfair competition among common carriers.

Motorists are concerned about safety factors of meeting, passing or being passed by the larger units, particularly on two-lane highways, city streets or when roads are wet, snow-covered or icy.

Taxpayers wonder if the pounding given to roads by the heavy trucks is paid for in great enough degree to compensate for the damage done. It is reasonable to assume that adding units would increase the damage.

We'll go along with the motorist in this case, believing that double-bottom units would be a menace to highway safety in Minnesota and that increased highway costs result from heavy truck use. Furthermore, we think that the legislature will listen to the motorist and not permit truck-trains in Minnesota during this session.

Clear Explanation

Government has a way of making things incredibly complicated, often to the extent that the average layman just throws up his hands in bewilderment. A case in point is the federal income tax form, which not only is complicated but subject to change from year to year.

An article in an exchange paper calls to attention Part VII of the new form which deals with the sale or exchange of property used in trade or business and involuntary conversions. Under line 48 the form includes a note to clarify any misunderstanding which the person completing the form may have. The note reads:

"Go to line 49 if there is a net loss on line 48; otherwise, (i) if the amount of line 47 is a gain, enter such gain on line 8, Part I, and do NOT complete the rest of Part VII, of (ii) if the amount on line 47 is other than a gain, omit lines 49, 50 and 51 (a), and enter such amount on line 51 (b) (i)."

How could anyone have a problem understanding what is necessary when instructions are as clear as that?

Believe It Or Not . . .

One should not make fun of the misfortunes of others, we suppose, but the circumstances involving an actual, on-the-job accident report submitted by an accident victim in Alberto, Canada, are just too funny not to invoke at least a chuckle: The report follows:

"When I got to the building, I found that the storm had knocked some bricks off the top. So, I rigged up a beam, with a pulley at the top of the building, and hoisted up a couple of barrels full of bricks. When I had repaired the building there were a lot of bricks left over, so I filled a barrel with these extra bricks. Next, I went to the bottom of the building and cast off the line.

"Unfortunately, the barrel of bricks was heavier than I am. Before I knew what was happening, the barrel started down, jerking me off the ground. I decided to hang on. Halfway up, I met the barrel coming down, and received a severe blow on the shoulder. I continued to the top of the building, where I banged my head against the beam, and jammed my finger on the pulley.

"When the barrel hit the ground, it burst its bottom. This allowed all the bricks to spill out. I now was heavier than the empty barrel, so I started down at high speed. Halfway down, I met the barrel coming up, and severely injured my shin. When I hit the bottom, I landed on the bricks and got several painful cuts from the sharp edges.

"At this point I must have lost my presence of mind. I let go of the line. The barrel came down and gave me another heavy blow on the head. This put me in the hospital."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This letter is written as constructive criticism only and for the purpose of alerting merchants in Thief River Falls of the retail situation as seen by the consumer.

I have moved to Thief River Falls from what I believe to be one of the most competitive retail centers in Minnesota. In this village of 5,000, there is very little industry and the economy is no doubt as low as any place in Minnesota. However, it still remains a shopping center for a 50 mile radius, simply because of the excellent way in which the merchants promote their individual business through consumer services. It is the policy of these merchants 'If we don't have it, we will get it for you.'

On several occasions I have found it necessary to make purchases in surrounding towns because I was unable to find a sales person interested in locating an item that was possibly in stock. It is my opinion that some merchants in Thief River Falls have tended to relax due to the support of industry and population increase. I would like to suggest that the local merchants get together and evaluate the present situation, as seen by the consumer. Let's see what we can do for the consumer from a sales and service standpoint. How can we better present ourselves and our product to the customer? Can we improve our sales people?

I do know that if professional help is required for such a merchandising seminar, most large manufacturers have persons available.

If you should rewrite and publish this letter or factions of it, I must, for business reasons, request that my name be withheld.

(Name withheld on Request)

To The Editor:

The Committee for Project Aid to Servicemen in Vietnam is glad of this opportunity to thank all businesses, organizations and individuals who have so generously donated to us during the post year.

Packages have been sent to individual soldiers and all USO units in the battle zone. These packages are placed by the doors for the boys to help themselves.

Our packages include presweetened soft drink mixes, instant chicken and beef broth, candy, gum, nuts, and bubblegum.

Our last shipment included small plastic bags for carrying the soft drink mixes and billfold calendars, which they have requested.

In 1970 donations and activity funds from bake sales and serving food at auctions amounted to $549.32. Fifty-one packages were sent weighing from 5 to 23 pounds each. Postage alone amounted to $150.60. All monies received are spent on the project. None is used for local expense.

Letters from the USO units and individual soldiers tell how much it means to them just to know that there are those who care for their comfort. To know that they are remembered is a great morale booster.

We hope to continue to do as well for 1971 or as long as our boys are fighting over there. But only through donations and the Committee's activities can we do this. Any donation will be greatly appreciated.

Send to Project Aid, c-o P.O. McGregor, Minnesota 55760.

Sincerely,
Mary Van Slyke, Chairman

notes from the governor

This week I signed into law a bill which pays additional emergency unemployment insurance benefits to those Minnesotans who have used up their regular benefits.

Many of us, especially in Minnesota had forgotten what times of high unemployment are like. We were shocked back into realization when many of us saw pictures in the newspapers of 1,000 men huddled in the cold, lined up to get a chance to apply for temporary day labor jobs in Minneapolis. The sad fact is that only 500 applications were accepted and only 200 jobs are likely to be open.

The lack of jobs is so great that 98,000 Minnesotans were unable to find jobs in January of this year—that is double the number in January of 1970. These people are the casualties of President Nixon's economic policies—policies which can only be changed on the national level.

But the Minnesota Legislature has properly acted on the state level to alleviate part of the problem. Of the 98,000 men and women out of work, as much as 10,000 of them have been unemployed for so long that their unemployment insurance has run out. This is the fund which they paid into while they were working. The Legislature passed and sent to my desk a law which authorizes thirteen more weeks of unemployment payments to those whose benefits have ended.

This does not solve the unemployment problem. But it does help those who are the victims of the present economy.

What does this mean to you? If you are unemployed and if your unemployment benefits have run out, I urge you to go to your local Manpower Services Office and apply for these emergency benefits at once. If your benefits have not yet run out but are about to—do nothing. They will be extended automatically.

If you should run into any problems, I invite you to call or write my office and I will see that all possible help is extended to you.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

A plan to realign the boundaries of the eight Congressional Districts in the state has been approved by the House. The bill now goes to the Senate for their consideration. It is expected that substantial changes to the bill will be made before a plan wins approval in that body. A conference committee of the House and Senate will then be named to work out a compromise between the two versions. The final hurdle will be to work out a plan that is acceptable to both houses of the legislature and the Governor.

A form letter regarding gun registration and increased penalties for anyone using a gun in the commission of a felony was published in the Warroad Pioneer recently. I have received a number of these letters that are signed by area people and would like to use this media to respond.

I am opposed to gun registration and have stated so many times. The criminal will pay no attention to such a law and to place restrictions on law abiding citizens will not reduce crime. It will only add many new positions to our state's payroll and place an additional burden on the taxpayers. We should be looking for ways to decrease the cost of government instead of increasing it.

I would also support legislation that would increase the penalty to anyone using a gun in the commission of a felony.

I have introduced a bill that would reimburse farmers for domestic animals that are killed by wild animals. We use taxpayers money to protect our wildlife and to improve the habitat so I think it only proper that taxpayers' money be appropriated to pay farmers for their losses.

Many bills have been introduced dealing with snowmobiles. Some of the bills would greatly restrict the use of these machines. The liability aspects of property owners permitting snowmobiles to cross their property is receiving careful study.

A proposal is being considered that would increase the registration fee and the additional money would be used for expanding the system of snowmobile trails in the state. The department of natural resources has prepared a very detailed outline of what they could accomplish in the next two years if certain changes are made. The industry and snowmobile users will have ample opportunity to be heard before any changes are made.

A Pioneer Rural Mail Carrier Passes Away

Sympathy is extended to the family of Ole K. Ose, who passed away at the Northwestern hospital Friday evening. He suffered a stroke at his home the previous Tuesday forenoon and was taken to the hospital by ambulance. There he was in intensive care until his death. He was 77 years old.

One more of the fast dwindling ranks of old time rural mail carriers passed on with the death of Ole K. Ose. Mr. Ose began carrying mail on route 2 in 1921, after having served in the U.S. Army in France during World War I. Like other carriers in those days he covered his route during the summer months with a Model-T Ford, and in the winter with horses and cutter. As the roads along his route improved he was able to use his automobile the year around. By equipping his Model A Ford with crawler-type tracks, and skis by the front wheels winter travel presented few problems. For 25 years or more Ole gave his very best to serve the patrons along rural route 2. How many times during the cold winter months he was asked to bring medicine for somone along the route who was ill, or small items of groceries, we do not know, but always he did so without thought of payment for the extra work. Always cheerful, always smiling it was a pleasure to visit a few moments by the mailbox or wave to him as he passed along the route. As one of the very best of the pioneer rural mail carriers and as a highly respected member of our community we are going to miss him.

Attention Taxpayers!

The following Editorial was read over K.X.J.B., Channel 4, Fargo, North Dakota, on Tuesday night, March 16, 1971, after the 10 o'clock news.

EDITORIAL

The current financial crisis facing schools in our area is a matter of concern to this station. For the past decade, the schools have been called upon to produce ever-increasing number of better educated citizens in order to keep this country on top of the ever-more complex technological world in which we live. This increased demand really began at the time the Russians launched their first satellite, and it is to the everlasting credit of the schools that the demand was met.

It has now become fashionable for property owners and taxpayers to call on the schools to "hold the line" on new programs, salary increases and other expenditures, while other public servants enjoy salary and expense increases.

The management of this station believes strongly that education is not the place to start cutting down on tax expenditures. The eventual cost paid, in citizens having less than a 100 per cent chance for a truly updated education would be too high.

When all across this nation there is an ever increasing need for well educated people . . . indeed, in these modern times when a good education is a necessity in order to compete for jobs . . . in order to understand the workings of government . . . and inorder to keep up with this constantly changing world, it would be the height of folly to cut back on opportunities for providing the best education possible to the future citizens of this country.

There are those who feel that education should simply be "adequate", but adequate is no longer good enough. The time is long past when reading, writing and arithmetic were all that was necessary to insure a chance for success.

The management of this station has always stood for broadening educational opportunities in this area. This station has supported a modest tax program for educational television, in order that some of the most forward-looking educational programs may be brought into the home at minimal expense to the viewers.

It is fully consistent with this stand that we urge our viewers to make every effort possible to support the cause of continued excellence in education at the local level.

Rabies Is Threat From Animal Pets

Skunks, raccoons, foxes and other wildlife should not be kept as pets since some of these animals may be infected with rabies, Dr. James A. Libby, University of Minnesota veterinarian, said.

Dr. Libby is also chairman of the public health committee of the Minnesota veterinary medical association and is an assistant professor of veterinary microbiology and public health at the University.

Skunks particularly are a problem in Minnesota and much of the Midwest. In fact, Illinois department of public health veterinarians, after completing a recent study, concluded that "skunks from the Midwest should not be kept as pets unless they are guaranteed pen-bred."

The risk of rabies from wild animals has been spread from the fields in recent years. "Wild animals trapped and sold as pets have on several occasions been responsible for human exposure to rabies," according to Dr. David Sencer, director of the center for disease control (CDC) of the U.S. public health service.

The long and unpredictable incubation period of rabies in a skunk makes it difficult to solve the problem by quarantining the skunk for a reasonable length of time. Exotic pets such as skunks may not show signs of the disease until a long time after being exposed to rabies. Although the animal may appear normal when it is acquired, it could come down with rabies at a later date, Libby said.

Minnesota ranked second in the number of rabid skunks reported in 1969 and was sixth that year among states in total cases of animal rabies, Libby added.

Skunks accounted for 58 per cent in 1969 and 62 per cent in 1970 of the rabid animals reported in Minnesota. In 1969, 103 of the 175 rabid animals reported were skunks and in 1970, 97 out of 134 were skunks, according to the Minnesota state livestock sanitary board.

Since 1961, skunks have been the most frequently infected species of wildlife in the United States, Sencer said. In 1969, rabid skunks were reported in 32 states and accounted for 43 per cent of the wildlife cases for the year. Of the 2,672 cases of rabies in wild animals in 1969, 1,156 were skunks; 888, foxes; and 321, bats, he added.

Since 1950, 23 persons have died in the United States from the bites of rabid wildlife—nine from skunks, seven from foxes, six from bats and one from a bobcat, Sencer said. Also, about 30,000 persons each year receive anti-rabies shots after suspecting they have been exposed to rabies.

In St. Paul during 1970, 81 persons were bitten by animals other than dogs or cats. In each case, a decision had to be made as the whether the persons bitten should be given rabies treatments. Since this decision usually is not a simple matter, a great deal of anxiety may be associated with it, Libby said.

State health departments in Georgia and Washington have reported to the CDC that skunks later found rabid were being sold by local pet dealers. In one case skunks were advertised as domesticated stock, pen-raised and rabies free.

At a recent meeting of the Minnesota veterinary medical association in St. Paul Dr. Paul Schnurrenberger of the Illinois department of public health, said veterinarians should stop descenting skunks and should discourage ownership of skunks as pets. The American veterinary medical association has advised its members "to discourage the capture and household confinement of wild, potentially rabid animals." The national association has also called on its members to influence the enactment of legislation to prohibit capturing wild animals for use as pets.

Corn Leaf Blight Not Expected To Be Early Problem

Southern corn leaf blight can be expected to return to Minnesota this year, but early season severe infection is not likely, says Herbert G. Johnson, University of Minnesota extension plant pathologist.

The most significant source of infection is likely to be windblown reproductive bodies, known as spores, from the south as in 1970. Although the disease's severity cannot be predicted at this time, Johnson said he did not think severe infection early in the season is likely. "The later it starts and builds up, the less damage it can cause," he added.

Tests at the St. Paul campus in January showed that southern corn leaf blight (SCLB) fungus was alive in infected corn plant material in the field under snow. Laboratory tests then showed that the fungus survived temperatures of about zero degrees in a wet and dry condition.

The first reaction to such information is likely to be concern for early infection of the 1971 Minnesota corn crop, however, other information indicates "such a possibility is remote or of little consequence," Johnson said. Northern corn leaf blight fungus, which is similar to SCLB fungus, was found to be alive on infested corn plant material in March, but it did not infect the following corn crop, research showed. It could "overwinter," but it could not "overspring." Johnson said.

Research in Pennsylvania showed that SCLB fungus could be induced to produce three crops of spores from infected corn plant material, but after that no more spores were found. Weather conditions occur at intervals in Minnesota during late March, April and early May when spores could be produced, but by the time the new corn crop has emerged, the fungus is likely to be through producing spores because it has exhausted its reserves or used up its food supply, he added.

The most likely place for SCLB fungus spores to overwinter successfully and infect the new crop in Minnesota is on ear corn in cribs, where the fungus is exposed to low temperature which it can likely survive. In cribs it is kept dry and not exposed to wetting, drying, freezing and thawing as in the field. If the corn is handled as in shelling or moved for feeding when the new corn crop is growing, spores can be released into the air and start infection on the growing corn crop as was the case in Iowa in 1970.

SCLB fungus infection in the kernel can result in some loss of germination and seedling mortality, but Minnesota research has shown that this infection does not result in leaf blight, Johnson said.

Wefald Speaks Against Farming By Corporations

Strongly urging passage of anti-corporation farm bills pending in the Minnesota legislature, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald insisted that "survival for the rural community is at stake." He testified in Governor Wendell R. Anderson's behalf.

He emphasized that "the issue is so important that it must transcend politics. That is why I support the efforts of liberals and conservatives alike to protect the farming industry and the inseparable rural community from the economic octopus that corporate farming represents."

Commissioner Wefald cited figures from the recent University of Minnesota institute of agriculture study he said demonstrates "the growing menace posed by corporate farming.

"Over 500 corporate farms existed in Minnesota last December, and two thirds of these are [illegible] corporations. This is a sharp increase from the 340 corporate farms inventoried in the university study during the spring of 1968," Commissioner Wefald stated.

He insisted, "the trend toward bigness that is concentrating production, assets and profits in a few hands is particularly damaging to our rural economy, and is dangerous to the total economy."

According to Fortune magazine, the commissioner stated, the top 500 corporations of the more than 200,000 business corporations in the United States already control over 75 per cent of all profits. He noted that the control group represents only one-quarter of one per cent of the total corporations.

Commissioner Wefald said that the broiler chicken industry is just one example among several. Moreover, the production of aluminum, copper, synthetic fibers, soap, salt and glass are controlled by only four or less firms.

"We have to avoid that happening to American agriculture and our family farm system. We have to protect and maintain the competition and private enterprise structure vital to our total economy while we still have the opportunity," he declared.

The agriculture chief also made the point that he does not oppose the right of farm families incorporating to preserve family operating ownership. Family incorporation has been recommended by the Future Farmers of America.

Commissioner Wefald said the threat to the survival of the rural community comes from the big business corporations exploiting the farming industry, for tax avoidance, speculation and in an attempt to gain a virtual monopoly that in the end will be devastating to the consumers.

"Corporation purchases of large blocks of farm land have artificially inflated agricultural land values on the one hand and sharply imbalanced real estate taxes for family farm operators and the rural service communities on the other hand. They strip the buildings—and the families—from their farm holdings and utilize a mobile equipment and labor force to crop the land.

"Prosperity and opportunity for the family farm means prosperity and opportunity for the independent businessman. Because this is a one-to-one relationship, protection of the family farm is essential to the survival of the total rural community," Commissioner Wefald concluded.

Nature's Own Cookies

Many cooks are celebrating spring in their kitchens with natural foods. The fashion and fondness for natural foods is spreading fast, and old fashioned molasses is right at the top of the list. Make cookies that Dame Nature herself might have designed to celebrate spring. The natural sweetener, molasses, flavors as well as sweetens the batter, and such natural foods as rolled oats, grated carrots and raisins help produce a wonderful, old-fashioned texture. The whole family will find these highly-nourishing, delicious cookies a fine way to discover that spring is here! Serve the cookies with Taffy Milk, made by stirring a tablespoon or two of old-fashioned molasses into a glass of milk.

Spring Cookies

Inspectors Say DDT Being Found On Dealer Shelves

Reporting that state inspectors are finding DDT and eight other restricted pesticides on some dealers' shelves throughout Minnesota, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald sharply warned the retail industry to comply immediately with the state regulations.

Regulations, with the full force and effect of state law and enforced by the Minnesota department of agriculture, restrict the sale, display and use of, DDT, DDD(TDE), Aldrin Dieldrin, Endrin, Heptachlor, Lindane, Thallium Sulfate and Compound 1080. Home and garden use of these is entirely prohibited.

Commissioner Wefald attributed finding the violations to the fact that retailers are restocking for the new insect and weed control season, and that "they and their suppliers are not being properly observant of our tough and ecologically sound state regulations."

He said state inspectors are requiring dealers holding valid permits to remove the restricted pesticides from display shelves, and that inspectors are placing under technical seizure any of the contraband items found in retail outlets that have not obtained 1971 permits.

"Our inspectors are checking all outlets, whether or not they have permits. Even with a permit, dealers are prohibited from displaying the restricted pesticides because sales can be made only to holders of user permits. Restricted pesticides must be handled just like a drug store prescription item," Commissioner Wefald warned.

Because Minnesota has some 9,000 potential outlets for pesticides, identified in the department's compliance check last summer and early fall, Commissioner Wefald admitted the policing job is a tough one for the limited number of state inspectors. He said he will welcome and immediately act on violation complaints from concerned consumers.

Minnesota department of agriculture has issued over 1,000 dealer permits to date, double the number issued during the first six months of the new environmental protection program, the commissioner reported.

Virus Disease May Aid Control Of Army Worms

University of Minnesota entomologists are studying a natural virus disease of the forest tent caterpillar with the hope of using the virus to control outbreaks of the insect in northern Minnesota's hardwood forests.

"Our aim is to artificially introduce the disease into an infested forest area early in the population build-up, so that the insects will be prevented from doing so much damage," said entomologist Marion A. Brooks.

The forest tent caterpillar, sometimes called the army worm, eats the leaves of apple, cherry, willow and especially aspen and other forest trees." In resort areas it often becomes a serious nuisance, she said.

Outbreaks of the forest tent caterpillar have occurred every 6-10 years since the first observed outbreak in 1891. From 1933 to 1938, a total of 4,500 square miles was completely defoliated in northern Minnesota, says entomologist John A. Witter.

But the forest tent caterpillar did the most damage in the early '50s when it defoliated some 150,000 square miles of hardwood forests in Ontario, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. "You could fly from International Falls, Minn., to Virginia, Minn., without seeing a leaf on any of the hardwoods," Witter said.

In 1968, the forest tent caterpillar population built up again and defoliated hardwoods from International Falls to Ely. Now there are about 30 square miles in the International Falls area with heavy infestations of the insect, Witter said.

The disease, called wilt disease, affects only forest tent caterpillars, destroying their internal organs. The caterpillars then turn into fragile bags of fluid and burst when touched, releasing the infectious virus onto the lower foliage and soil where the virus is eaten by other forest tent caterpillars.

"The forest tent caterpillar is a natural host of a wilt disease which occasionally spreads like wildlife through a crowded population of the insects, destroying all of them" Miss Brooks said.

"Unfortunately, there can be a lot of damage to the trees over a period of 3-4 years before the disease strikes," she explained.

The particulars on the virus disease are still unknown, Miss Brooks added. "We are not sure of the exact amount of virus to apply per acre of forest, and how best to make sure the suspension remains on the leaves and does not drip down to the ground. We also need to find out if other chronic diseases could interfere with the virus disease," she said.

"We plan to confine caterpillars on single trees covered with netting to study some of these factors. We are also attempting to establish the insect cells in tissue culture systems, and use these cells for culturing the virus so we can study its method of infecting cells microscopically," she said.

All microbial control measures such as virus disease are thoroughly studied for their effects on the environment before they are approved for practical application, she said.

Overeating One Serious Problem Of Older People

Overeating is one of the serious problems of aging, according to Dr. Arthur J. Klippen, director of the Minneapolis Veterans Administration hospital.

A research report recently received by Dr. Klippen indicates that 50 per cent of men over 65, and 47 per cent of women, are more than 10 per cent over their optimal weight. The report is based on nationwide VA research on aging and care of geriatric patients. Almost 16 per cent of the patient population in VA's 166 hospitals are over 65.

To help avoid or postpone many of the physical illnesses associated with old age, Dr. Klippen said the report recommended that elderly people reduce their calorie intake, especially with regard to fat, and eat more proteins.

He said Dr. Kurt Wolff director of professional education and research at the VA hospital in Coatesville, Pa., is the author of the report. In his recent book "The Emotional Rehabilitation of the Geriatric Patient," Dr. Wolff reviewed concepts and treatment methods for the elderly, both inside and outside hospitals, and described productive ways of prevention, treatment and rehabilitation of the aged.

Among his diet recommendations are these: "The older person can help his own diet by mixing dry skim milk or dry yeast into his foods. Milk is probably the best food for later life. Among the plant proteins, the best is from soybeans.

"Brewer's yeast is one of the richest natural sources of both protein and water-soluble vitamins," he said, suggesting that it should be taken before meals by those who tend to become overweight. He also said it can be used to lessen the need for insulin by diabetics and help prevent constipation, but cautioned that it may cause trouble for those afflicted with gout.

Dr. Klippen said the report shows that the percentage of the U.S. population over age 65 had doubled in this century, from 4.1 per cent in 1900 to 9.5 per cent in 1968 (from 3 million to 19 million).

Women now outlive men with a life expectancy at birth of 73.9 years against 66.7 years for males. The life expectancy for women is still increasing faster than for men, he pointed out.

Cage JV's Follow Style Of Varsity

Lee Swanson's Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team finished its cage season with a 12-6 won-lost record and produced some strong candidates for next year's varsity squad during their 1970-71 season.

"We spurted about the same time the varsity did, after a couple of losses at the beginning of the season," said Swanson. "We played very consistent basketball throughout the year, although we did have a let down in our last game at Fergus Falls," the coach explained.

"The boys liked to run and shoot and they all have a lot of potential if they are willing to work at it in the off season," Swanson stated. "Boys like Tom Kays, Jeff Rhoden and Ordean Peterson could be a lot of help to the varsity next season," the coach said.

Sophomore center Jeff Rhoden led the Prowler Bee's in scoring with 211 points for the year. The 6-3 attacker connected on 83 field goals, tops on the team, and he made 45 of 72 free throws, 62 per cent, for his point total. Rhoden was also the leading rebounder for the club with 177 caroms.

Junior forward Tom Koys was the second leading scorer on the team with 203 points with 82 field goals and 39 of 69 free throws, good for 57 per cent. The 6-2 pivotman hauled down 162 rebounds during the year, also second best on the team.

Ordean Peterson contributed 153 points to the team's efforts during the year with 64 field goals and a 48 per cent eye from the gift stripe. The six-foot sophomore also picked off 69 rebounds during the season.

Junior forward Craig Knutson was the other JV player to top the 100-point mark with 120 markers on 44 field goals and 32 free throws. The 6-2 Prowler grabbed 102 rebounds during the season and he will be missed next season with his family moving from town.

Knutson was also the club's assist leader with 37 during the season while Ordean Peterson was a close second with 36 assists.

The Prowler junior varisty scoring summary for the 1970-71 season is as follows:

eagle to Agassiz national wildlife refuge on November 28. Thad Fuller, assistant refuge manager, became the official medicare administrator in charge of bald eagles. The bird was put into a garage where some heat from an adjoining building kept the temperature from becoming too severely cold.

Perkins Assists

About that time Agassiz refuge had a visit from Marlin Perkins, star of the "Wild Kingdom" television program and director emeritus of the St. Louis zoo. He showed Fuller how to feed the weakened bird by placing balls of raw hamburger in its beak. Stan Brock, another "Wild Kingdom" star, chipped in his advice, since he used to raise and train eagles for hunting and as pets when a youth in South America.

Dr. F. W. Hazard, Thief River Falls veterinarian, was called to give the bird a shot of penicillin. Teramycin was also added as a supplement to the raw hamburger. Response was dramatic.

LEAVING HIS PERCH when he determined that he had posed for the Times photographer long enough, the bald eagle at Agassiz national wildlife refuge does a smart about-face, spreads his wings and flutters to the ground. The big bird seems to be recovering nicely from whatever it was that ailed him, and it is expected he will be returned to the wild in about six weeks.

"We treated it on the assumption that it was suffering from pesticide or herbicide poisoning," Fuller said. "It was evident that something other than a mere lack of food was giving it problems. After the administration of antibiotics you could almost see it regain its strength. In a couple of days it would take its own food. Perkins also suggested moving it to where it could get more light, and one of the refuge workmen built the cage and perch in another building."

Feeding The Bird

Fuller went on hunting forays for his ward, bringing back snowshoe hares for food. At first he skinned the hares, later only breaking the skin. The eagle progressed to the point where he could eat an entire hare in a single day.

Late in December Fuller went to Bemidji where he conned the state fisheries out of 300 pounds of perch. These are kept frozen until half a day before feeding, when enough for a feeding are taken out to thaw. So far the eagle has been fed about 60 pounds of perch. Fish is normally a main part of the eagle's diet, but it is a poor hunter. Injured or diseased or dead fish, easily caught, become the eagle's food. It will also eat road-killed rabbits and other carrion.

Fuller has made a deliberate attempt to avoid much contact with the eagle during its confinement. He discourages human association with the bird, although it did not appear greatly disturbed upon being photographed with a flash unit.

"I don't believe in making pets of wild animals," Fuller said. "When the weather gets a little nicer, I think we will put the eagle in an outdoor pen which will give it more opportunity to use its wings and build up its breast muscles. University of Minnesota people want to band and wing mark it, and we'll probably do that right before we release it."

Fuller wants to wait for milder weather and the increase of possible food supply for the eagle before it is released on the refuge.

Because of its eating habits which place it at the top of the food chain, the bald eagle is facing a fight for survival as a species. Accumulation of poisons from various sources build up in the tissues of wildlife and are retained in the eagles' bodies when they eat such food.

This is national wildlife week, and its theme is "Who Needs Wildlife?" The message is apparent. When our environment becomes too bad for wildlife, how bad does it have to be before man also ceases to survive?

Legion Pin Team Tops Play At Ada

Thief River Falls' American Legion bowling team led the field going into last weekend's final round of the Minnesota 9th district American Legion bowling tournament at Ada.

Legion team members include Harold Storhaug, Erwin Ferber, Orville Botner and Vern Quam. The Thief River Falls team topped the opening round of bowling with a 2,490 total while Gambles of Ada was second with a 2,320-pin total and Fisher's number two entry was third with a 2,299.

Detroit Lakes bowlers led the doubles and singles competition while Erwin Ferber was the leader in the all-events category with 1,831 pins. Tony Sipe of Ada was second in the all-events competition with a 1,808 total.

Another Thief River Falls team participating included Charles Rodekuhr, Ellsworth Jorgenson, Orville Hanson and Fred Dallmann.

Lakeshore Lots Can Be Problem Due To Standards

Considering a lakeshore lot in Minnesota?

Better investigate the lot's suitability for an adequate and safe water supply and a sewage disposal system, advises Roger Machmeier, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Minnesota.

Minnesota's new shoreland standards, recently developed by the Minnesota department of natural resources, pertain to septic tanks and other on-site, individual sewage disposal systems. If you're installing plumbing and a sanitary community sewer system is not available, then "it is absolutely essential" that soil characteristics permit installation of an adequate sub-surface disposal system, Machmeier adds.

The bottom of a sewage disposal trench must be at least four feet above the highest known elevation of the water table—this means the water table must be at least 6-½ feet below ground level at all times to meet the shoreland standards.

Percolation tests determine if the soil will absorb sewage effluent by measuring the rate of liquid movement through the soil. If the tests show rates slower than 60 minutes per inch, the soil is not suitable for a subsurface disposal system.

The sub-surface disposal system must be located at least 50 feet from the water's edge at a general purpose lake, 75 feet at a recreational development lake and 150 feet at a natural environment lake.

If suitable conditions are not present on the lakeshore property, then a sub-surface disposal system, such as a septic tank can't be installed, Machmeier says.

Prospective lakeshore purchasers should be fully aware of the types of structures and plumbing facilities that can be installed. Proper engineering tests are needed before the property is purchased to determine if the lot is suitable for the intended use.

Construction should not begin on any structure on a lakeshore lot until it is determined that sewage disposal facilities are available or can be installed. Failure to follow this procedure may mean that the building cannot be used as intended, Machmeier said.

More information on lot size, structure setbacks, screening and other features of the shoreland standards can be obtained from the Department of Natural Resources, Minnesota Centennial Building, St. Paul, 55101.

The average weight of adult timber wolves in the summer in northeastern Minnesota is 65 pounds.

If your child's answers disturb you, it's high time you sat down together and had a talk about drugs.

We've written a booklet that might help that talk. It's called "Answers to the most frequently asked questions about drug abuse." It won't make you an expert, but it will give you some important answers.

Send for the booklet. Read it. Talk with your child. It's important—for you both.

East Side Down Vikings For State Tourney Berth

East Grand Forks defeated Littlefork-Big Falls 71-52 in the region eight title game Wednesday night in the UND fieldhouse to earn a berth in this week's Minnesota state high school basketball tournament at Williams arena.

Larry Selk's Green Wave quint will face region five titlist, Albany, in the tourney's first game Wednesday afternoon at 2:00. Albany defeated 11th ranked Howard Lake 71-66 Thursday night for the region five crown.

"East Side", ranked eighth in the final state poll, fought back from a 7-3 deficit in the early stages of the first quarter to take the lead for good, 9-7, with 4:40 remaining in the opening quarter. The Wave coasted to a 25-15 lead at the break and built an impressive 14-point lead before the Vikings, connecting on nine straight shots from the floor, narrowed the gap to 33-27 with 2:15 remaining in the half.

East Grand Forks withstood the deadly shooting of the Vikings to pull away from a 39-33 lead with 3:21 remaining to a 44-35 advantage at the half.

Littlefork Big Falls took the offensive in the early stages of the second half to trim the Wave lead to just five points before losing their touch from the outside and falling behind 55-43 going into the last eight minutes.

East Grand Forks held a slight advantage of 40-36 in the rebound department while outshooting the Vikings percentage-wise, 44 per cent to 37 per cent. After hitting on well over 40 per cent of their shots from the floor in the first half, including nine in a row, the Vikings managed only 24 per cent from the field in the second half of action.

Stephen knocked off Mentor 70-62 in the consolation game Wednesday night as the Tigers pulled out to a 23-15 advantage at the first quarter break and led 37-28 at the half before pulling out to a 51-42 bulge after three quarters.

Phil Chwialkowski gunned in 25 points for game honors to lead the Tiger attack while teammates Ron Jensen dumped in 20 and Jeff Russell added 12. Junior guard Dave Super led the Trojan attack with 24 points, followed by Reggie Gallond's 10.

Northland Skaters Lose Two In Tourney

Northland state junior college ended its first year of intercollegiate hockey competition on a frustrating note over the weekend as the Northmen lost a pair of games in the state junior college hockey tournament at International Falls.

Swede Lund's pucksters managed to score just two goals in the two games as they lost a 7-1 decision to Rainy River in their opening round Friday night and then lost an 11-1 contest to Itasca in the consolation game Saturday evening.

Rainy River of International Falls captured the state title with a 6-5 overtime win over Lakewood of White Bear Lake. Sophomore wing Bruce Sandbeck scored with about four minutes gone in the overtime period for the win.

In the other first round game Friday night, Lakewood got by Itasca 9-8.

One bright note for coach Lund was the naming of captain Larry Skime to the All-State puck squad, chosen after the championship game Saturday night.

Northland goalie Maurie Pearson faced 96 shots on goal in the two games in the Northland nets as the freshman from Crookston kicked out 35 shots in the first game and came up with a 43 save performance against Itasca.

The Northmen skated Rainy River to a scoreless tie until freshman wing Jack McFaydon scored twice and sophomore Jerry Cullen added another goal for the Voyageurs for a 3-0 lead going into the final period.

Arne Engdahl put Rainy River on top 4-0 before freshman defenseman Rich Lindegard of Hallock scored with 0:57 remaining in the third period on an assist from Gary Halvorson of Roseau.

Pearson kicked out 15 shots in the first period, 12 in the second and eight in the final period of action for a total of 35 while Rainy River was called on for 28 saves.

Itasca jumped out to a 3-0 lead after one period on Saturday night's consolation game and led 5-0 before Larry Skime recorded the first and only score for Northland on an assist from Mike Schmitz with 5:50 remaining in the second period.

Itasca added three more goals in the second period and three in the third for the 11-1 drubbing.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh merged NFL franchises in 1943.

Lincoln high school hockey goaltender Brian Peterson received special recognition in the St. Paul Pioneer Press yesterday as the Press picked their version of the All-State hockey team of the year.

Peterson was rated as the "fifth-best" goalie in the state prep ranks behind the likes of Pete Loprestl, Eveleth; Doug Long, St. Paul Johnson; Dan Griffin, North St. Paul; and Tim Delmore, Roseau.

We believe Brian would have received an even higher rating with the state-wide sports writers had the Prowlers advanced to the state tourney and received more publicity.

Area icemen named to the Pioneer Press All-State squad include Kent Langlie and Robbie Harris of Roseau and Alan Hangsleben of Warroad.

The Minnesota state high school hockey championship game between Roseau and Edina marked the appearance of the "last Brandt" on a Roseau puck squad.

There has been a Brandt from the Erhard Brandt family on the Ram team for the past 18 years with four of his sons having been named All-Staters during that time.

Senior wing Paul and senior defenseman Mitch were the last Brandts playing on the Ram team. Mitch was named to the All-State squad this season.

It's not very often a school is able to have representatives in both the state hockey tournament and the state basketball tournament the same year, but there are two schools accomplishing the feat this year.

Region eight's East Grand Forks and Alexander Ramsey of region two's hockey set-up and region C in basketball have both placed their hockey and basketball teams in the state tourney's.

Roseau's Ron Bode was the North Border Conference scoring champion for the 1970-71 cage season with a 24.1 average in conference action.

The top ten scorers in the conference included Jim Larson, Badger, 21.4; Keith Pommerening, Warroad, 20.7; Ron Olson, Baudette, 18.4; Jeff Thompson, Warroad, 17.2; Larry Olson, Greenbush, 16.8; Mark Lindahl, Greenbush, 16.1; Marc Schenkey, Middle River, 14.8; Dave Hasverk, Roseau, 13.2; and Marlin Bjornrud, Newfolden, 12.8.

Pommerening was the conference's top rebounder with 201 while Lindahl set a new conference record with an 81.7 shooting percentage from the free throw line.

The University of North Dakota department of intercollegiate athletics organized, sponsored and backed the first North Dakota high school hockey tournament in 1960.

Don McKenny and Frank St. Marseille scored goals just 7 seconds apart against the North Stars during the 1968 NHL season.

SPRING FASHION SUPPLEMENT

Monday, March 22, 1971

Softly, Spring arrives, heralded by the singing of the birds, the blooming of the flowers and all the lovely looks of a new season. It's Spring, beautiful Spring in fashion . . . feminine and flattering for you, handsome and colorful for him, grown-up and great for the children, gracious in your home. Discover Spring now, in the pages of this newspaper.

Easy-Going Ways Increasing Pants' Fashion Potential

Pants have come a long way from the gardening-house-work-car pool routine. Their fashion potential, along with their easy-going manner, has cast them in a far more important role.

Pants are a wardrobe mainstay. They set women free from concern or controversy about lengths—and free to express their fashion personalities, with comfort and with all the mix-and-match, switchabout qualities that have long made separates indispensable.

Pants star on every day and nighttime scene. There are pants costumes with matching coats or jackets, pants with long sleeveless vests or jerkins, pants with tunics, pants with ribby sweaters, bouffant blouses or tailored shirts, pants with boleros.

After dark, pants step out topped by tunic dresses or soft, sheer blouses.

The shapes are as many and varied as spring in fashion. Long, lean, limber and straight-legged is a favorite direction, but the fullness, fit, flare and femininity of new-season styles is amply represented, too.

Leads a Busy Life

Some bell bottoms appear, while other pants take flounces, tiers, ruffles and, especially for late day, soft shirring. Or, like skirts, pants are slit to show the leg.

The jumpsuit, once relegated to indoor leisure wear, now leads a busy day-and-night life almost everywhere. It may enter on its own, or pair up with a jacket or an over-skirt.

There are even dressy versions of the bib-overall or suspender look for the jumpsuit.

The gaucho continues. Pulled together with turtle-top, belt and boots—plus a matching bolero—it promises to gain in popularity.

Jeans Go Fancy

Very newsy this spring is the knicker. Young and lithe, it appears by day in such sportive fabrics as corduroy, polyester and cotton knits, by night in panne, crepe and other supple textures.

Jeans go fancy, in calico prints that team up quite naturally with peasanty tops and very feminine blouses, and in just about every other fabric imaginable.

Now that denim's a dress-up fabric, of course it's right for the fancier jeans.

Bib overalls, in denim, madras and gingham checks, are seen over and over.

Short-short pants make a repeat performance, in costume versions, bidding to replace the mini for late spring and summer.

Pants outlook on a new season finds a softened smartness entering fashion's garden. In this costume, a zipped, shaped and belted jacket with curved pockets goes along with trim pants. In linen-like polyester-rayon blend, washable pantsuit resists wrinkles. It's one of "The Suitables" by Sacony.

Materials Mirror Bridal Radiance

Radiance and beauty of the spring bride are mirrored in the very fabrics of wedding gowns.

Chiffon, organdy and organza float blissfully down the aisle. Peau de soie flows gracefully, romantically.

Trims and treatments enhance, from little touches of point d'esprit and satin on tiers of fabric, in buttons, to glorious drifts of lace.

Ribbons and daintiest ruffles enhance. Flowers bloom in embroidery and appliques.

BY MANY NAMES

What's in a name? Country, peasant, pioneer, prairie, frontier—all describe spring's most nostalgic fashions, with an old-fashioned flavor and a modern, colorful air.

HEM INSURANCE — For mini-lovers with nagging doubts, here's a happy solution to the hemline haggle. This striped cotton knit mini skirt boasts a five-inch hem in case you're in for a letdown. By Miss Ingenue, it's teamed with a matching man-tailored top.

MOODS VARY

Very, very bare or completely covered up. Very, very elegant or very gypsy in feeling. These are the moods, and the trends, of spring fashion.

Any Weather Coats Have Style on Their Minds

All-weather wise, the double-purpose coats of spring are just that—wise in their power to protect against seasonal showers, wise in their ability to look like a coat with nothing on its mind but fashion.

Creative design and fabrics treated for water resistance make it all possible. The fabrics conceal their waterproofing in appearance—looking like any other fashionable fabric—but prove it in performance.

Designers approach the creation of the weather-wise coat with the belief that it's an any-time coat, a sunny-time coat and, most of all, a travel coat.

Thus any style that's new or classic for spring can be found in the season's "raincoats."

Trench, reefer, single- or double-breasted, boy coat are just some of the style possibilities.

Of course, the cape, as a '71 fashion factor, is important—and, equally of course, it's a natural for rainwear.

Sometimes the cape appears as part of a costume, plus a skirt or, more often, pants. Other any-weather coats and jackets take the costume course, too.

Perky colors let some sunshine in, even when it's raining. No longer does rainwear have to stick to dull, drab shades, "practical" because water spots don't show.

No more water spots—and so rain-shine wear bubbles with bright colors, bold colors, even pastels. Cheery florals, geometrics, stripes, plaids and patterns galore go out in any weather with assurance.

Of course, sometimes it doesn't just rain—it pours. That's the time for the versatile vinyls, ready with the wet look to appear, quite frankly, as raincoats. But they, too, have a plus.

Cinched, shaped, belted, the vinyl raincoats make their fashion point. They're definitely spring '71.

IT'S NATURAL

Soft velour pile, in muted pastels, answers the junior plea for naturalness.

THEY'RE WRAPPED

Wrap coats shape spring. Many have narrowed tops, belts and full, swingy skirts.

Crushed vinyl rainwear shines in all kinds of weather. Flapped and pocketed double-breasted trench coat has the wet look. It's made of Royalon—vinyl by Uniroyal.

Hemlines? A Woman Decides

What about length?

The ups and downs of the hemline, a controversial question, appear to have been resolved—and in the most logical way.

How long—or short—a woman wears her skirts is up—or down—to her.

When members of New York's Fashion Group previewed spring styles, this view was succinctly stated by Lee Hogan Cass, Multiple Fashion Director, The Broadway department stores, California:

"We believe that, never again, should any woman be told what length to wear her fashions."

Today the fashion world unites in one opinion—which is that opinions about lengths may rightly be divided.

For spring, length is a matter of individual preference, and a variety of lengths is part of the fashion picture—with just a gentle suggestion that hemlines generally tend to be lower.

The majority of women seem to favor lengths that hover around the knee—just above, mid-knee or just below the knee.

Not too surprisingly, these are the lengths most women have always favored, even in the heyday of the mini.

But there's room for all lengths, from the very longest to the very shortest, with the short-short pantsuit bidding to take over from the mini for late spring and summer, and the ankle-length peasant dress gliding in gracefully.

Fabric contributes to lingerie versatility. Delicate, soft body-hugging fabrics offer opportunities to display many fashion character traits.

Blends, stretch terry, denim, Madras cotton, gingham, nylon and polyester spark an enthusiastic lingerie personality—ready to venture into outerwear.

Bride's Fashions Change

"Something New" Comes from Past

Regardless of changes in bridal fashions, weddings are occasions marked by love and joy.

But what about those fashion changes? Will spring's bride opt for a country wedding—a wedding in a green field, a woodland, a garden or even a city park?

She will—and she won't.

Many members of the young generation have, in recent seasons, chosen garden or country scenes for their weddings, with fashions to match. But many, perhaps most, brides still prefer the formal or almost-formal wedding, with traditional fashions.

So spring changes in bridal fashions take two directions:

The country or garden wedding inspires bridal gowns glowing with color or radiant with white and color.

Skirts, jumpers or pinafores plus blouses and gypsy or peasant dresses are two of the newer looks.

Most of these are meant to continue leading an active fashion life long after the wedding.

Fabrics are consistent with the country theme—pique, poplin, linen, gingham, dotted swiss, for instance.

Traditional bridal fashions also change, of course, and this spring the changes are seen in a turn toward the past. Wedding gowns reflect turn-of-the-century—or earlier—influences.

Spring's bride is a romantic, gowned with Victorian charm. Her old-fashioned airs become gently modern.

Spring's bride is a shepherdess, in wedding dresses of sweetness and simplicity. She expresses the peasant look in a more formal, yet more ethereal, manner.

Spring's bride is lovely. She may be young and demure, or young and sweetly sophisticated.

Fabrics for the traditional bride's gown are dainty and sheer or crisp in a way that combines simplicity and sophistication—taffeta, for example.

Color, via a touch of pink or yellow in embroidery or appliques, may enhance white. But still, white is traditional—and tradition reigns.

Romantically, spring's brides look to the past for fashion inspiration. One choice might be this ivory peau de soie gown etched with Val lace, with circlet neckline and angel sleeves. Complementing the gown is an heirloom-look veil and a dog collar decked with the groom's gift to the bride—a golden brooch sprinkled with diamonds. Gold and diamond pin by Peter Lindeman; bridal gown from the Priscilla boutique collection.

On Sportive Scene, It's Favored Classics Plus New Romantics

By DEVIE ROSENBLOOM

Sportswear is staging a big comeback for individualism this spring.

The variations on every fashion theme, from the classics to the new romantics, appear in an almost endless selection. Today's woman will put it all together in a burst of self-expression. Look-alike fashion is a thing of the past.

The casual shirtdress continues in popularity. Separates are on view in an impressive array of skirts, shirts, sweaters, jackets and pants.

Shirtdresses, from the simplest T-shirt to the softest peasant look, are found in both slim and full-skirted versions.

New contender in casual dresses is the workman look. It shows up in suspender and bib-look dresses and jumpers, usually in denim or printed cotton.

The chemise, in cotton or polyester knit and most often front-zipped, is seen again and again.

Sweater Impact

Ribby tops, crew or turtle-neck, are in evidence everywhere. While the skinny shrink top remains a favorite, a relaxed-fit ribby top begins to appear.

One of sportswear's most important looks is still the sweater. Long pullovers and tunics, twin sweater sets, and classic cardigans make big impact. Long, sleeveless vests are worn over everything from skirts to jumpsuits.

Innovations in skirt looks seem to be the newsiest. Skirts are full or pleated, they're slim with side or front slashes to show lots of leg. They're front-zipped or buttoned, side-wrapped or back-tied.

The ankle length peasant skirt appears over and over, with bare midriff tops, peasant blouses or skinny tops. Pinafore and apron skirts team up with puff-sleeve and pin-tucked voile blouses.

Accenting Blouses

The dressy blouse, as part of the Easter costume, makes a very soft, very feminine appearance. Full or accordion-pleated sleeves, ascots, pintucks and colorful embroidery are some of the details. Soft fabrics complete the look.

The classic shirt maintains its popularity. It looks easy and natural with the reappearing and newsy short-short.

Jackets include the natty blazer, longer this spring but classically tailored. Battle jackets, hacking jackets, ponchos and capes remain on the scene.

Thinking of that summer plunge? Very bare bikinis and one-piece body suits are favorites. Many long peasant skirts appear with them as beach cover-ups.

Pants, jumpsuits, gauchos and knickers reign.

Denim, cotton or polyester knits, cottons and sheer voiles are important parts of the fabric picture.

Color is explosive with peasant prints, patchworks, plaids and madras. White, with south-of-the-border rick-rack and embroidery trims, appears often. Soft pastels and natty red, white and blue remain on-view.

Jewelry Goes Ethnic

To complement spring's ethnic fashions, jewelry takes inspiration from Scandinavia, the Orient, Mexico, India and Africa. Pioneer and American Indian influences are present, too. Such jewelry ranges from all-important neckpieces to earrings, bracelets, rings and belts.

Focus is on knits—especially in bold stripes. This dress, with ribbed neck and cuffs, is action-snapped. Dress by Trend II; Kodak Instamatic X-15 camera.

Easy-care and good-looks team together in knit duos. Versatility keys a polyester-cotton wrap skirt with contrast trim, mock-turtle cotton top. By Russ.

THE KNICKER KICK—Sauntering into spring is the jauntiest look of them all: newsmaking knickers ... here suited out in black and white printed cotton. By Addenda.

Fabrics Spark Newest Styles With Greater Ease, Dash

"More ease, please," says fashion to fabric—and fabric complies, with very soft, sensuous, to-the-body draping and shaping.

Jerseys, polyester knits organzas, silks and silky looks, crepes, voiles go supple, sheer and smooth for feminine, fluid fashions.

"More dash, please," fashion demands, and fabrics respond with a lively variety.

Denim, country- or cityfied, enjoys a renaissance, in traditional, faded, bleached and bright-dyed shades.

Madras, often patchworked, meets with calicos, cottons, polyesters and other such fibers for the country-in-the-city looks of spring.

Canvas shapes suits, pant suits, raincoats and more.

Wet look continues in vinyl and vinylized cotton.

For texture, it's herringbone and other tweedy effects, linen and linen looks.

Many fabrics add flax to other fibers, coming up with a homespun look very much in keeping with today's folklore-inspired fashions.

Jacquards in miniature, stripes, polka dots and plaids join with herringbone in a return to classic influences, abetting spring's liking for well-detailed and tailored styles.

Over all, fabrics lend themselves to the varied fashions of spring.

CARTOON ON CANVAS—Comic-strip art continues into spring in a zippy little all-weather jacket of cotton canvas. In primary colors with black and white, it's by Weather Tamer.

Fashion Favors Feminine Look

For femininity, costume coverage looks to the cape—witness this twosome, in navy double knit wool. The dress, belted and long sleeved for more fashion news, takes a print tie and button detail. Above all, the long cape flows and clings. By Belle Saunders of Abe Schrader.

From Peasantry to Pants, New Styles Greet Spring with Freshness, Verve

By ANNA MANG
Fashion Editor, Metro Newspaper Service

Freshness, prettiness, femininity—these are the words that tell of fashion, in spring 1971.

Fresh and perky as well as pretty are the many styles derived from other places, other times. Country, prairie, peasant and pioneer define looks that reveal a strong dash of nostalgia, looks that combine bold colors and patterns with a generous helping of flounces, full sleeves, embroidery, old-fashioned prints and other signs of softness.

Fresh, too, are pants and pant costumes, now a major element in feminine fashion expression.

Weekender Goes Traveling

There are as many ways to wear pants as there are women to wear them, and the components and combinations seem endless. Dresses, tunics, jackets, vests, shawls, coats, jerkins—all these and more go over long pants, short pants, knickers and gauchos. And don't forget the jumpsuit.

With more people traveling more, the "weekender" costume, based on pants and almost a wardrobe in itself, comes on strong.

Usually, "weekender" means coat plus pants plus skirt, ready for switching about to meet varying moods and times, but other parts may be included.

Very pretty, very feminine are dresses and dress-plus costumes.

Indeed, the very essence of spring might be new dresses with lowered and rounded necklines, long and [illegible] sleeves shirred and fitted midriffs and full, soft skirts.

Shirtdresses and coatdresses share spring importance.

Fit or fullness, supple curves, highrise or natural waistlines and the demure, covered-up look of long sleeves are some trends to note here.

Even slim dresses are shaped, draped, curved.

For many dresses, precise tailoring provides lively contrast, emphasizing the feminine air.

A similar contrast appears as hacking, blazer and other jackets with crisp lines cover supple dresses.

Capes, the new costume companions for dresses or skirts and tops, flow and flare with femininity, in long or short versions.

[illegible] in separates

Little boleros and sleeveless, elongated tunics take other fresh approaches to costume coverage.

When the costume component is a coat, soft self-ties, wrap fronts, reefer and cardigan lines may be noted.

Separates and casual dresses continue the fresh, pretty and feminine theme—and add some variations, the work clothes look in particular.

Bib-front overalls, suspender skirts and suspender-top jumpers are some examples, executed in denim and other rugged fabrics.

In fact, the work clothes influence spreads to coats and suits. Several spring jackets and coats resemble, in line and feeling, an elongated workshirt, shaped of denim, jersey or polyester.

Wrapped or slit, separate skirts reflect the bared look, as much a part of spring fashion as its counterpart, the covered up look.

Other manifestations are halter or deep-scooped necklines, skirts and tops that get together to bare the midriff, see-through fabrics and cutouts.

Freshness, prettiness, femininity are complemented by spring's hats and accessories. Shapely brims, draped turbans and berets speak of softness, while hearts, flowers and butterflies show the way to flattering accents.

Softly, spring sweeps tie-dye colors into a chiffon costume, composed of [illegible] scarf top. A modacrylic wig completes the look. Fashion by Halston; "Laura" wig by Halston for Abbott.

Favored fringe extends its benefits to fur. Shown is a wool fringed triangle of Jasmine, Emba natural white mink. American ranch-raised mink; design by Oscar de La Renta.

Much more than a coat, the costume in black and white checked cotton pairs a trimly-tailored coat and matching dress. It's by Belle Saunders for Abe Schrader.

CRAFTY COTTON—The shirt-dress emerges anew in spring's fashion picture. In cool cotton voile, this Adele Martin design sports a hand-embroidered look for easy-going chic.

Thanks to Dresses, Spring Can Bloom

Spring is surely going to bloom bright and bold, if new dresses have their way.

The fashion plot favors femininity, fun and excitement. Silhouettes, from the slim and supple curve to the full and flattering flare, seem simple—deceptively so, for colors, fabrics and details spark these basic shapes, enthusiastically.

Fabric overlaps, pockets, peplums, belts, skirt slits, fringing, top stitching, darts, shirring and seaming rejuvenate classic looks.

Two old favorites, the coatdress and the shirtdress, return to the spring scene in new guises. For both, fresh treatments of the long, frequently full sleeve appear as distinctive features.

Fitted bodices of shirtdresses highlight their pinched-in, belted waists and defined waists lead the way to full skirts that take every cue for motion. Those important long sleeves are often puffed.

More shape defines the coatdress—in fact, shape is a major trend in most spring dresses.

Supple fabrics such as crepe and jersey are draped along slender but curvy lines, while full-sleeved, full-skirted dresses show shape by fitted, shirred midriffs.

Empire looks define the waistline high, then give way to flowing lines.

Folklore fosters a variety of dresses flavored with nostalgia and with looks derived from many people and places—the peasant, the pioneer, the Old West, the American Indian, South of the Border.

The good little girl in her pinafore is a factor, too, in [illegible] ago, brought up to date.

For every influence out of the past, there's femininity to match—witness a wealth of embroidery, ribbons, bows, demure white collars and cuffs and sleeves that are not merely puffed but leg o'mutton in shape.

Colors and patterns contrast with one another, lending modern impact to the looks of yesteryear. Geometric prints team with bright solids.

Polka dots coordinate with earthy color prints or paisleys. Print meets print head on, and it's a great looking collision.

Red, White, Blue Lead

Red, white and blue lead the color spectrum in a classic springtime manner.

On their own, two by two or in trio, these colors personify spring.

White is true white, off white or blended into creamy beige.

Blue is true blue, royal blue or navy.

Red is true red, blued red or coral.

Pastels, so much a part of the color scene, of course are represented. Baby blue, pale mauve and tender apricot hue to the light side.

In watercolor prints, muted colors mingle for the softest fashion impressions.

On the brighter and bolder side, colors show their colors.

Spring yellow becomes spring orange. Spring pink turns red. Delicate spring green burgeons into strong summer shades.

All colors, pale to bright and bold, mix marvelously. And so do patterns and solids.

GIRLISH—For that first party dress, what could be more feminine than navy cotton voile . . . treated to dainty ruffles, delicate embroidery and crisp white lace. Styled by Kate Greenaway.

Pleasantly, spring turns to peasantry, and the colorful, lively look of the peasant dress. This machine-washable, border print style boasts a self-sash, patch pockets and elasticized neckline. It's a Kay Whitney fashion by Huntington.

Coats, Suits Expand Fashion and Function

The coat that's just a coat, the [illegible] suit—where are they this spring? More often than not, they've abandoned their traditional roles to become part of a costume.

A coat adds skirt and top or dress, and probably, pants too, while even the most basic and classic suit is likely to show up with its own ready-coordinated blouse or shirt.

When it appears, the separate coat is usually more than just a coat. It goes the any-weather way, adding to fashion the extra dimension of protection against spring showers.

Separately, as rain-shine companions or as costume components, the season's coats present a new approach to the classics. Reefers, trenches, boy coats shape up smartly for spring.

Wrap coats provide soft coverage.

Belts mark waistlines, for coats with fit and flare. Or, belts rise high, just under the bustline, creating an Empire effect.

Suits with lightly fitted or easy cardigan-like jackets take a classic view of spring. However, jacket necklines may be widened to show off a turtle or high crew neck, or perhaps a softly-flowing tie.

Because sleeves, big and bouffant, are fashion news in blouses, some suit jackets go sleeveless, becoming vests or long jerkins.

Hacking jackets, blazers and boleros provide some of the newer ways to suit spring, fashionably. Other jackets show off perky peplums.

Newest swimlook to be seen on the beach scene . . . fashion's new Grecian look. By Robby Len, in Arnel Jersey with colorful smocking, adjustable shoulders.

PRINTING SPRING

Spring prints range from small prairie types to great gorgeous abstracts.

Polyester Knits Add Color, Design Scope

Pants and knits seem to go together.

Polyester knits, denim knits and cotton knits arrive for spring pantsuiting.

Brilliant prints, red white and navy, faded denim shades, colorful madras contribute to the pants scene.

It's Knitted, Shaped Season for the Men

All Trends Rate Male Attention

In men's wear for spring, the one significant trend is that there is no one trend. Rather, there are many, in styles to suit a man's way of life.

Today's man is not only less conservative about his apparel, he's also more aggressive about demanding some variety in his fashions. Especially, he wants a choice of "serious" clothes and clothes for fun and relaxation.

Manufacturers are responding with a wide range of looks in new suits and sportcoats.

Shape Themes All Looks

Common denominator of all the looks is shape. Serious suits go about their business of well-dressing a man for his daily round, and casual suits—variously called "moot suits," "boot suits" and "no" suits—relax with ease, but all have at least some suggestion of shape. Details and fabrics become important factors.

Wide lapels or, for sportcoats and vest suits, collarless necklines; slanted pockets, oversized patch pockets; half belts and deep inverted pleats for back treatments are just some of the ideas.

In the field of fabrics, men's wear highlights knits. Knitted garments are in the stores in quantity, and as the season goes on, they'll be available in a greater variety of colors and styles.

Knits mean suits, sportcoats, slacks and dress shirts, as well as those long-established sport shirts and sweaters.

Both serious suits and blazer suits show up in knits, in single- and double-breasted models.

Polyester doubleknits come to the fore.

For all fabrics, overall designs are prominent. Jacquards and geometrics appear, especially in browns and tans. Stripes—wide, thin, chalk, bold—go on and on.

They're Unconstructed

Part of the easy approach to spring is the unconstructed suit.

Casual suits, of course, are unconstructed. They may combine a tunic or a vest with shirt and slacks, slim or sometimes lightly flared. Another approach is the shirt-jacket, sometimes belted, over slacks.

And now serious suits are unconstructed, too. This means less lining, less interlining and padding, and results in a comfortable, lightweight jacket with an easier look.

Lighter colors—including white and almost-white—are another new note, brightening spring for men.

Fresh, White Suits Emerge In 30's Style

Women's liberation is getting front-page attention, but it's male liberation that will make the style headlines, predicts Ken O'Keefe, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association.

When it comes to coats and suits, men are due to be liberated from the heavy weights and somber colors of winter, as the fresh white suit emerges.

"If you think you've seen the white suit before, you probably have," says Mr. O'Keefe, "perhaps on Douglas Fairbanks in last night's late show."

The white suit of the 70's has many of the style details of the 30's—such as extremely wide lapels, squared shoulders.

White doesn't necessarily mean pure white. It can run the gamut from cream to eggshell to sand.

Another version is the "ice cream" suit, in light colors—pistachio, lemon, orange ice.

Shaped suits focus on fabric and detail. In geometric wool tweed, suit shown has wide-lapeled jacket, slacks with slight bottom flare. By P.B.M. in Stevens tweed.

Casual suits come to the aid of spring fun and relaxation—witness this Western-oriented pairing of geometric tunic top, monotone slacks, both doubleknit. By Boys Sportswear in Stevens "Knit Master" doubleknit.

Serious suits turn to the new in doubleknits, double-breasted. Shaped suitcoat has wide lapels, angle-flapped pockets, half-belted back, above slim pants. By Bays in Stevens "Knit Master" polyester doubleknit.

Strappy looks in supple leather, or sporty tie styles, could put spring in a man's step. Clockwise from left are: Grained leather boot, monk strapped; smooth leather monk strap slipon; two-tone strapped ankle boot in smooth leather; brushed leather ghillie tie; smooth leather buckled slipon. Shoes by Rand, Weyenberg, Bouglas, Jarman, Crosby Square.

Velveteen Looks New in Slacks

The new wave of fashion-freedom-for-men is showing up in the slacks a man wears.

Slacks to go with the new sports shirts have a lot of pattern and fabric interest.

For elegance, there are velveteen jeans, a fad started by the young, but now unanimously approved.

Velveteen jeans come in every color from fire engine red to pale lime green, as well as animal prints such as tiger, leopard and lion.

These slacks feature regular jean styling, except legs are usually flared.

Over-the-Calf Socks Go Brighter, Bolder

Brightly-colored patterns and solids put their best foot forward in today's over-the-calf socks—now recognized as proper attire for year-round business and leisure wear.

For spring, many new patterns and colors have been added to over-the-calf socks. Pastels and bright solids, including the season's newest plum shades, lead.

Among new ideas in patterns, available now, are polka dots, basketweaves.

SEEING STARS

Stars shine on children's playwear.

Ready for Picking

Good picking now are grapes and plums, tasteful new colors in men's sportswear. One daring combination is a grape geometric patterned shirt worn with grape velvet jeans.

NEW VIEWS

Sunglasses with metal frames, in every lens tint, can be found in new huge shapes: round, hexagon and freeform.

Off-Duty Time Is Chance to Express Fashion Freedom

At one time if a hostess told a man "casual dress," she could generally predict what he was going to wear. But today, a man might show up in anything from velvet jeans to a suede fringed jacket.

More and more men are expressing their fashion freedom in off-duty hours, and as a result sportswear is the place to find the brightest colors, the boldest patterns, the most daring ideas, reports the Men's Fashion Association.

Denim is the basis of the bright new sportswear look this spring. Sturdy and durable, denim has been around for a long time in work clothes and jeans.

Fashion designers are using it this year for shirts, swimsuits and jackets.

Completely Denim

If a man wants a complete denim look, he might team up a denim jacket (handsomely styled with snap flap pockets) with matching flared pants. Denim and canvas shoes add the finishing touch.

"Costumes" are for the man who wants to be different and lighthearted about his dress. He can look like a range rider in a Western costume of fringed jacket, yoked shirt and jeans.

Or he can try the Russian peasant look with a full-sleeved pullover shirt and [illegible] leather boots.

There are innumerable variations, but only for the most daring.

For the man who would like to update his sportswear wardrobe a bit more moderately, this is the season for bold patterned sport shirts. Geometrics or jacquards lead the way.

Stripes, Plaids

Or he can go bolder with overall houndstooth checks and windowpane plaids.

Collars are long, pointed and can be worn open on a summer blazer.

Sports shirts can also be belted on a pair of slacks.

Spring slacks patterns include stripes of all kinds and bold oversized plaids. Today's man coordinates print sport shirts with patterned pants, for a mixture of patterns is another of the new spring looks.

Wide ties brighten their colors for spring. This one has a swirl motif, [illegible] colors. By Countess Mara.

RED, WHITE, BLUE

Newest use of red, white and blue combines solids with patterns, or pattern played against stripes.

Wonders of Nature Can Enhance Decor, Help Conservation, Too

Beauties of nature live indoors, thanks to fabric designs that capture flowers, birds, trees. Draperies, pillow covers and framed fabrics above the sofa follow the conservation theme. From Greef Fabrics' "Nature's Heritage" collection.

Bringing the wonders of nature into the home, new fabrics copy delicate flowers, unusual birds, one-of-a-kind plants and stately trees.

At the same time, these fabrics help to protect nature outdoors, as well as projecting nature indoors.

It's part of a plan developed by a conservation-minded manufacturer of home fabrics.

Authentic, screen printed designs on fabric picture precious, rare or vanishing species, in a collection for home decorating, called "Nature's Heritage."

And, for every piece of fabric sold in the United States, the manufacturer of the fabrics will pay royalties to the National Wildlife Federation.

Money will be directed to the Federation's Youth in Conservation program, which aims to make young people more aware of their environment.

The manufacturer is Greef Fabrics.

Homemakers concerned about the total, as well as the family, environment should find a special pleasure in decorating with these fabrics.

They're available for curtains, draperies, pillow covers and many other home uses. In fact, some might inspire do-it-yourself projects, such as the framing of individual designs.

The Snowy Egret, the Caribbean Hummingbirds, Audubon's Warblers, mysterious mushrooms, 17 species of ferns, the rare Franklinia flower are among subjects that inspire the designs.

Accents on Living Spark Excitement in Interiors

Season by season, people may revamp their personal wardrobes to a considerable extent.

But the home's fashion wardrobe isn't changed that often, it wouldn't be sensible — too much expense, too much upheaval.

That's the why of home accessories. Because, even when major furnishings aren't changed, adding accents can create quite a difference.

Take a plump and plushy floor pillow, for instance, or a pedestal table that's an art object in itself. Either or both could help make a room look new.

Ideas for accessorizing the home emphasize contrast between styles — modern, traditional, rustic, provincial and all the other designs for decorating.

For instance, modern lamps and lighting fixtures blend with traditional furniture, just as abstract paintings have often been used to dramatize otherwise traditional settings.

Paintings are joined by prints, statuary and three-dimensional plaques, in wall decor.

Shaped along a curve are many coffee and occasional tables. Elephant-leg tables, for example, add substance and soft lines when used as room accents.

Ornamental pedestal bases are topped by circles or squares of furniture-grade crystal, in table styles to complement traditional, Mediterranean, modern and mixed decorating schemes.

Pillows, the small way, spark sofas and chairs with color and texture.

Pillows, larger floor size, provide extra seating space.

Plants, Green or Flowering, Express Spirit of Season

Like an Easter bonnet, fresh green and flowering plants express the happy spirit of the season, bringing the promise of new vitality to the home.

Larger foliage plants, such as philodendron, ficus or schefflera, could flourish in the entrance hall. Set these treelike plants directly on the floor, in red clay pots with matching saucers.

Smaller green plants — ferns, ivy or pothos — can adorn wall-mounted bookshelves or free-standing dividers. Lacy fronds and trailing leaves help break the monotony of rectangular shapes.

Dining areas, too, will welcome a reminder of spring. A clay-potted azalea could be the choice for a centerpiece — or tulips and hyacinths.

A tea wagon or other cart can be transformed into a lovely and portable island of spring color.

A grouping of flowering plants — chrysanthemums or cinerarias — surrounded by greenery makes a colorful display.

Mobile carts make practical plant stands since they can be moved easily to follow the sun.

Other plants might be staged on the steps of a small, brightly-painted ladder.

Plants, professionally grown and conditioned in porous red clay pots, are available at florists, nurseries, garden centers.

COLORING SPRING

Quilted bedcovers, to double as spreads, color spring in bright prints.

Ruffles, romance, embroidery and easy care go together in this bedroom ensemble — spread, curtains, valance and pillow shams. By Croscill in Kodel polyester and cotton.

Materials Go To Modern Mood

When spring brings out the urge to clean up, dress up and refurbish the house, new developments in home furnishings materials add zest.

Vinyls appear in fashion-conscious colors. They're used as wallcoverings, upholstery fabrics, trimmings on window shades, collages in picture frames.

Latex foam rubber gives comfort in cushioning, and provides a practical backing for carpeting.

WAY OF LIFE

Pantsuits, gaucho outfits, knickers, jumpsuits are very much a way of life — and likely to remain so.

Wise buyer's shop the Times Advertisers first.

FRINGE BENEFITS — An understated overplaid, deftly touched with fringe, accents the fithe good looks of this navy and white cotton. A classic for all seasons, it's a Rembrandt creation.

Diamonds Sparkle On Wedding Day

If the bridegroom's gift to the bride is a beautiful pin, she will want to wear it on her wedding day, and in style with today's fashion trends.

A pin can be centered on a medium width white velvet or satin ribbon, dog collar fashion.

The bride will draw attention not only to her neck, but also the beautiful diamond pin so affectionately given to her by her waiting bridegroom.

A short diamond drop necklace can be draped over a plain white ribbon.

If the groom has given his bride diamond clip earrings, and her veil covers her ears, the clips can be dramatically attached to the dog collar.

Silver polishes the springtime image. Dog collar is really a pin attached to ribbon. Sterling silver earrings match. Bangle bracelet, too, is sterling. By Danecraft.

Expression of Love in Jewelry

In the spring, does a young woman's fancy, too, turn to thoughts of love?

It would seem so, for all women are young in the spring, and this year they're wearing their hearts not only on their sleeves but on dog collars, on belts, on long chains of leather, on wide plastic cuff bracelets.

It's all part of the heart motif in fashion jewelry, which finds colored hearts, golden hearts, silver hearts and pewter hearts taking the pulse of spring.

Butterflies as well as hearts are aflutter, leaving their imprint on belts, pendants, high-up chokers.

Express Nostalgia

Both butterflies and hearts hark back to the past, and so does the Victorian influence in jewelry, expressing another kind of nostalgia.

Victorian reminiscing lingers over bar pins, cameo lockets and earrings, rings of opal, ivory and agate, of enamel and gold wire, with velvet ribbon and colorful miniatures, dog collars of jet with matching earrings.

Not only designs but materials mark a fresh approach to spring's jewelry, from the elegance of jet and velvet, pearls and textured gold to beads, wood, rope, sea shells and braided, woven looks.

They're Symbolic

Metals mold many looks. Copper, silver (real or imagined, shined up or dull, darkened for pattern or depth), steel and brass are mined for all their fashion worth.

These same metals appear in symbolic jewelry for luck, peace, love, ecology, the Zodiac.

Jewelry for the hair curtsies to the past. In many materials. It's classically tailored or blazingly jeweled, in filigree and beaten gold, silver, copper.

REVIEWING PLANS for expansion of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company plant and services in Thief River Falls are, left to right, Donald Lindquist, local manager; Ken Wiley, Minneapolis, general staff manager; and A. K. Baron, service supervisor for the local office. The company plans expansion of the present building to the west as a preparatory step toward installation of equipment for direct distance dialing and touch tone service, as well as other needed growth expansion. Building construction is to start in May with direct distance dialing possible by late 1973.

Education Association Statement Is Presented

President Prestebak, Superintendent Johnson, and members of the board of education of School District 564.

We, the Thief River Falls Education Association, an affiliate of the Minnesota Education Association, thank you for allowing us to make the following statement.

On March 8, 1971, Mr. Robert Flynn, a member of the Northwest Taxpayers Association, read a statement to this school board. It was then stated that the Taxpayers Association had 500 persons present at an earlier meeting. It is erroneous to believe, however, that all those people agreed with the Taxpayers Association's statement or with the Taxpayers Association itself.

In the first paragraph of the statement on March 8th, the school board was ordered to "hold the line on all spending of school district funds for 1971-72." Earlier the Taxpayers Association stated, "We are not opposed to paying tax dollars to operate a good school system, nor are we opposed to paying good salaries." Is it possible to hold the line on spending when prices for materials, textbooks, equipment, etc., continue to spiral, when the enrollment in Thief River Falls is increasing steadily, and when the state department recommends that a certain teacher-pupil ratio be maintained? Do you recognize that money spent on improved education today may save several times its cost on local, state and federal programs in the near future?

Paragraph two of the Taxpayers Association's statement contains serious errors. It might be well for the Taxpayers Association to become better informed. According to the school board's latest proposal, not all teachers would receive the $150.00 raise as was stated in the Taxpayers Association's statement. The school board's proposal stated that all teachers except those at the maximum of the BA and B.A. plus 15 lanes would receive this raise. This would "freeze" twenty-eight of our most experienced teachers.

Now, $150 per teacher times 160 teachers does not amount to $30,000, but instead equals $24,000, a $6,000 error on this item alone. Also, if they, the Taxpayers Association, were well-

Coin Collection Reported Stolen

A coin collection valued at several thousand dollars was reported stolen to city police March 19 by David Amiot, owner of the collection.

The coins, a shotgun, rifle scope and a translator radio were stolen at an unknown time from the home of Amiot's parents in Thief River Falls. The total loss was estimated at $5,000 to $7,000.

In other police cases here last week, a car owned by Terrence Sorenson, Thief River Falls, was left running in the parking lot behind the Farmers Union Cooperative. The transmission is believed to have slipped into reverse, and the car came to rest against a car owned by H. G. Christopherson, rural Thief River Falls. Damages totaled $100 to each vehicle.

On March 18 at 7:10 p.m., a car being driven west on Third street by Verjean Rood, route 4, struck from the rear a car being driven by Mirlia Rustad while it was stopped in the traffic lane. The Rustad car then hit another vehicle owned by Glen Brazier. Damages totaled $535.

At 8:15 a.m. March 19, a car driven by Glorie Liden, Thief River Falls, was stopped in the right lane on Eighth street at Main and was sideswiped by a truck trailer driven by Glenn Lees of Crookston. There was $300 damage to the Liden car.

A car driven by Michael Sande south on Main struck a car driven by Deirae Larson, Thief River Falls, proceeding west on Fourth street at 12:15 p.m. March 22. Damages were $850.

James A. Sorenson, Thief River Falls, reported March 15 the theft of a billfold containing $85. Police are investigating.

A local service station reported March 18 the theft of two tires valued at $123.50. Police are also investigating this matter. On March 20 K. Russell Anderson

Supt. Johnson Resigns At School Board Meet

Farmers Union Leaders Gather In TRF Saturday

Local and county Farmers Union leaders met in Thief River Falls Saturday to discuss policy decisions in the 1971 legislature and the 82nd congressional session of interest to farmers.

Representatives from Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Clearwater, Beltrami and Polk counties met at the session, which was for elected and appointed local and county officers.

"On many of the major issues, it is not a question of whether or not there will be action in the legislature or the congress," said Edwin Christianson, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union. "It is rather a question of what kind of action will be taken — whether it will be in the best interests of the people.

"This is where citizen discussion and citizen participation in the decision-making process can be vital, for if enough people are interested they can have a definite influence on how the final decisions are made," Christianson said.

Appearing with Christianson at the conference were Farmers Union state secretary Cy Carpenter and Mrs. Lura Reimnitz, director of education and youth activities.

Commenting on the state legislative session, Christianson suggested that people of the state should insist that the state budget be balanced in a way which will make possible a reduction in the real estate tax burden.

Christianson noted that hearings to date have brought out strong support for legislation to restrict corporation farming, but warned that unless there is strong public sentiment for a real tightening of restriction, the legislature may end up with only a law requiring corporations in farming to register with the state government.

TRF Will Host Red Lake Co-op

Annual meeting of the Red Lake electric cooperative will be held Wednesday, April 7, in the municipal auditorium in Thief River Falls.

Registration begins at 11 a.m., and the business session starts at 1 p.m. Three directors will be elected. Door prizes will be awarded throughout the day.

Members of the board of directors are Leonard Melin, president; Helmer Lind, vice president; Millard Dailey, secretary-treasurer, Lanis Karel, Raymond Parnow, Joseph Brunelle, Manvel Moe, Stanley Radniecki and Richard Weiss, directors.

SUPT. L. M. JOHNSON of the Thief River Falls school district submitted his resignation at the regular board meeting Monday evening. He has accepted a position as superintendent at LaCrescent effective July 1.

Resignation of Supt. Lloyd M. Johnson was accepted by the Thief River Falls board of education, a new basketball coach was named, discussion held on temporary classroom leasing and a local MEA statement read at the regular meeting of the board Monday evening. The session was held in the Lincoln school library.

Supt. Johnson submitted his letter of resignation to the board at the end of the session Tuesday. He came here from Hayward, Wis., in 1968 and will become superintendent of the LaCrescent school system on the Minnesota-Wisconsin border. The resignation is effective June 30, the end of the present school year.

S. O. Johnson of Fosston and A. J. Kramer of Roseau, named to represent the local school board and teachers' negotiating council, respectively, met in Thief River Falls Tuesday evening. They have instructed Supt. L. M. Johnson to petition the district court for appointment of a third member to the panel.

Upon recommendation by retiring basketball coach "Whitey" Olson, and concurrence by athletic director Russ Smith and senior high school principal Robert Ostazeski, Lee Swanson was named head basketball coach for the 1971-72 season. Swanson has been assistant coach and is a native of the Argyle community.

The statement presented by Smith to the board suggested that an assistant be hired from outside the district who is schooled in fundamentals and would be qualified to move into the head coaching position in the future.

Proposals for an "under varsity" program in basketball were also presented, calling for two coaches to work closely with the varsity coach in setting up the entire program of shooting drills, offensive and defensive drills, game plans and other fundamentals. A 15-game schedule would be played Saturday mornings.

Seventh and eighth grade teams would be organized to play a local schedule with practices to be held from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Franklin gym. No squad cutting would take place in any of the junior high school programs.

A statement from the Thief River Falls chapter of the Minnesota Education association was read by Walter Redinger, president of the local association. The statement contained replies to statements made at previous meetings by spokesmen for the Northwest Taxpayers association. The statement is published in its entirety in this issue of the Times.

Supt. Johnson reviewed the

Council Gives Thought To New Liquor Facility

Prolonged discussion at the city council meeting Tuesday night centered around the council's "very concerned interest" in the possible construction of a new municipal off-sale liquor facility, possibly to be constructed somewhere on the western fringes of the city.

The council pointed out that the small size of the current facility necessarily eliminates many items that are now being requested and that poor parking facilities are another consideration. Gross sales at the present outlet have climbed from $413,000 in 1967 to $642,000 in 1970, according to an audit report released Tuesday night.

The council expressed its desire to receive public reaction to the possibility of building a new facility. No concrete action has been taken and the discussions are only in a "very serious stage", according to William Fahey, city clerk.

The child's birth certificate and health information should be brought to the round-up, as well as the red measles vaccine slip, if one was prepared when the child was vaccinated.

435 Hear Jerry Deal Talk On Taxes

JERRY DEAL, executive secretary of the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association, visited with concerned taxpayers following the meeting in Thief River Falls Tuesday evening.

Northwest Taxpayers association elected directors and joined with others interested to hear Jerry Deal, executive director of the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association, in Thief River Falls Tuesday evening. Deal spoke to 435 people attending the public meeting — held in the Lincoln high school gymnasium since a repeat performance of the musical "Oklahoma!" was being held in the auditorium.

A slate of directors presented by the nominating committee was elected by acclamation with no other nominations made. Elected were Albert Koop, Arnold Hamre, Edgar Naplin, Lloyd Quesnell, Kenneth Finstad, A. F. Berge, Mrs. Silas Hanson, Robert Flynn, Robert Bredeson, Joe Phelps and Norris Melander.

It was noted that the directors represent the rural area of Pennington county, the city of Thief River Falls, senior citizens, women's groups and others. One director from the field of education is yet to be selected, since the committee's planned nominee will not be available to serve. Directors will meet at a later date to elect officers.

Deal made his pitch to the crowd in a quiet but apparently convincing manner. He outlined the background of his organization and stated its goals.

WCTU Devotion Presented By Dr. Anno Koglin

"New heaven and the new earth" was the topic of the devotional meditation at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance Union held Friday afternoon at the Ernst Melvie home.

Dr. Anna Koglin was in charge of the devotions. She based the meditation on Rev. 21: 1-7, "Today's English version of the Bible", and the [illegible] meditation in the March issue of the "Union Signal", the WCTU official publication. She also read her article, "The Parable of the Geese" which was published in "Vital Christianity". In the article, the lives of the Christians of today were compared to both the tame geese, content in the farm yard, and the wild geese, answering the urge to fly south in the fall.

The meeting opened with the group singing, "America the Beautiful." Following the devotional meditation, Mrs. Arnold Windahl of Eagle Grove, Iowa, sang "Jesus Whispers Peace," accompanied by her sister Mrs. Agnes Longren.

In the reading of the secretary's and treasurer's report, Miss Eslie Koglin listed the churches and school that will distribute youth bulletins during Youth Week, April 18-24. She also listed the volunteers who will contact these organizations securing information regarding the number of bulletins needed. She stated that the publications will be counted and packaged at the next meeting of the unit to be held April 14 at the home of Mrs. Earle Ripley.

The program included several readings and a poem. Mrs. Freda Ekdahl read the poem "Heritage" and an article stressing faith in God as the anchor that stabilizes Christians during life's fiercest storms. A clipping from a metropolitan newspaper reporting the increase of cigarette shipments in the past year was read by Mrs. Green. Miss Martha Kleppe read the tract, "The Curse of Liquor" written by the late Eddie M. Berg, an evangelist who traveled extensively in this area a number of years ago. The article listed the dangerous effect liquor has on mankind. Especially noted was its distruction of man's ability to act and think wisely. A number of Bible passages were read. They included admonitions against the use of liquor, Prov. 20:1 and Prov. 23:29-35, the warning against giving others drink, Hab. 2:15, and the final judgment of drunkards not inheriting the kingdom of God, I Cor. 6:9-10.

During the social hour that followed the program, Mrs. Erle Ripley gave an account of her six-week trip to Oakhosh, Wis., Hot Springs, Ark., Fergus Falls, Minneapolis and Prior Lake.

Minn. Housing Conditions Are Noted In Report

At least one plumbing facility was lacking in one of every 15 Minnesota housing units as of April, 1970, according to census data supplied by the Minnesota analysis and planning system (MAPS).

Of the 1,153,048 occupied housing units in the state, 75,141 lacked one or more plumbing facilities.

MAPS provides sociological and economic data to state and local government agencies, the University of Minnesota and colleges to enable them to study problems of policy planning, research and administration.

MAPS is administered by the university's agricultural extension service and has been designated as a summary tape processing center for 1970 population census data by the bureau of the census. Census data is available to individuals and organizations at low costs because of the efficiency of computer processing of special requests for information, Professor John S. Hoyt Jr., MAPS director, said.

Of the 75,141 housing units lacking one or more plumbing facilities, 505 were occupied by Negro families. There were 824,829 owner-occupied and 329,317 renter-occupied housing units in the state. Of the owner-occupied total, Negroes were the head of 4,338 households and whites headed 817,138 households. Of the renter-occupied group, Negroes headed 6,027 and whites 318,884 households.

There were 50,876 housing units in which no flush toilets were installed out of a total of 1,218,700 year-around housing units, the MAPS information revealed. Persons occupying units with all plumbing facilities totaled 3,522,798 and there were 169,578 occupants of year around housing units in Minnesota lacking one or more plumbing facilities.

Minn. Taxpayer Ass'n. Comments On Tax Problem

Growing public opposition to property tax boosts is forcing school districts in various parts of the nation to tighten their belts, according to Harold T. Miller, research director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

"The belt-tightening currently is taking the form of teacher layoffs," Miller said, citing a recent news story in the Wall Street Journal.

"In Cincinnati voters defeated a proposed tax levy increase; 375 teachers are slated to be dropped in September, and kindergarten classes have been ordered cut from 20 to 12 weeks.

"Chicago will drop 4,000 of its 24,000 teachers and administrators this fall unless $58,000,000 in additional school funds are found by June, and voter approval of increased school levies in Illinois has dropped to 44 per cent.

"In Wilmette, wealthiest of Chicago's suburbs, voters have twice defeated tax hike [illegible] be dropped at the end of this school year.

"In Detroit class sizes are being increased to average 35 pupils, with 192 teachers laid off March 1 and 65 likely to go later in the month.

"More than half of California's 1,600 school districts have notified teachers of possible layoffs this fall."

Miller noted that many of the school districts cited in the Journal report have economized by reducing spending for construction, maintenance and programs deemed less essential, such as art, music and sports. However, he said that the Journal report quoted an official of the National School Board Association as saying that "you can only save so much by poring things around the edges. Teachers salaries remain the schools biggest expense. Layoffs are the only way to make the kind of reductions we're faced with now."

"So far, Minnesota has been spared the drastic school cutbacks being made in many other areas," Miller said, "but the evidence of growing resentment against further property tax increases here is getting stronger daily."

problem of space for junior high school and elementary students at the "east side complex", including Franklin junior high and Mark Twain elementary schools. Following presentation and discussion of information on temporary classrooms, a motion was adopted to set up plans for leasing two 32x64 double units for the junior high school and another single or double unit for the elementary school.

Although termed "temporary" classrooms, the units would be of permanent type construction. Cost of the two double units was calculated by one of the board members as being about $14,500 per year for five years. Supt. Johnson's report revealed that costs for rentals, transportation, remodeling and food services at existing public or church buildings on an annual basis would approach that figure.

Resignations were accepted from Everett Leino, administrative assistant and counselor at Franklin junior high school; Theresa Waltz, English instructor at Franklin school, and Evan Armstrong, director of the program for the trainable retarded.

Mrs. Harriet Hanson was named as a full-time teacher for the balance of the school year at Mark Twain elementary school and a leave of absence was granted to Mrs. Olive Goldesberry, business education instructor at the area vocational-technical school.

A. E. Strandquist To Retire From Midland Board

A. E. Strandquist, who represents Midland District 5, will retire March 24 after 24 years of service on the Midland Board of Directors, and vice president of the board for 15 years.

It's time, he explains. "I've already given up the other boards I've served on, this is the last one. We're planning to spend much of next winter in California, and I want to feel free to be away."

Life without service to some cooperative or community organization will be a big change for Andrew Strandquist.

In addition to his service on the Midland Board he served on the board of the Marshall county (Minn.) Co-op Oil association from 1937 to 1970, the last 20 years as its president.

He was a director for 15 years of the Polk, Kittson, Marshall (PKM) Electric Cooperative.

He served as a director of the Minnesota Assn. of Cooperatives from 1950 to 1954.

He was director of Co-op Auditing Service, Minneapolis, from 1951 to 1953.

He served as a director of the Warren (Minn.) Cooperative Shipping Assn., for 20 years and as chairman of the board for 10 years.

He has served for 15 years as Midland representative at shareholder meetings of C. F. Industries, Inc. (formerly Central Farmers Fertilizer Company), Chicago.

He is an organizer and charter member of the Argyle, Minn., Lions Club.

He was elected ASCS county committeeman for Marshall County in 1943, and became manager of the Warren office in 1953. He retired from that position in 1968.

He served on the West Valley school board for 12 years, serving at one time or another as clerk, treasurer and chairman.

He served 15 years on the Foldahl Township board.

He was a board member of the Marshall County School Committee for 6 years and its chairman for 3.

He was a founder and first president of the Minnesota Assn. of ASCS Office Managers and Employees, organized in 1958.

Strandquist was born in 1897 at Strandquist, Minn., a town of 160 named for an uncle. His wife, Lilly, who was born in Sweden, came to the United States in 1917 to join her father, who had arrived in Strandquist, Minn., five years earlier.

The Strandquists have made their home in Warren, Minn., since Andrew's retirement from farming in 1958.

Bergland Says SST Vote Shows Congress' Mood

Congressman Bob Bergland said in Washington that he hoped the House of Representatives' rejection of funds for a supersonic transport airplane "makes it perfectly clear to President Nixon that Congress is more interested in programs to aid people than in questionable toys and billion dollar boondoggles."

Earlier the House deleted, by a vote of 215 to 204, funds from a department of transportation bill that would have authorized further development of the commercial aircraft.

According to Bergland, who was committed to block further spending on the SST, the vote was a surprise to many. "I think that many people who were undecided about their vote," he said, "began to realize that the administration's arguments for the plane didn't hold much water. They didn't see why." Bergland continued. "If the SST was such a good investment, private industry wasn't willing to gamble on it.

"Another argument—that the plane was needed to maintain employment and profits in the aerospace industry—was a lot like saying we have to keep fighting wars just to keep the military and defense industries going," he added.

Bergland also said that unanswered questions about the plane's effect on health and the environment "was another major factor in its defeat."

Bergland said that he now hopes the President "will recognize the real needs of the nation and gear his legislative programs toward helping people."

435 Hear Jerry Deal Discuss Tax Problems

A freeze on the present real estate taxes and passage of an amendment to the Minnesota constitution which would place a one per cent ceiling on taxes levied against real property in the state. To give muscle to the proposals, he advocated the withholding of real estate tax payments.

In attempting to show where the tax burden lies in Pennington county, Deal revealed that 83.55 per cent of the tax base in the county consists of residential and agricultural property. The total break-down shows 39.52 per cent residential, 44.03 per cent agricultural, 15.51 per cent commercial, 1.41 per cent industrial and .43 per cent public utility.

The speaker claimed a selfish interest in the association's stated purpose. "I'm a real estate owner," he said, "and I would like to remain one." He predicted that real estate taxes would double in four years if they continued at the present rate. "You might as well withhold your tax payments now," he said. "In four years you won't be able to pay them anyway."

"Only a statewide nonpolitical, nonpartisan and nonprofit seeking group with a large membership, willing, if necessary, to withhold their real estate taxes if the demands for tax reform are not met can bring sufficient pressure upon the legislature to scrap the entire property tax structure as it now exists," Deal said.

The association hangs much of its reformation hat on zero budgeting, whereby all governments would establish budgets based on need rather than expenditures of the previous year. "Zero budgeting is the only way to eliminate overlapping expenditures between departments and unnecessary expenditures within departments," the speaker said.

Deal also presented the association's contention that welfare costs should be brought in line with those of other states, noting that Minnesota's aid to families with dependent children is the highest in the nation. He also showed possible means by which part or all of the money lost from real estate tax limitation to one per cent could be recovered, much of it in line with Gov. Wendell Anderson's budget message.

"It should be made very clear that the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association does not support increased tax revenue in any form merely to provide funds for expanded state spending programs," the executive secretary said. "Our sole goal is to bring a one per cent limitation on real estate taxes. We support new tax programs only to the extent that they can offset revenue loss brought about by decreased real estate taxes and only after every effort has been made to trim the spending of tax dollars on every level of the state government."

In his appeal for taxpayer unity and membership in his organization, Deal said "... there are more taxpayers than members of even the largest and the most powerful unions. Why then are the real estate taxpayers and taxpayers in general so lax in protecting their interests?

"You, the real estate taxpayer, can join into a well organized statewide taxpayers' bloc, informed and properly directed. You could spell a quick end to the public career of a free spender, high taxing state legislator, county commissioner, mayor, councilman or school board member.

"Public apathy and indifference is and has been the problem," he said. "The average citizen has not been or has not cared to keep a close watch on the spending habits and votes of his lawmaker."

Deal quoted a letter from Bruce E. Sherwood of a law firm at Wheaton, regarding withholding of real estate taxes.

"Some people have sold they though that if they didn't pay their real estate taxes, they would lose their land right away. This just is not true. No Sir. Chapter 279 of the Minnesota Statutes provides the procedures that must be followed for getting a judgment for delinquent taxes against the land. If the taxpayer does not fight back at all, the soonest a judgment and sale for taxes due but not paid in 1971 could occur would be in May of 1972. Again, that is only if the taxpayer does not resist efforts to get a judgment and sell the land.

"However, and this is the main point, the landowner is then given—by statute—five years from the date of sale to redeem the land regardless of whether the land was bought by an actual purchaser or bid in for by the state. And, furthermore, the landowner can stay right on his property and work it as his own during that time. Just no question about that."

Membership in the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association costs one per cent of the real estate taxes paid in 1970 or a minimum of $5. Deal estimates that about 10,000 people have paid their membership dues through the association's office to date and speculated that "10 times that many" are in the hands of volunteer workers throughout the state who have not yet sent them in.

Persons interested locally may contact the Northwest Taxpayers association office located on the second floor of the Northern state bank building in Thief River Falls.

REACTING TO COMMENTS by taxpayers following Tuesday night's meeting is Jerry Deal of the Minnesota Real Estate Taxpayers association. Deal's group seeks a freeze on current real estate taxes and adoption of a constitutional amendment which would limit real estate taxes to one per cent of market value. To force legislative action, he advocated withholding of real estate tax payments.

Council Gives Thought To New Liquor Facility

In other actions last night, the city council adopted an ordinance annexing 16 acres of land near the Catholic cemetery, and held the second readings of ordinances to prevent and control the spread of Dutch elm disease and to increase current water rates. (An audit report showed that the city was selling water at less than production costs. The ordinance would raise water charges to the break-even point.)

There was also the second reading of a proposed ordinance that would raise the price of sanitary sewer services for the same reason.

The council also authorized advertisement for bids on an unmarked police patrol car to be used for investigative and other non-patrol duty and for two 2½ ton trucks for the street department and power and light department, and two half ton pick-ups. Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. April 27 in the city council chambers.

The council Tuesday night also established 1971 salaries for city administrative personnel. Morris Owen, superintendent of utilities, is to receive $14,700. City clerk William Fahey will receive $15,000.

The council passed a resolution authorizing the execution of contract to accept a grant offer from the Minnesota Pollution Control agency. The money from this will be used to help pay the costs of sewer construction at the municipal airport.

A resolution authorizing acceptance of amendments to the city's contract with the Bureau of Reclamation, the city's source of electrical power, which would continue firm service through October of 1977, was passed.

A resolution to execute a lease with Thief River Aviation for a maintenance shop building at the municipal airport at a rate of $150 per month was passed.

Bergland Asks For Restoration Of Tax Credit

U.S. Representative Bob Bergland has introduced legislation to restore the seven per cent investment tax credit to farmers and small businessmen. Bergland's bill would allow the credit annually on the first $20,000 of capital equipment purchased.

The investment credit was repealed during the last session of Congress at the request of President Nixon. According to Bergland the credit "must be reinstated in order to both boost the economy and provide relief to farmers and small businessmen. Both the farmer and the small businessman," he added, "are in dire need of this relief."

Bergland's bill differs from other legislation designed to restore the investment credit in that it places the annual ceiling at $20,000 in purchases. Most other bills would place the limit at $15,000. Bergland said that the high cost of farm machinery and other depreciable assets "seems to require the higher ceiling."

Assessing the chances of the passage of his legislation, Bergland said: "Congress is aware of the need to restore the investment credit—the only question is how much of a credit they will allow."

Increase Shown In Sign-up For Wheat Program

Farms in Minnesota signed up for participation in the 1971 wheat program number well ahead of those initially enrolled in 1970, according to Alvin Payne, chairman of the Minnesota Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

During the first nine days of the March 1-April 9 sign-up period 9,574 farms were signed up in Minnesota. This compares with 3,851 farms for the first 10 days of the 1970 sign up period. These enrolled farms have 74,556 acres in wheat allotments. The total state wheat allotment is 338,790 acres.

The national wheat allotment is based on the number of acres that, on the basis of the estimated national yield, will result in wheat marketing certificates being issued to participating farmers in an amount equivalent to estimated domestic food use.

A major change in the 1971 wheat program is moving from diverted acres to set-aside acres. Diverted acres under past programs represented a reduction in the wheat acres which could be planted. Set-aside represents a reduction in total crop acreage on a farm but not necessarily a cut in wheat acreage.

Wheat acreage set-aside on enrolled farms in the state totals 56,034 acres. In 1971, required set-aside is equal to 75 per cent of a farm's domestic allotment.

Wheat program payments representing 75 per cent of the estimated July 1 value of wheat marketing certificates will be made promptly after that date, Payne indicated. The balance will be paid after Dec. 1, 1971.

1971 Feed Grain Program Shows Gain From 1970

First report on 1971 feed grain program lists 126,941 total feed grain farms in Minnesota. Sign up for participation in the program is running well ahead of that for a year ago, according to Alvin Payne, chairman of the Minnesota Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

Enrollment based on the first nine days of the March 1-April 9 sign-up period shows 21,442 feed grain farms. A year ago based on the first 10 days of sign up the farm sign up total in the state was 12,317.

Set-aside acreage on signed farms in this first report for 1971 totals 293,282 acres. Direct comparison with a year ago is not possible because the 1970 sign up included a lump amount of agreed acreage diversion of feed grain cropland that included barley.

Of the total corn grain sorghum feed grain base in the state of 7,471,995 acres for 1971, a total of 7,467,175 acres is corn base.

The 1971 feed grain program is a voluntary one. It is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1970. The program makes use of a set-aside principle in which a farmer participant agrees to set aside 20 per cent of his crop acreage from production and devote it to an approved soil conserving use. After making his set aside, a producer is free to plant his remaining cropland as he desires.

Payne advises farmers that they need to sign up in the 1971 feed grain program in order to qualify for price support payments and loans on eligible production.

Slow Down and Live

Health Survey To Be Conducted

Several thousand Minnesotans will be contacted during late March and April as part of a health services study sponsored by Northlands regional medical program, the comprehensive health planning program of the Minnesota state planning agency and Minnesota Blue Cross-Blue Shield and Mil.

The study, "Minnesota Health Care Survey," will gather information about the use of health services in Minnesota. The information will be made available to professional health planners.

Approximately 1,900 individuals across the state will be personally contacted by survey teams. In addition, nearly 4,000 physicians, hospital administrators, hospital trustees and medical students will receive mailed questionnaires.

The personal interviews will be conducted by Mid-Continent Surveys, Inc., of Minneapolis. City, suburban, small town and rural families will be contacted to represent a statistical cross-section of the state, based on 1970 census figures.

The survey has been developed in cooperation with the Minnesota State Medical association, the Minnesota Hospital association and all of the Minnesota area-wide health planning agencies.

All replies to the survey will be confidential, with results published in summary form only.

This study is the only project of its kind in Minnesota and should be of major importance to future health planning in the state.

Unemployed May Get Extended Benefits Now

Qualified unemployed Minnesotans who have exhausted their unemployment compensation benefits can apply for additional emergency benefits beginning immediately, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota Department of Manpower services announced today.

Persons eligible for the extended benefits are those who filed a new claim for unemployment benefits under either state or federal programs on or after March 29, 1970, whose benefits since have been exhausted and who have been unable to find work, Cushing explained.

Persons now drawing unemployment compensation also will qualify if they exhaust their ordinary benefits during the period that the current unemployment emergency exists.

The extended unemployment benefits program went into effect Sunday, March 21, after Governor Wendell R. Anderson signed the enabling legislation March 18.

"This bill will provide up to 13 additional weeks of desperately needed financial aid to the families of Minnesota wage earners who are unable to find jobs before their regular benefits run out," Gov. Anderson said. "In addition to helping those families that are in distress, the extra payments will provide a general boost to the state's economy."

Approximately 10,000 unemployed are expected to be affected immediately by the emergency measure, Cushing said. The initial weekly payments will total about $500,000, paid on a 50-50 basis from state and federal funds maintained solely by employers' contributions.

"Eligibility for payment begins the week in which filing is made so it will be to your advantage to file your claim as soon as possible," Commissioner Cushing said.

Those who feel they are eligible should contact the same office with which their original claim was filed, Cushing said. Persons who have moved should contact the nearest State Employment Service office of the Minnesota Department of Manpower Services, he added.

Weekly benefit checks under the extended benefits program will be the same amount as was received under the exhausted claim, Cushing explained. The extended benefits will continue until a claimant has found a job or received additional payments equal to 50 per cent of the total amount of his previous claim.

"When you come to claim extended benefits, you should bring your identification booklet, you must have your social security card."

The extended unemployment payments measure was passed by the Minnesota legislature March 15. It authorizes state participation in the federal-state extended unemployment compensation act passed by Congress in August, 1970.

At both state and federal levels, the emergency benefits program is "triggered" when unemployment reaches a critical level and remains at that level for a specified period of time. In Minnesota, the current program will remain in effect until the state unemployment rate averages less than four per cent over a 13 week period.

Arne Rantanen

Arne Rantanen Is Conservation Award Recipient

Arne Rantanen, 17, Middle River, has been named the state winner of the Frank Blair junior achievement conservation award.

Arne lives on a farm with his mother Mrs. Betty Rantanen and family. The entire family has a combined total of 79 years in 4-H work.

Among Arne's many projects he has blasted ponds and planted millet, sunflowers, rye and oats which was left for feed for wildlife. He has harvested some feed crops for use as winter feed for wildlife.

In the past four years Arne and his family have accommodated 150 different hunters on their land for a total of 600 man days. He has a small amount of equipment available for loan to hunters.

Arne has written articles on conservation for his school paper, given talks and demonstrations on conservation, served as a 4-H leader and represented county 4-H at the state conservation camp.

Arne has planted 2,000 trees, has 400 acres in clover which is never mowed and left for cover.

The fact that feed stations are maintained the year 'round accounts for the herd of 30 deer, 10 moose and two elk usually found on his farm.

Arne will be awarded the Frank Blair trophy at the Northwest Boat, Sports and Travel show on Saturday afternoon, April 3.

Garden Valley Improves Fertile Phone Exchange

Garden Valley telephone company last week completed a $350,000 upgrading project in the Fertile exchange. Approximately 760 subscribers in this exchange now have the availability of one-party, private line service.

The cutover to the new telephone service was begun March 15 and nearly completed March 17. Most of the company's plant and central office equipment personnel worked from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. to complete the cutover with a minimum of delay. Central office employees reported for work at 4 a.m. on March 16.

Orrin H. Ness and Gregg N. Poullot supervised the project, which involved cutting over more than 900 phones within three days.

Cutover was the final phase of Garden Valley's upgrading program to provide an all-weather underground plant and additional central office facilities. Fertile is the fifth of the Garden Valley exchanges to have one-party service. The others are Minerva, Maple Bay, Red Lake Falls and Brooks. The Mentor exchange is scheduled for cutover April 12.

The Garden Valley telephone company, with headquarters at Erskine, is a Minnesota cooperative owned by its subscribers. Harold W. Peterson is general manager of the company, which operates 23 exchanges serving more than 11,000 telephones.

Midwest Co-op Has Record Year

A second consecutive year of record sales highlighted Midwest Breeders' 1970 annual report. 829,371 units of sale were made to 35,298 members in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and Upper Michigan, and nearly 10,000 customers in the Mid and Far West.

Two major changes during the year were expansion of the beef service program and initiating on-the-farm sale of animal care products.

Midwest Breeders makes available to beefman sires of the newly imported breeds and those from the progeny testing program of the Pioneer Beef Cattle company, Des Moines, Iowa. In addition to the cooperative's own sire battery, Rancher breeding schools were increased.

In midwinter the cooperative began selling, through their Wisconsin and Missouri sales force, specific animal care products. The program will be expanded to the remainder of the Midwest service area May 1.

The nation's largest farmer-owned cattle breeding organization, Midwest 1970 sales totaled $4.6 million. Assets stand at $2.5 million with membership equity of $2.1 million.

Attend Benefit At Maplewood

Mrs. Maynard Molakness, rural Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Alvin Nordvick, Grygla, attended the senior benefit and senior recognition held last weekend at Maplewood academy, a Seventh-day Adventist high school at Hutchinson.

Both women have daughters at the academy. Alvina Nordvick was narrator for a skit while Fay Anderson played an accordian duet with Gina Olberg, formerly of Middle River.

MEDICAL MILESTONES

Today's surgeon skillfully performs delicate operations once thought impossible, yet he shares a common problem with all the practitioners who preceded him since the dawn of history—that of joining severed tissue.

The use of suture "threads" to sew up wounds spans more than 4,000 years and the search for a "perfect" suture has been unrelenting.

Sinews and strings were used by the ancient Egyptians to close wounds and, though crude, they were an improvement over techniques used before their discovery.

It wasn't until the second century, however, that Galen the Greek used strands of animal intestine to tie off cut blood vessels—and close the wounds of Roman gladiators.

Suture development continued at a slow pace until 1800, when Dr. Philip Syng Physick of the University of Pennsylvania discovered that sutures made of animal tissue can be absorbed by the body—avoiding irritation caused by long lasting sutures. Lister's discoveries and development of sterile techniques made gut sutures practical but the nature of the absorption process caused swelling with resultant pain in some cases.

Now, a new era of surgical sutures has been entered with "Dexon"—the first synthetic absorbable suture. It has a higher tensile strength than conventionally used animal gut, is absorbed by the tissues without irritation at a predictable and uniform rate—and remains strong during the critical 15 day wound healing period—disappearing only after its job is done.

Poirier Enlists In Navy Plan

Thomas R. Poirier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Poirier, Red Lake Falls, enlisted in the U. S. Navy March 19, according to Chief Bollerman Bill Bashaw, local Navy recruiter.

Lake Name Game Provokes Ideas And Amusement

With more than 15,000 lakes to name (about half the task remains), Minnesotans have freely exercised their imaginations. The few samples offered here are just a hint of what may be found when playing the "name game" with our lakes.

Perhaps the same fellow who named Gypo lake named Sucker lake as well, since they are in the same area.

Fans of the supernatural would enjoy Superstition lake as well as Deadman, Skeleton, Blood, Haunted and Phantom lakes. Exploring Starvation lake might lead one to next visit Hospital lake or even Sedative lake.

Criminologists may recognize Crook lake and take heart in Sheriff lake, although they may have to be satisfied with Little Sheriff lake and Jail lake thrown in for good measure. Then again, they may even encounter No See Um lake and bring Fosdick lake (is it Fearless?) into the act.

Artists can have a field day with any number of Black, White, Brown, Gray, Red, Silver, Amber or Green lakes while others may see a connection between Rat, Big Rat, Rathouse and Cat lakes.

Mathematicians will like Twelve, Sixteen, Eighteen and Twenty lakes (there are also One, Two, Three and Four Lakes as well as more, but you get the idea). People who like to eat can feel at home on Dinner lake—or on Little Dinner lake and even on North Dinner lake, not to mention Hungry lake.

If you like Love lake, you'll like Romance, Darling and Ecstasy lakes. If that doesn't make it for you, you can take Whiskey lake with Chaser lake.

This sort of thing could go on forever with Ballyhoo, Yarn and Caper lakes as well as a Corny lake and a Weird lake.

And would you believe in Misplaced lake?

Well, that gives you an idea of some of the fun that can be had travelling through this watery state. Start your own collection of lake names and maybe win same bets with your out-of-state friends.

Bigger Payments Given Veterans And Survivors

Increased payments averaging between nine and 10 per cent for approximately 1.6 million veterans and survivors on the Veterans administration pension rolls are provided in a bill recently signed into law by the President.

John R. Murphy, director of the VA center at Fort Snelling, said that the bill also raised income limitations that determine if, and how much, VA pension can be awarded to disabled veterans, and widows and children of deceased veterans.

A VA pension is paid for disabilities and deaths not due to military service. The new law was designed to avoid a drop in income for those "current law" pensioners whose social security increased during 1970 and who would have had veterans pension benefits reduced beginning the first of this year.

An increase in benefits was also given to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC), he said.

The income limit controlling the receipt of pension was increased by $300 for both "protected" and "current law" pensioners, as well as parents receiving DIC.

Murphy said that increases of 10 per cent were also authorized for veterans on the current law pension rolls entitled to aid and attendance, as well as for widows receiving death compensation, DIC or current law pension. The housebound rate for veterans entitled under the current law rate was also increased by 10 per cent.

The VA official noted that the new law also removes the requirement for persons age 72 or older who have been in receipt of VA benefits for two consecutive years to file annual income questionnaires, although they are still required to report changes in income or net worth. He emphasized that this provision applies to income reports to be filed at the end of 1971.

NDMEA Delegate Assembly Meets At Cass Lake

More than 75 teachers representing the schools of the Northern division, MEA, spent Saturday in delegate assembly at Cass Lake where they discussed policy which would effect their association for the next year.

Resolutions passed at Saturday's meeting will be forwarded to the state delegate assembly to be at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis, April 1-3. If passed at the state meeting, they will become MEA policy.

Teachers at the Cass Lake meeting also changed some of the division's by-laws to conform to new state by-laws, nominated officers for the fall election and heard reports from committee chairmen. Mrs. Irene Strong, Blackduck, division president, conducted the meeting.

Resolutions were passed concerning the welfare of youth, utilization of professional resources, financial support, professional standards, economic welfare and personnel policies.

The assembly voted to support the goal of the MEA that the minimum salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree should be at least $10,000 and the maximum salary of teachers with a masters degree should be at least $21,000.

The resolution concerning legislation on drugs was made more specific as Orren Bendickson, Thief River Falls, moved that legislation be passed that would provide lesser penalties for users of marijuana but maintain stringent penalties for selling it.

The resolution had previously said that legislation would provide more realistic penalties.

In an economy move the MEA has previously announced that it may cut back on area field men and that divisions, areas, groups of school districts or a single district may form a unit to provide this service.

Initially one third of this cost would be borne by the NEA, one third by the MEA and one third by the unit.

It was argued that the Northern division would be large enough to support one unit and Gerald Eggers, Red Lake Falls, moved that the assembly accept the "Uni-Serve" concept. His motion passed.

Officers nominated by a committee headed by A. J. Kramer, Roseau, immediate past president, were Michael J. Moen, Red Lake Falls, and Elaine E. Velt, Sebeka, for president; Tyronne S. Birkeland, Thief River Falls, and James H. Musburger, Karlstad, for vice president.

Others nominated were John E. Flora, Cass Lake, and Milton M. Will, Bemidji, for division representative to the MEA board of directors; Louise MacFadden, Roseau, and Melvin C. Wang, Greenbush, legislative chairman; Richard Skinner, Bemidji, and Richard I. Thompson, Goodridge, resolutions chairman;

Also Richard E. Beitzel and Max A. Boyer, both Bemidji, for Area I (Beltrami, Lake of the Woods and Koochiching counties), representative to the division executive board; Doris J. Landin, Warroad, Helen M. Johnson, Hallock, and Orville E. Jonzen, Roseau for Area IV (Kittson, Marshall and Roseau counties) representative to the division executive board.

The election will be held next fall, prior to the division convention.

TRF Education Ass'n. Responds To Taxpayers

informed, they would have known that income protection insurance had been dropped and that hospitalization would cost only $7,500 more. This is only $7,500, not the $70,000 that was stated in the article. We would not consider that to be a minor error in calculations. Those two items represent a $63,500 error in the Taxpayers Association's statement. Since this is grossly misleading to the public, an apology is in order.

It is correct that most teachers are employed professionally for a nine month period. However, we cannot project a nine month figure of $780 to twelve months and say it is equivalent to the amount of $9,500 per year, as the Taxpayers Association's statement does in paragraph three, when the teaching contract states $7,000.

On a 12-month basis, a beginning teacher does not receive $780 per month but approximately $583 per month. Very few teachers can step out of their present school position after nine months and into a three-month job that would pay them the same monthly amount that they are now receiving. Teachers are expected and desire to earn additional hours of college credit during the summer. May we remind everyone that a teacher does have to live—and pay taxes—twelve months of the year? A three month hibernation period for teachers has not yet been developed.

It was requested by the Taxpayers Association to "name another professional group that receives approximately $780.00 per month, fresh out of school with a Bachelor's Degree." Gentlemen, according to the Endicott Report dated January 1971, prepared by Frank Endicott of Northwestern University, here are some other professional groups, fresh out of college with a Bachelor's Degree that receive more than this amount.

1. Engineers—$885 per month-$10,620 per year.
2. Accountants—$845 per month-$10,140 per year.
3. Chemists—$826 per month-$9,912 per year.
4. Physicists—$852 per month-$10,224 per year.
5. Statisticians—$806 per month-$9,672 per year.

One can readily see that all of the above receive more than a starting teacher. Also, they are able to work twelve months a year at that monthly figure. While the Taxpayers Association's spokesman would have the public believe that educators' fringe benefits are unique, they conveniently refrain from citing the often superior fringe benefits enjoyed by millions of union members in industry, transportation, and other occupations. Again, the Taxpayers Association needs to be better informed.

It is indeed incongruous for people in a thriving community in the richest land on earth to claim that it cannot afford the moderately priced education that this district provides. The local educational costs per pupil unit has already been revealed by Mr. Hamerlinck as significantly less than that of a number of similar districts. We would feel more than a little self-conscious about claiming inability to afford $712 per pupil unit, while many pay more.

It seems to us that a number of people are over-indulging in the modern practice of wanting to, have their cake and eat it, too. We believe we can afford both good education and a satisfying standard of living, but we believe some sacrifices are necessary. Others apparently take good education so much for granted that they expect it no matter how much our schools and teachers are abused or neglected.

Paragraph six of the Taxpayers Association's statement made some allegations about which we would like to comment. First, "Some teachers have indicated their satisfaction with the present salary schedules and benefits." As president of the Thief River Falls Education Association, I say that any teacher who wishes to remain at his present salary may do so. We do not force teachers to accept any raise offered them by the school board, nor do we compel any teacher to return his contract unsigned.

Second, we reject and resent the implied allegations that teacher negotiation activities are disrupting the education of the community's children. All salary and negotiating meetings are held after school, in the evening or on weekends.

Third, the naivete of the Taxpayers Association's spokesman with regard to the nature of teaching is clearly revealed by their classification of teaching as a "low pressure job." Among countless other pressures, the teachers face daily audiences of up to 250 students, many indifferent, a few rebellious, whom they are expected to teach, control, discipline, motivate, and occasionally entertain, often for the greater part of each day. Educators may now add the intended pressure of Taxpayers Associations.

Fourth, the Taxpayers Association's statement asked if the teachers' negotiating committee actually represents all of the teachers. Gentlemen, of 183 teachers in District No. 564, 181 belong to the Thief River Falls Education Association. We were recently informed that the Northwest Taxpayers Association had a membership of less than 300 of all the taxpayers in the Thief River Falls district. Obviously, the Thief River Falls Education Association represents a much larger segment of teachers than the Northwest Taxpayers Association does of taxpayers.

On Wednesday, February 3rd, 1971, teachers of District No. 564, in attendance at an all-faculty meeting, gave their unanimous approval to the proposals submitted to them by the Teachers Negotiating Committee. We have been told by members of the Northwest Taxpayers Association that they were not previously informed of the statements made by their spokesman. In fact, some members of the Taxpayers Association knew nothing about the statement made to the school board, nor did they agree with that statement. Does the Taxpayers Association represent all the taxpayers of Thief River Falls? Do they or whoever wrote the last statement read to the school board on March 8th, actually represent the feeling of all the members of their Association?

An article entitled, "70,000 Taxpayers Speak Out," was published in the March 1971 issue of Better Homes and Gardens. Readers reactions were requested to this statment, "Property taxes go up every year; costs of public schools account for most of the increase. A ceiling should be imposed on teachers' salaries to limit this large part of the expense." The results were as follows:

1. Strongly agree—9 per cent
2. Agree—13 per cent
3. No feeling either way—4 per cent
4. Disagree—46 per cent
5. Strongly disagree—27 per cent.

The article states, "82 per cent of the respondents here were homeowners. In a year marked by widespread, bitter protest over rising property taxes, you would expect this group to echo that anti-tax sentiment—even where teachers' salaries are concerned. Yet, 73 per cent disagreed generally with the proposition, 22 per cent agreed."

The Taxpayers Association requested that an adjustment panel be formed. Our Teachers' Negotiating Committee stated clearly at the last school board meeting, "An adjustment panel will cost the school district a needless amount of money." The school district's adjustment panel member must be paid in full from the school district funds. If a third member of the adjustment panel is needed, the school board must, by law, pay half of his fee and expenses. Is this the way that the Taxpayers Association suggests that the school board "hold the line" on spending?

Among other undocumented declarations, the Taxpayers Association's statement makes vague insinuations about excessive administrators, teachers, clerks, aides, secretaries, unimportant programs, and mod teaching. The total lack of specific complaints or recommendations with respect to any of these reveals eloquently their lack of educational expertise and informed judgement. Apparently these self-appointed critics must regard themselves as instantaneous educational experts and make these various accusations in order to rationalize their position on economy.

Paragraph nine of the Taxpayers Association's statement claims they want a good education for their children but "feel that this school district cannot afford to bear the extremely high cost of unproven, expensive, experimental programs." We find it difficult to understand how it is possible to keep pace with the advances in education and to improve education for the children of Thief River Falls without some innovation and experimentation.

Industry spends large sums of money on research. How long would private enterprise exist if it applied the "hold the line" policy the Taxpayers Association demands for the cost of education? Surely the Taxpayers Association must realize that being concerned only with cost can destroy a fine school as it can destroy a fine business.

Finally, the Taxpayers Association's leadership flexes its muscles in an irrelevant remark to the school board about requests for assistance from other towns, townships, etc. We wonder just what kind of help this group can provide if the three inept reports thus far with their uninformed opinions, factual inaccuracies, undocumented accusation, and bad manners are indicative of their services. If this is what is provided and wanted, we are all in serious trouble, including the taxpayers groups.

We were somewhat amazed that the Taxpayers Association's spokesman, apparently pretending to be privy to some exclusive information, magnanimously assured the school board that an adequate reserve of qualified teachers existed locally, supposedly ready, willing and able, to take over the instruction of the school district's children. Should administrators now call the Taxpayers Association when substitutes and replacements for next year are needed?

We also wonder how many teachers, actual and potential, will be properly motivated to teach in the educational atmosphere poisoned for years to come by the reactionary Taxpayers Association's leadership. The local educational climate has already been a factor in the resignation of teachers of competence, both announced and unannounced. More will follow! We also wonder how many competent potential board members without an axe to grind will offer their services to the electorate after witnessing the bullying of the present board in the tragicomedy played by the star performers of the Taxpayers hierarchy.

Instead of attempting to intimidate the board of education, demoralise teachers and malign their profession, limit the educational opportunities of the community's children, undermine confidence in educators and lay personnel involved in local education, it would seem far more appropriate for the Taxpayers Association's leadership to abandon their vigilante tactics, their self-appointed role as educational experts, re-order their self-centered economic priorities, and assume a degree of positive and responsible community leadership in diverse areas.

They might very well, for instance, investigate the possibilities of Governor Anderson's tax proposals or other innovative tax programs to improve an admittedly outdated tax structure. An informed Taxpayers Association, employing a positive approach, could be a significant and valuable force for better education and a better tax climate for all citizens of this school district.

Unemployment Is Down From High Seen In January

Seasonally adjusted February unemployment rate in Minnesota was 4.9 per cent, down 0.1 percentage point from January, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota Department of Manpower services said today.

This compares with a national unemployment rate of 5.8 per cent for February, down 0.2 percentage points from January.

He said the number of unemployed in Minnesota last month was the highest for February since 1961. However, the level of unemployment 10 years ago was far more acute, Cushing pointed out. In February 1961, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 10.3 per cent and 110,500 persons were jobless. The total number of jobless in February of 1971 was 98,800. The slight increase of 600 over January was primarily the result of seasonal factors, Cushing said.

Nonfarm wage and salary employment in Minnesota was down 8,800 from January to a total of 1,270,300 workers in February. Seasonal influences, accented by a slowdown in the production of durable goods, accounted for most of the decline. Almost all industries in the durable goods classification posted downturns, with the largest decrease (-2,700) occurring in the miscellaneous category which includes ordnance and scientific instruments.

Cushing said seasonal decreases responsible for the drop in employment in nonmanufacturing industries from January to February were mainly in construction and retail trade.

Although nonmanufacturing employment was about 11,800 over February 1970, a drop of 26,400 in workers in manufacturing netted a total decrease of 15,400 in nonfarm employment from a year ago.

Practically all of the decline from 1970 in manufacturing was in industries producing durable goods, with nonelectrical machinery down 8,600, electrical machinery down 6,000 and the category which includes ordnance and scientific instruments and miscellaneous industries down 7,300.

The largest contributors to the gains in nonmanufacturing employment were local governments and service industries. Local governmental units added approximately 80 per cent of the total increase of 5,700 in Government since February 1970. Most of the 4,800 gain in the Service category was in hospital and other medical facilities.

Production workers in manufacturing earned an average of $146 a week for working 39.6 hours at $3.70 per hour. In January, average weekly earnings were $145 for working 39.1 hours at $3.69 per hour.

Earnings and hours worked are low in January and February in relation to the year because in Minnesota this is a seasonally low period, Cushing said.

Trappers Ass'n. Plans Fur Sale In Floodwood

An all day fur sale is being sponsored by the Minnesota Trappers association in Floodwood on Saturday, March 27. A short meeting of the association will take place at 10 a.m. in the Floodwood community center. After this meeting, trappers will be free to deal with fur buyers for the rest of the day.

Beaver and otter furs will be the primary furs sold to buyers who have been invited from all over the state.

This beaver and otter sale is one of the earliest sales the association has ever sponsored. Trappers indicated a willingness to try an under-ice beaver season this year and were obliged by the department of natural resources with a month long season in the wooded parts of the state, running from February 20 to March 21. A later season of an additional two weeks will yet take place in agricultural areas where beaver can become a nuisance.

Fur buyers have stated that the pelts are best in midwinter and prices would be better than later in the spring because fur markets become saturated as the winter progresses. For this reason and because some trappers think the snowmobile is making it too easy to trap out some colonies of beavers in open water, the Minnesota Trappers association asked for an earlier season.

Wage Rates For Housekeeping Are Open To Hearing

Commissioner E. I. Malone of the Minnesota department of labor and industry has ordered a public hearing on proposed minimum wage rates for the public housekeeping industry. The present wage order was issued in 1959 and provides for rates from 75 cents to $1 an hour.

All establishments furnishing food services, meals, lodging or maintenance services to the general public are subject to this wage order. This includes restaurants, drive-ins, hotels, motels, resorts, camps, convalescent homes, hospitals, child care nurseries, trailer parks and similar establishments. It is estimated that more than 50,800 workers will be affected by the new wage order.

The department is engaged in the process of revising all of Minnesota's minimum wage orders and recently issued two new wage orders for the laundry and dry cleaning and retail merchandising industries. The 1957 wage order for the laundry and dry cleaning industry provided for wage rates from 70 cents to 85 cents an hour. The new wage order, which became effective Oct. 15, 1970, provides for a wage rate of $1.60 an hour for women and minors employed in communities with a population in excess of 5,000 and $1.50 an hour in communities with a population of 5,000 or less.

The 1957 wage order for the retail merchandising industry provided for wage rates from 60 cents to 85 cents an hour. The new wage order, which became effective Nov. 14, 1970, provides for a wage rate of $1.60 an hour for experienced women and minors employed in communities with a population in excess of 25,000, $1.50 an hour in communities with a population between 2,500 and 25,000, and $1.45 an hour in communities with a population of 2,500 or less.

The rate for learners and apprentices with less than 500 hours' experience with any given employer is $1.40 an hour in communities with a population in excess of 25,000, $1.30 an hour in communities with a population between 2,500 and 25,000, and $1.25 an hour in communities with a population of 2,500 or less.

The hearing on the public housekeeping wage order will be held at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, March 17, in the auditorium of the state office building in St. Paul. Employees, employers and other interested individuals or groups throughout the state are invited to present their views concerning minimum wage rates for this industry either in writing or in person.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Anyone can become an alcoholic.

If you have lost your ability to refrain from taking a drink or to control the amount you drink, you have a drinking problem, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

Do not be misled by common fallacies about problem drinkers. You do not have to be a skid row bum to have a problem with drinking.

It is not when one drinks or how often one drinks that determines if he is an alcoholic. Rather, it is whether he can control the amount he drinks.

Many feel they are not alcoholic because they never drink before 5 p.m. or any time other than weekends. Others think they are too young to become alcoholic. Still others say they drink only beer or that they can quit at any time. They are fooling themselves.

Alcoholism deceives and deludes its victims so that they do not recognize they are ill. They no longer look at themselves and their behavior objectively. Self-evaluation and self-judgment are not accurate and alcoholics do not realize that when it comes to drinking, they are no longer in control.

Alcoholism is a progressive fatal disease if it is not treated. When a person who has reached the stage of compulsive drinking continues to use alcohol at all, his disease gradually gets worse. Fortunately, there is help available for those who have become addicted and cannot control their drinking. Your family physician can assist you and answer any questions you might have.

Citizen's Advisory Commission Suggested

A bill calling for the establishment of a citizen's advisory commission to the department of natural resources has been suggested by Senator George Conzemius of Cannon Falls. He explained that the bill "would provide for citizen participation in the decision making process concerning the use and protection of our natural resources."

The Commission would consist of one member appointed by the Governor from each of the congressional districts and two members at large. The representatives would serve for 3-year staggered terms with one-third of them being appointed each year.

"Conservationists, environmental experts, sportsmen and campers could all provide important advice to the department of natural resources", Conzemius said. "But so far, there is no method provided for citizen input."

The commission would act in an advisory capacity to the department and make studies of its policies and problems. "The bill places special emphasis on environmental control and conservation," Conzemius explained, "because these are areas of great concern to private citizens in the state."

Powers of the commission would include the right to make recommendations to the governor and the legislature, as well as to the commissioner of natural resources.

Tourism Revenues Gain

Minnesota's tourism and travel industry revenues reached the 810 million mark in 1970. This was a gain of eight per cent over 1969 according to figures published by the Minnesota Hotel and Motor Hotel, Minnesota Resort and Minnesota Restaurant association.

The 1970 increase, however was well below the 15 per cent gain in 1969, the association said. They blamed the national economic slowdown and the five-month Northwest Airlines strike.

Winter tourism is increasing largely due to the snowmobile. Many Minnesota resorts are staying open all winter to take advantage of this trade. The winter of 1970-71 has been a good fishing season and many fishermen have taken advantage of it.

No longer is Minnesota a June-July and August vacation state.

Grouse Decline Continues Due To Timber Growth

Ruffed grouse in Minnesota's aspen forests will continue a long-term decline in abundance if current and projected timber management practices continue, according to a University of Minnesota wildlife research associate, Gordon W. Gullion.

This assessment is the result of a 14 year study of ruffed grouse populations carried out at the Cloquet forest research center about 25 miles west of Duluth.

Young aspen forest, the best habitat for the ruffed grouse, no longer exists on about 3 million acres of aspen forest in Minnesota which is now 30 to 50 years old and rapidly approaching maturity.

Aspen forests will continue to mature as aspen timber harvests remain far below the desired cut, Gullion said. In fact, by the year 2000, the anticipated annual aspen timber cut of 54.4 million cubic feet will be less than losses of aspen due to mortality, according to predictions by forest economists.

Forest fires and flash burning helped maintain habitat for the ruffed grouse until about 1940, Gullion said. In the late 1930's, however, forest fire suppression and control efforts became effective and widespread fire ceased as an important ecologic agent affecting Minnesota's forests.

Consequently, Minnesota's ruffed grouse population has continued a long-term decline as millions of acres of aspen forests resulting from fires prior to the mid-1930's passed from productive young age classes into "gone-by" stands older than 25 years, he explained.

Fire provides quality habitat for grouse by initiating a new stand of aspen, he said.

"It is the second or third year after an aspen stand has been devastated by fire or logging that it begins to provide habitat for broods; and at about 10 to 12 years the stand has grown and thinned sufficiently to provide the quality of habitat required year-around," he said.

And fire accelerates recycling of minerals held in litter on the forest floor.

"This accelerated mineral recycling most often results in a considerable increase in the nutrient quality of plant materials used by these grouse and other animals," he explained.

Fire also burns bulky debris on the forest floor and thus reduces hunting cover for predators which prey on ruffed grouse, he said.

More quality habitat for ruffed grouse and other forest species might be provided if the cut of aspen timber in future years far exceeds current projections, he said.

These conclusions were recently presented at a North American Wildlife conference and constitute one of the "Scientific Journal" series of the University of Minnesota.

Sportsmen Clubs Favor Increase In Surcharge

Overwhelming support for an increase in the surcharge on small game licenses in Minnesota was indicated in a survey conducted recently by the Minnesota Conservation federation. The survey was conducted among sportsmen clubs affiliated with MCF as well as non-affiliated local clubs.

A response of nearly 60 per cent was received from clubs invited to respond to the survey, which in itself is considered unusual. Responses were received from 48 clubs in the latest count representing about 7,000 sportsmen in Minnesota.

Of the clubs responding, 44 endorsed an increase in the small game license surcharge from $1 to $2, while the other four clubs favored leaving the surcharge at $1. None of the clubs favored dropping the surcharge altogether.

The surcharge will expire at the end of 1972 if the present legislative session does not take any action. Receipts from the surcharge are dedicated to acquisition and improvement of wetlands in Minnesota.

As a result of the survey the executive committee of the Minnesota Conservation federation at its meeting March 1 unanimously adopted a resolution calling for legislation to increase the surcharge from $1 to $2 and to seek another $1 of matching funds to come from state general revenue.

A bill calling for the surcharge increase is now being drafted and is expected to be introduced in the Minnesota legislature soon.

UND Spring Grid Clinic April 29

University of North Dakota's annual spring football clinic for upper midwest coaches has been scheduled April 29-30, according to Sioux head football coach Jerry Olson.

The clinic will be conducted on campus, utilizing facilities of the University Center and Fieldhouse, Olson added.

Olson also announced UND spring football practices will begin April 12 for 67 candidates. He hopes to conclude the allowable 20 spring drills May 8, weather permitting.

The clinic will begin April 29 with registration at the University Center at 8 p.m. "An outstanding outside coach will be our lecturer the first evening of the clinic," Olson said. The opening session will conclude with a smoker at the Westward Ho Motel.

"We chose April 29-30 because we feel those dates will suit high school coaches in our area," Olson continued.

April 30 clinic sessions include lectures and films by two high school coaches from the area. Clinic registrants will be luncheon guests of the UND athletic department at the University Center April 30.

The UND coaching staff headed by Olson will handle the afternoon portion of the April 30 sessions at the fieldhouse, utilizing UND players. Other members of the Sioux staff include offensive coordinator Gene Murphy, offensive line coach Kent Stephenson, defensive line coach Del Wight and quarterback-receiver coach Corey Colehour.

Red Lake River Listed Among Canoeing Waters

Many of Minnesota's increasing number of tourists are canoeists. They know that the state provides canoeing equal to or better than those of any area in North America. The Arrowhead region is considered by many experts, in fact, to be the world's finest canoe country.

Only in recent years, however, have canoeists turned their attention to such rivers as the Red Lake, the Rum, the Straight, the Crow Wing, the Root, the Blackhoof and countless others.

The canoeing vacationer, travelling these rivers, is completely isolated from the normal demands of day-to-day life. He is awakened by the song of a bird and prepares breakfast over an open fire, later launching his canoe, dipping his paddle into the cool waters to begin a day of fishing, swimming and exploring.

At day's end, he locates a campsite, pitches his tent, cooks another open-fire meal and enjoys the beauty of a setting Minnesota sun. After preparing his gear for the next day, he crawls into a sleeping bag for a long and restful night's sleep with only the trees and stars or a tent for his roof.

Exceptionally good among Minnesota's little-used routes of canoe travel are the Red Lake river, which follows a crooked course through Indian territory after spilling from the waters of Lower Red Lake on the Red Lake Indian reservation, the Rum river, which pursues a restless, rushing journey from Mille Lacs Lake to join the Mississippi at Anoka; the eastward-flowing Crow Wing river in central Minnesota; the Straight river and the Root river in the southeastern section of the state, and the Blackhoof river, near Carlton, noted for its fine trout pools.

It's always best to inquire first about possible hazards on little-known rivers. Experienced canoeists, however, will find most of those in Minnesota challenging but navigable.

Canoe trip waterways in Minnesota are so plentiful it would be impossible to list all of them. When you plan a canoe trip, survey the possibilities in Minnesota—away from the vacation midstreams.

Suggests Ways For Safe Travel In Wilderness

When properly equipped, winter travel in the wilderness is an exhilarating experience. Respect for that wilderness, however, is added security on any snowmobile excursion and some rules are hereby offered to guide your planning.

It is a good idea to leave word at the hotel, motel or resort at which you are staying, spelling out the route you expect to take and your estimated time of return.

Few experienced people go into the wilderness alone. It is good sense to travel in a group. If one machine breaks down, the riders can double up or assist each other for repairs.

Gasoline which mixes easily with oil in warmer weather tends to stay separated in extreme, sub-zero cold. Care must be taken to insure thorough mixing. Also, a felt strainer is excellent for removing ice crystals from gas cans when refueling on the trail.

Along with the usual insulated clothing, waterproof boots are essential. The chance of getting into slush is ever present and the ordinary type of felt or leather boot can become soaked quickly. Rubber-bottomed leather boots with half-inch felt liners are preferred foot gear.

One hazard, seldom considered but very important in the deep, soft snow of wilderness areas, is motor fumes. Where a trail has not been broken, snowmobiles may plow through and dig furrows 18 to 25 inches deep. Exhaust fumes tend to stay in the furrows and can cause nausea and severe headaches.

When breaking trail in deep snow, veteran travellers stop every 15 minutes or so, walk around, sip coffee and check the map.

To avoid slush or spring holes, it is best to follow established wilderness trails. Maps showing trail locations are available free by writing to the U.S. Forest Service in Duluth or to the Minnesota Department of Economic Development in St. Paul.

Lee Swanson Named Lincoln Cage Coach

Lee Swanson was appointed as Lincoln senior high school basketball coach Monday night by the Thief River Falls board of education.

Swanson, last year's LHS junior varsity coach, succeeds Windfield "Whitey" Olson who retired as Lincoln basketball coach after the 1970-71 season.

The new coach was recommended for the head coaching position by Olson and by athletic director Russ Smith and principal Robert Ostrzeski.

Swanson is a graduate of Argyle high school and Bemidji state college where he played on the Beaver's cage teams.

The new Prowler mentor held his first coaching position at Estevan Collegiate institute in Saskatchewan, Canada. While at Estevan in 1960 his team won the provincial championship.

Swanson coached at Sioux Valley high school in Lake Park, Iowa for two years before coaching basketball at Janesville, Minnesota from 1963-65. Swanson served as an assistant coach on the Lincoln high school basketball staff from 1965-68 before going to Pasorobles high school in Pasorobles, California to coach for the 1969 season.

Coach Swanson said an assistant coach has not been named yet but there are several applicants for the position.

Wildlife Week Calls Attention To Environment

National Wildlife Federation and its 50 state affiliates are sponsoring the 33rd annual observance of National Wildlife Week March 21-27.

The theme of 1971's Wildlife Week asks the question "Wildlife—Who Needs It?" The answer, "We all do," will be the focus of federation activities across the country during Wildlife Week.

Announcing Wildlife Week, federation Executive Director Thomas L. Kimball noted that the 1971 theme "illustrates that people have the same needs as wildlife but wildlife show the effects of pollution and destruction of environment sooner than people do.

"In today's rapid-paced world with increasing demands on land, water and air," Kimball continued, "we need wildlife more than ever before. Their condition is the measure of the health of our civilization. This year over 100 species of wildlife face extinction because of manmade "progress"—pollution of water and air, widespread and thoughtless use of persistent pesticides, and unplanned, unnecessary development."

The 2½ million members of the National Wildlife federation will use National Wildlife Week activities at the state and local level to focus public attention on the importance of wildlife in man's environment.

East Grand Forks and Braineed are our picks to take the class A and AA basketball titles in the Minnesota state high school basketball tournament that began at 2 p.m. today (Wednesday) at Williams Arena.

Region eight's East Grand Forks made its third state tournament appearance and second in four years as the Green Wave, 21-2, faced Albany, 19-4, in the tourney's first game at 2 p.m.

The Green Wave has both speed and size with 6-7 Mark Syrstad being one of the tallest players in the tournament. "East Side" has six strong men to work with now that Kurt Knoff is able to see duty at either guard or forward. Senior guard Scott Gravseth is a fine floor general while sophomore guard Rip Thompson shows lots of poise. With Syrstad and All-State forward Don Johnson working inside, Larry Selk's Big Five quint will have plenty of muscle to work with.

Melrose, a repeater from last year's eight-team tournament, faces Two Harbors at 3:30 today in the tournament's second game. The Dutchmen have four starters back from last year's tourney and carry a 21-2 season record. Two Harbors, 21-2, is making its first tournament appearance since 1924 when the Agates won the state crown.

In class AA games tonight, Hopkins Eisenhower, 14-8, of the powerful Lake Conference takes on northern power Duluth Central, 20-1, at 7:30. Duluth boasts the tournament's best AA record and 6-9 All-State center Como Pontiliana is the tourney's tallest player.

Robbinsdale will send a small, quick team against the Brainerd Warriors in tonight's second game at 9 p.m. The tallest man on the Robbinsdale squad stands 6-2. The Warriors, champions of the tough region C tournament, are led by All-State center Larry Bunnell, 6-6, and forward Wally Larson, 6-4. The Robbins carry an 18-4 record while the Warriors are 18-3 for the year.

In class AA games Thursday afternoon, Mankato of region A will face Minneapolis Central at 2 p.m. while Alexander Ramsey of region II takes on the Polars of North St. Paul at 3:30.

Thursday night at 7:30 a tall Red Wing quint, 19-4, will take on Rosemount, also 19-4, while fifth ranked Renville plays always-tough Luverne at 9 p.m. Renville is 22-0 for the year while Luverne is 18-4.

The class A semi-finals will be played Friday at 2:00 and 3:30 while the AA semi's are set Friday night at 7:30 and 9 p.m. The class AA championship game will be Saturday at 3:30 with the A title match set for 9 p.m. Saturday.

There are eight All-State basketball players taking part in the new class A and AA state tournament and surprisingly six of the eight are from the class A, or small schools and only two are from the large schools.

Como Pontiliana, 6-9 giant from Duluth Central, and Larry Bunnell, 6-6 center from Brainerd, are the only All-State cagers on the class AA rosters.

All-State players on the small school teams include Bill Boelman, Luverne; John Theirn, Melrose; Dan Meyers, Red Wing; Doug Wertish, Renville; Don Johnson, East Grand Forks, and Scott McDonald, Two Harbors. McDonald is a repeater from last year's All-State team.

BWCA Litter Prevention

"The Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) of the Superior National Forest in northern Minnesota has been visibly deteriorating toward slum-like conditions since the early sixties. In 1966, the BWCA was subjected to 632,000 visitor-days of use by 100,000-plus individuals nearly fivefold the total area use in 1960! Huge quantities of cans, bottles and other potential trash, in the form of containers and wrappers for food, beverages, and other supplies, are taken into the area by visitors (largely canoeists).

Although the U.S. Forest Service has always requested that non-burnable trash be packed out, and in mid-decade undertook a vigorous five-year "pack-it-in pack-it-out" litter bag program, voluntary compliance has been poor. As a result, many thousands of man-days and of dollars must be invested by the Forest Service to clean up portages and campsites. Our own visits to the BWCA (one in 1961 and another in 1967) revealed a dramatic build-up in discarded trash by thoughtless area visitors and an inherent threat of eventual destruction of basic wilderness values there.

In consequence of all this, the Forest Service has finally decided—none too soon in our view—to impose a regulation, effective May 1, 1971, prohibiting non-burnable cans and bottles in the BWCA. According to one of Stu and Dee Mann's "Minnesota Outdoors" columns of last December (appears in newspapers throughout Minnesota) the new regulation is expected to reduce the annual deposit of refuse within the Northern Minnesota canoe wilderness by an estimated 360,000 pounds each year. A proportionate savings of some $90,000 spent annually for clean up will unlimately be diverted to more productive management programs. Details of the new regulations may be secured from Roy Heady, Acting Information Officer, Superior National Forest, Federal Building, Duluth, Minnesota 55802.

We hope this will do the trick, without vigorous enforcement, however, we'd take a pessimistic view. There are at least 65 major entrances to the BWCA, and enforcement will be difficult at best. We hope we're wrong and that canoeists will finally realize the wisdom of wholehearted cooperation, even at minor personal inconvenience to themselves. Otherwise, some such program as we recommended in the September, 1967, issue of the SFI Bulletin (No. 188: 5-6), in addition to extensive clean-up of existing trash, may be needed to bring the problem under adequate control, viz:

1. Establish a series of manned entry and exit check points through which all traffic must be required to flow.
2. Require a substantial deposit from all entrants (say $5.00 per day per person of authorized travel), refundable only upon offsetting deposit at a check-out point of an equivalent or predetermined quanity of refuse (otherwise, funds deposited on entry would be impounded to help defray cleanup costs); and
3. Restrict camping within the area to a system of designated campsite locations in order to make clean-up of trash and refuse economically feasible, applying impounded entry deposit fees to the purpose.

Dogs Again

Did you read where more than 20 deer were found dead in Jay Cooke State Park near Duluth? They were the victims of dog packs. The deep snow prevented the deer from running from the dogs who can walk on top of the snow crust. The officials said the dogs are domestic animals and not wild dog packs hunting for food. Will the bounty boys ask for the bounty on dogs?

Northwest Boat, Sports & Travel Show To Open

"The Great Outdoors," a lavishly produced spectacle with a cast of hundreds will open a 10-day engagement March 26 at the Minneapolis auditorium.

The big production, otherwise known as the Northwest Boat, Sports and Travel show, has been playing three dates for many years and on each occasion it's been a crowd pleaser.

The original one in this long, unbroken series came along about the time outdoor recreation was assuming a larger role in American life and through the years has grown steadily.

The pressures of modern living coupled with the shorter work week and the incredible mobility cars have been largely responsible for people's preoccupation with participation as well as spectator sports. Recreation facilities are everywhere. You can write your own ticket and if you are like most people in contemporary America, your involvement with outdoor sports will be on a family basis. But in either case the 10-day show in the auditorium will be a supermarket of recreational ideas.

More than $3 million worth of new boats, motors, fishing tackle, recreational vehicles and other sports equipment are displayed on four levels of the auditorium and convention hall.

The big magnet this year, as in the past, are the boats, approximately 300 of them in all sizes, colors and shapes. You can spend less than $100 or you can go as high as $20,000. The same is true in the camping section that has a good cross section of the more popular brands.

In another part of the building are the exhibits of the major tackle manufacturers and close by are the vacation and travel people who have come from all over the United States and Canada to help show goers with their vacation plans.

There's very little fluctuation in the attendance figures. The paid attendance figures during the last five years was over 150,000 persons per year and unlike most other events, the sport show thrives on inclement weather.

Through the years the Minneapolis show has built a solid reputation by combining what's new with a few time-tested features. The latter include such things as the catch-your-own trout pool and the comedy seal in the stage show. They are the peoples' favorites and the show officials couldn't drop them without an uproar from the show-goers.

Opening night for the big 10-day show that runs through April 4, is Friday, March 26. The doors will open at 6 p.m. with the stage show at 9:30 p.m. Daily hours after opening night will be: Monday through Saturday—1 p.m. 'til 11 p.m. with stage shows at 3:30 and 9:30 p.m.; Sunday—1 'til 8 p.m. with stage shows at 3:30 and 7 p.m.

Since beginning intercollegiate football, University of North Dakota has played on three campus fields, including the present Memorial Stadium, constructed in 1927.

Farm Education Helps Increase Farming Returns

Minnesotan farmers can reap more dollar rewards from continuing education than perhaps any other investment, according to University of Minnesota agricultural educators Gordon I. Swanson and Edgar Persons.

In a study of education programs for Minnesotan farmers by Persons, Swanson, Howard Kittleson and Gary Leske, farmers realized $4 return on each dollar they invested in the program.

For the rural community, a conservative estimate of $2 was returned for each community dollar invested in the program. When considering the total business activity stimulated by the continuing education program, $9 of business activity was stimulated by one dollar of community investment in the program, Swanson and Persons said.

And continuing education will probably become even more important for Minnesotan farmers in the future, they observed.

The new technologies and larger capital investments make proper farm management more vital than ever. Land and labor resources are limited, so larger and larger amounts of capital are being invested in land saving and labor saving technologies to maintain high crop production.

Adaptation of a particular set of packaged technology that has proved profitable for one farmer may result in minimum gains or losses by another farmer. This is where careful management of capital, land and labor pays off.

Farmers in the study went through three distinct phases of earnings as a result of the adult farm business management education.

The first phase provided increased profits for farmers without major reallocation of resources, they said. Obvious improvements such as rations for livestock, improved crop cultivation practices and chemical weed control made large initial contributions to farm income. In this phase the diminishing marginal return effect placed practical ceilings on farm earnings.

In the second phase, lasting three more years, there was a temporary loss from the peak returns of phase one. This loss resulted when the farmer gained enough knowledge to initiate major revisions in his total farm-business organization.

During a third phase of the study farmers began realizing increasing returns. Income increased sharply until by the tenth year, their earnings were about 2.4 times the labor earnings of the first year of the study.

Men May Enlist In Distinguished Units Of Army

U.S. Army is now accepting applications from men who wish to serve with some of its most distinguished units, according to army recruiting sergeant Ronald Anderson in Thief River Falls.

"Under a new program just announced," Anderson said, "men who qualify may select the 1st Infantry Division, 4th Infantry Division, 1st or 2nd Armored Divisions, 82nd Airborne Division, the 197th Infantry Brigade or the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment."

The 1st Infantry Division has returned from Vietnam and is at Fort Riley, Kan. The 4th Infantry Division has also returned and is based at Fort Carson, Colo. The 1st and 2nd Armored Divisions are based at Fort Hood, Texas.

The 82nd Airborne is based at Fort Bragg, N.D., while the 197th Infantry Brigade is at Fort Benning, Ga. The 3rd Armored Cavalry is based at Fort Lewis, Wash.

According to Sgt. Anderson, young men who wish to enlist for one of the units must meet the normal mental and physical standards for enlistment in the regular army. There are slightly higher physical standards for enlistment in the 82nd Airborne, which requires its members to complete airborne training before their assignment to the division.

For further information contact Anderson at 109 East 2nd in Thief River Falls. The phone number is 681-1154. Collect calls are accepted.

Safer Car Laws Objective Of Several States

Crashworthy front and rear ends on automobiles are receiving the attention of lawmakers in Minnesota and at least 16 other states this year, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund reported today.

A proposed Minnesota law will require that new cars sold in Minnesota on or after Jan 1, 1974, be capable of withstanding barrier crashes at 5 mph without damage, and as of Jan. 1, 1976, at 10 m.p.h.

Florida now has such a law and nine other states have introduced similar laws. Seven more states are also considering similar legislation.

However, the national highway traffic safety administration sets the deadline for tougher bumpers at Aug. 1, 1972, a deadline major automobile manufacturers say they are unable to meet. One manufacturer requests a Sept. 1, 1973 deadline, another wants a postponement of one year; and still another wants a two-year postponement.

"In our view," Hoaglund continued, "it seems almost unbelievable that car makers who put good, utility bumpers on cars 40 years ago now find such difficulty in doing so today, even in light of the many improvements in material and engineering.

"Another bill is being proposed in Minnesota that would require standard bumper heights and widths beginning Jan. 1, 1973. Such a law would certainly save our people thousands of dollars in minor crashes which cause extensive damage to grills because of differences in bumper heights.

"Think also of the tremendous saving in car insurance if we can reduce or eliminate these high repair and replacement costs," Hoogland added.

Great River Road Medallion Struck

In recognition of the Great River Road, destined to be one of America's most scenic parkways running along both sides of the Mississippi River, a special commemorative medallion has been struck by the Mississippi river parkway commission.

The dollar-sized silver medallion has been issued in .999 fine silver. Each medallion is serially numbered with a limited issue of 15,000.

Proceeds from the sales of the medallions will be used to acquaint people with the historic and scenic areas in the 10 states and two Canadian provinces which make up the parkway.

The parkway commission is a not-for-profit foundation designated officially by the U.S. government. It was established to aid in promoting the Great River road and encouraging people from neighboring states to travel along the beautiful Mississippi river parkway.

The commission also helps to identify the many historic shrines and sites that dot the road along the river from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

Further information on the medallion, which is expected to be a collectors item, may be obtained by writing to the Great River road headquarters in Cassville, Wis. 53806.

A free travel guide of the Great River road may also be obtained by writing to the headquarters.

USDA Proposes Uniformity In Marketing Order

U.S. Department of Agriculture has recommended amanding all 62 federal milk marketing orders to provide uniform terminology for certain provisions.

USDA's consumer and marketing service (C&MS) officials said the recommendations are based on the record of a public hearing held in Washington, D.C., on Sept. 30, 1970.

As proposed, a new general order would be issued containing administrative provisions that apply to all of the individual milk orders. The present individual orders would be amended to conform to the new general order.

C&MS officials said the provisions concerned are those having the same purpose in every order. In many instances the wording is different but the application of the provisions is identical. They cover certain definitions, USDA instructions dealing with administrative directives to the market administrator, and the regulated handler's responsibility for maintaining and making available records of his operations.

The remaining provisions covering different marketing situations in the various order areas would still be retained as separate provisions in each of the orders, and would continue to differ from order to order.

C&MS officials said the adoption of the proposed uniform terms applicable to all of the orders would benefit the entire dairy industry by eliminating confusion over language differences from one order to another. And it would eliminate the repetition of such provisions in each individual order.

The federal milk marketing orders set minimum prices which milk handlers or dealers must pay farmers from whom they buy milk to be distributed in marketing areas covered by the orders. Retail prices are not regulated by the orders, however.

This recommended decision will appear in the "Federal Register" March 2, and exception or comments may be filed up to March 22. Six copies should be submitted to the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250, where they may be publicly inspected.

Copies of this decision may be obtained from the market administrators of the various orders, or from the Dairy Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

The last major island group in the Pacific is now linked by air with the rest of the world, according to the authoritative Aviation Daily. The Marquesas Islands, 470 miles northeast of Tahiti, which total some 490 square miles of land, were populated by 60,000 people 150 years ago. Today's population is about 4,000.

There are days when Jim feels "all geared up." Like many men today, he has the sense of being just a cog in a wheel—no real identity. This is wrong!

It takes a great many Jims, all kinds, to keep the wheels turning. But each is important, and each is an individual. God intended men to have not only a sense of identity, but a basic self-esteem.

Maybe you've been underestimating yourself! Maybe you've been feeling that you are just one of the crowd! If so, during this Lenten season you'd better take a new look at both the world and yourself.

For a new perspective, maybe you'd better start going to church.

UM Vet Medicine Head Predicts Disease Control

Great advances in animal disease research will be made by 1980, says Dr. Dale K. Sorensen, professor and head of the department of veterinary medicine at the University of Minnesota.

His remarks appeared in a recent issue of "Minnesota Science," a University of Minnesota publication.

"In the 70's and by 1980, I predict that veterinary medical research will take on new dimensions and will be more carefully planned and directed. The trend will be toward developing and evaluating new approaches to livestock disease control. Its objectives will be clearly focused on making a major contribution to society by helping to alleviate current and impending food shortages. This will be accomplished by investigating and controlling the major diseases of food producing animals," he said.

To accomplish this, emphasis will be placed on disease control and preventive veterinary medicine. There is a further need for veterinary economics research and a necessity to document the real costs of animal diseases, look closer at disease control program costs and to compare costs of alternative approaches to disease control, Dr Sorensen added.

"Time will come when research on food animal diseases will be dictated only on the basis of economic facts. Demands for the limited resources of this country are becoming increasingly greater and society will demand more careful accounting of all expenditures of funds.

"The cost of research has increased dramatically in the past few years, faster than just the average inflationary increases. Priorities will have to be set on research with the greatest utility to mankind," he said.

"We need to get the many specialists together and discuss mutual problems affecting livestock production. Disease problems cannot be separated from nutrition or management problems.

"New approaches to livestock disease control will emerge. There will be new programs embracing all aspects of epidemiology and livestock production. Also, new disease problems will emerge as a result of changing methods of production. Pollution associated with animal wastes has already emerged as a problem and will have to be dealt with. Solving this problem may necessitate change in production practices, which in turn may create new disease problems," Dr. Sorensen said.

Proper Handling Extends Life Of Home Blenders

Are you overworking your blender?

This time and energy-saving appliance will last a long time if it is handled properly. Too often, however, it is used for heavy chores for which it was never designed, says Mrs Wanda Olson, extension specialist in household equipment at the University of Minnesota.

If you have a blender that uses only 200-300 watts, don't expect it to do more than mix sauces, salad dressing and juices, she says.

If you have an all-purpose blender—one that uses 600 watts or more—it's still important to follow some rules, Mrs. Olson points out. Process only small amounts of heavy mixtures at one time—probably not more than half a cup.

In case you wish to liquefy some foods and the mixture is very heavy, start with a low speed and move up to the high speed. Forcing the motor to work at high speeds immediately when processing heavy mixtures can result in a burned-out motor.

COLOR-SCHEMING COTTONS—Coordinated cotton prints in shades of rich chocolate, licorice and white set the theme for this distinguished setting. Cotton in a tiny black and brown leaf pattern covers the lower part of the dark wall. The same print with an overlay of white blossoms re-appears on the sofa and in the tie-back curtains. Completing the decorative window treatment is a white shade banded in black and brown textured braid. The only color accent: sofa pillows in bitter green.

"The objective of all dedicated employees should be to thoroughly analyze all situations, anticipate all problems prior to their occurrence, have answers for these problems, and move swiftly to solve these problems when we are called upon... However, when you are up to your belt in alligators, it is difficult to remind yourself that your initial objective was to drain the swamp." —Anonymous

Borrowing From Youth

Concerned Taxpayers of Minnesota—only one of several taxpayer groups organized at least in name—are borrowing from youth in their approach to dealing with what they consider to be an "unjust" tax situation. They are going to march on the state Capitol in "a show of force", inviting state officials to meet with them and listen to their threats and insults.

A statement from Joan Van Poperin, chairman of the organization, says: "If the April 3rd rally has no effect, we shall withhold our real estate taxes, and we intend to continue to attack this from the root as well as the flowers, the cause as well as the effect."

Later the statement continues: "We protest the high real estate taxes because they are discriminatory as they take more from one than another. Many areas have had only land re-evaluated, many properties built before the second World War were re-evaluated, and many industrial sites as well as homes have not been re-evaluated at all."

Well, go ahead and march on the Capitol, you Concerned Taxpayers of Minnesota. Stand on the Capitol steps with your signs and banners and throw your little temper tantrum. Give the legislators the benefit of your omnipotent wisdom in the affairs of state. Follow the path trod by the emotionally immature who find it easier to march and protest than to work and find solutions. Have your Saturday morning fling.

And when you are done behaving like not-quite-grown-up children, go home and do some deep thinking. When you are ready to march again, march up to your legislator on an individual basis and demand a cut in services that affect you. You might as well face it: There will be no drop in taxes until there is a cut in spending for government programs. You can't have expensive services and low taxes. It can't be done.

Who Needs Wildlife?

People once used wildlife as weather forecasters, and some people still believe that animals can foretell the weather. When the bear sought his den early, an early winter was at hand. When the deer developed a heavy coat of hair the winter would be harsh. When birds congregated for migration a change of season was at hand.

Now wildlife is once again a prophet, but the message it brings is not a welcome one for man. Wildlife disappears as man becomes more numerous, destroying the habitat, polluting the streams and rivers and lakes, disturbing the food chain creating stress and starvation. Wildlife has been looked upon as something incidental, but when it disappears, man is walking a narrow path in the same direction.

When conditions exist that are beneficial to wildlife, man will benefit from those conditions. Clean water, clean air, green plants, insect life, a balance of rodents, reptiles, amphibians, predatory animals and birds—all are important to quality of life for wild creatures and humans alike. Man alters this delicate balance through carelessness or neglect and the scales tip.

We admit to being selfish about some wildlife, for we frankly enjoy watching it over a shotgun barrel. And if it wasn't for the selfish motives of sportsmen, much wildlife, including the species hunted, would have a far smaller population than it has today. Concern of sportsmen has provided the money to retain, improve or recreate habitat which has value to many forms of wildlife.

Wildlife week this week gives an opportunity for sportsmen and non-sportsmen alike to renew an interest in the importance of wildlife. Who needs it? We all do.

Congratulations!

Everyone we talked to who attended the Lincoln high school musical "Oklahoma!" gave the show personal rave reviews. Words like "tremendous", "terrific", "excellent", "great" and "marvelous" were used to describe the acting, dancing, costuming, sets and music.

Smash musicals have become a tradition at Lincoln in the relatively few years that they have been held. Under the initial direction of Bryant Ulseth and more recently of David Morken, the programs have provided a great evening of entertainment for all who attend. Each year brings wonder that the last year's production can be matched, but new student stars rise and the results are spectacular.

So hats off to Dave Morken, orchestra director Jim Solsten, the students and faculty advisors who presented "Oklahoma!" to filled houses Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings. Congratulations!

Farmers And Clean Air

The following editorial is from the Kansas City, Mo., Times:

Many persons caught up in the current fervor over the condition of the earth's environment have been pointing to the U.S. farmer as one of the major polluters.

In some cases, like that of the livestock feeder whose feed lot runoff contributes to stream pollution, that criticism is justified. But a University of Missouri scientist now suggests the time has come for farmers to mount a counter-offensive.

Dr. George Smith, director of the Water Resources Research center at M.U., has given farmers some ammunition so they can present the positive effects of their work. As a case in point he mentioned chemical fertilizers, which he noted, are used by growing plants to produce more clean air for everyone.

There are only two sources of oxygen: On land it is produced by the transpiration of the leaves of green plants. At sea, by far the greater souce, it is created by green algae. There are many factors working to upset the delicate balance, including the burning of fossil fuels, urban and highway construction. Every acre that goes under non-vegetative cover shifts the balance a little.

Now Dr. Smith credits the corn farmer with helping to maintain the carbon-dioxide — photo-synthesis cycle. As a preface he observed that the average adult breathes two pounds of oxygen a day.

The Missouri scientist estimates that one acre of 100-bushel corn produces a year's supply of oxygen for a dozen persons. Upping that yield one-third by the use of nitrate fertilizer would release enough oxygen for 18 persons a year. "Can any other industry make such claims for cleaning the environment?" Dr. Smith asked.

Probably not, but nitrates themselves can pollute by field runoff after a heavy rain. So the farmer—even as he inhales deeply of the sweet clean air—has to be implementing other sound conservation practices.

Old Story Revived

One of our readers supplied us with the following story which is so old that its resurrection at this time almost makes it new again:

My Dear Sirs;

In reply to your request to send a check, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it almost impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to Federal Laws, State Laws, County Laws, City Laws, Corporation Laws, Liquor Laws, Mother-in-laws, Sister-in-laws, brother-in-laws and outlaws.

Through these laws I am compelled to pay business tax, amusement tax, head tax, school tax, gas tax, light tax, sales tax, liquor tax, carpet tax, income tax, food tax, furniture tax, and excise tax. Even my brains are taxed. I am required to get a business license, car license, hunting license, fishing license, truck license, not to mention a marriage and a dog license.

I am also required to contribute to every society and organization which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life; to woman's relief, the unemployment relief and the gold diggers' relief. Also to every hospital and charitable institution in the city, including the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the Purple Cross and the double cross.

For my own safety, I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burglar insurance, accident insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old age insurance, and also fire insurance.

My business is so governed that it is no easy matter for me to find out who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, dejected, examined, reexamined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded, and compelled until I provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need of the human race.

Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am almost ruined.

I can tell you honestly that except for the miracle that happened, I could not enclose this check. The wolf that comes to my door now-a-days, just had pups in my kitchen. I sold them and here is the money.

Yours faithfully,

Now there's a new, small Pontiac with a small-car price for small-car lovers.

Wouldn't you know it would be fun to drive, stingy on gas, quick to service and built to last.

Of course you would. We wouldn't build a small car unless we figured it would give you more of what you want a small car for.

Take that low price. Ventura II is a small car so it has a low small-car price. But it's what you get for that small price that makes Ventura II worth a close look.

Ventura II is fun to drive. It should be. It's from the Wide-Track people. Which means you get a smooth, comfortable Wide-Track ride.

The handling's quick. There's a nifty 111-inch wheelbase for easy parking. And both the 250-cu-in six and available 307-cu-in V-8 respond beautifully in city traffic or on the expressway.

Ventura II is stingy with your gas money. Both the standard six-cylinder engine and the V-8 you can order run beautifully on regular gas or the new low-lead and no-lead fuels. The carburetor on the six is an economical one-barrel and the transmission for both six and V-8 is a practical 3-speed manual.

Ventura II is quick to service. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll like fiddling around with the new Ventura II.

New twist-lock lamp sockets let you make changes in seconds.

The engine is uncomplicated and there is plenty of engine compartment space, especially with the six.

If you ever need to have somebody else work on your car—well, you'll like Ventura II, too. Both the standard six and available V-8 are tough, time-tested designs. Same goes for transmissions. The standard 3-speed manual and the available 2-speed automatic, Turbo Hydra-matic or floor-mounted 3-speed are all rugged, dependable units.

Ventura II is built to last. There's nothing lightweight about this car. It's welded—not bolted—at hundreds of strategic points to help keep it tight and quiet.

The body is heavy gauge steel. And it has double paneling in the deck lid, hood and doors. You could probably sum it up best with three little words. Body by Fisher.

So come on. If you're a small-car lover, stop by your Pontiac dealer's today. Tell him you want to see the new Ventura II. It's the small car that gives you more of what you want a small car for.

Rock Paintings Interesting Part Of Border Lakes

TRAFFIC STOPPER—A sure sign of spring: the sleeveless shirt dress that's easy to wear and easy to care for. Brightly printed in colorful traffic signs on navy and white checks, it's in Lowenstein Fabrics' permanent press cotton poplin. By Cinderella.

Looking for a different sort of adventure? Take a few days off, rent a canoe and hunt for pictographs in the Superior National Forest border lakes.

Pictographs are crude, colorful drawings made by the Chippewas on the cliffs of granite, gneiss and greenstone in the area. They are painted with red ochre a few feet above the water and are estimated to be at least 500-600 years old.

For example, the cliffs of Crooked Lake contain many figures such as a moose and the sinister serpent panther. Some appear rather eccentric such as the one of a moose with a pipe.

The pictures are not always obvious, however, and an alert watch is often necessary. In many areas, the rock cliffs themselves reflect many brilliant colors and the less conspicuous pictographs may be overlooked.

On Darky Lake is a serpent with ugly spines and horned head with a less ornate critter on his right. Among others nearby is a mysterious cow moose with a hole where her heart should be, and great drops of blood descending from her throat. She is followed by a young calf and numerical notations surround both figures.

How have these crude paintings survived the ages, through severe border country winters, spring and summer rains, fall hail and sleet, and even lichen growth?

The answer is that the Indians used a pigment which is essentially an iron oxide. It has become so bonded with the rock that even vigorous scraping with a steel blade scarcely removes it.

If you decide to go pictograph hunting, get the latest map of Superior National Forest by writing either to the U. S. Forestry office in Duluth or to the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

Pictographs are sometimes easy to spot, sometimes so difficult that they are visible from only a few feet away. Searching for them may give you that unique and absorbing vacation adventure you've been looking for.

Deaths Due To Accidents Show Decline In 1970

National Safety council reports that approximately 113,000 Americans died as a result of accidents in 1970, a decrease of two per cent from 1969.

Disabling injuries totaled approximately 10,800,000 including 400,000 that resulted in some form of permanent impairment. The cost of accidents in 1970 was approximately $28 billion.

Traffic fatalities in 1970 numbered 1,100 fewer than in 1969, according to the Council. The 55,300 total for 1970 represents a two per cent reduction from the 1969 toll of 56,400. In addition, the mileage death rate per 100 million vehicle miles traveled dropped from 5.3 in 1969 to 5.0 in 1970—the lowest rate in history.

This reduction occurred despite the fact that there were three million more licensed drivers and four million more motor vehicles on the road in 1970 than in 1969.

Deaths from public accidents are also on the decline. Public deaths decreased five per cent from 21,000 in 1969 to 20,000 in 1970. The decrease of 1,000 deaths can be attributed to fewer fire and burn fatalities, as well as fewer deaths due to falls and aviation accidents. This was the first fatality-free year in commercial air transportation. No passengers or crew members died on scheduled domestic air transport flights.

Preliminary figures indicate that snowmobile fatalities increased in 1970, however.

The 1970 death total for work accidents was unchanged from the 14,200 reported by the council in 1969. Disabling injuries totaled 2,200,000. The cost of work accidents in 1970 was $9 billion. In addition to the 14,200 persons killed at work, 42,200 died in off-the-job accidents.

Since the council was organized in 1912, the greatest progress in accident prevention has been among children under 15 years of age. All other age groups also showed improvement except for the 15 to 24 age group, which had a seven per cent increase in accidental deaths.

LITTLE OAK . .

Kay Marquis, Audrey Elg and Renae Fjeld spent Tuesday night with Vicky at the Clarence Hanson home.

Visitors and callers at the Lewie Bjerklie home during the week were Mrs. Gerald Sjulestad, Sheryl and David, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Zavoral, Mr. and Mrs. R. Robinson, Roy Roman, Orben Good, Melvin Rindahl, Farrest Mostrom, Mr. and Mrs. Jorgen Oftelie and Albert and Merle Mostrom.

Food Service Industry Now Third Largest

In the decade ahead, the kitchen and dining room may be the least often used rooms in the home. The home may no longer be the focal point for meals. In fact, Mom, Dad and the kids will be eating many of their meals out.

The food processor and the food service industry will, to a large extent, control the nutritional adequacy of much of the food Americans eat in the 70's, in the opinion of Robert Olson, instructor and extension specialist in food service management at the University of Minnesota.

Food service is now the third largest industry in the nation.

Forty per cent of all food consumed is eaten away from home—evidence of the dramatic growth of the industry during the past decade. By 1980, according to present predictions, as much as 60 per cent of the food consumed could be eaten outside of the home, says Olson.

The food service industry includes all of the away-from-home eating in both a for-profit and a not-for-profit setting. Included in the food service industry, therefore, are restaurants, cafeterias, hotels, motels, hospitals, nursing homes, schools, colleges and universities, airlines, railroads, clubs, boats, resorts, churches, campus, recreation centers, catering services and vending operations.

More than 160 million customer transactions take place every day in the food service industry at the present time. The retail value of food served annually is currently 36 billion dollars. It is expected to grow to 75 billion dollars by 1980.

Of the top 400 food service businesses in the United States, six are head-quartered or located in Minnesota: Dairy Queen International, Burger King (subsidiary of Pillsbury Co.), Northwest Airlines, Minnesota department of corrections and welfare, University of Minnesota and the Radisson management. Many other corporations of national and international stature in the food service field are headquartered in Minnesota.

In addition, Minnesota has these facilities serving food: Approximately 11,000 restaurants, 1,000 hotels, 1,000 motels, more than 3,000 resorts, 600 campgrounds, 1,600 schools serving 480,000 meals daily, approximately 212 hospitals, 348 nursing homes and 167 boarding care homes.

Disabled Worker May Qualify For Social Security

A seriously disabled person should not delay in applying for disability benefits under social security, according to Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security.

To qualify, the disabled worker must be under age 65 and so disabled that he expects to be unable to work for at least a year.

Disability benefits under social security are payable after a person has been disabled for six full calendar months. An early application is advantageous even though benefits are not payable at once. With an early contact the Social Security Administration can get the work done on the application so that the disabled person will get his first check on time.

To start the application, the disabled person, or a relative on his behalf, is encouraged to telephone his social security office. Those serviced by the Grand Forks district office may call 772-5317. Anyone on the Thief River Falls exchange may call toll free by dialing the operator and asking for Zenith 8450.

An applicant should have available a birth or baptismal certificate. A wage earner should also have his 1970 withholding statement. The self-employed individual will need an extra copy of his 1970 federal income tax return.

If there are children, benefits are also payable to dependents.

Toulouse Operates Last Horse-Drawn Dray Line

OKLEE DRAY LINE is still in operation after more than a half century of service, and horses are still providing the major horsepower for local jobs. Tom Toulouse hitches up his team of Belgians to several different types of equipment to provide needed services in all seasons of the year. His company is believed to be the last horse-drawn dray line in the state, and that distinction has gained him recent national publicity.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Tom Toulouse of Oklee has become a bit of a celebrity in his home town, but not by doing anything he hasn't done for 56 years. As operator of the Oklee Dray Line since Nov. 1, 1920, he has been driving horses and hauling for hire for more than half a century.

It was determined recently that Tom's business is the last horse-drawn dray line in Minnesota—and probably one of the last in the country—and that fact attracted considerable attention. An article first appeared in the "Midland Cooperator" published by Midland Cooperatives, and this was followed by a television segment which was given national network exposure.

The Midland Cooperator story resulted in Tom receiving a letter from J. E. Mannahan of Austin. Now 80 years old, Monnahan is a first cousin of Tom's father and neither knew of the other's existence until the article appeared. The television segment has brought mail from several parts of the country, including the West Coast. Filming was done by a camera crew which came to Oklee from Minneapolis by helicopter.

All the current attention has little effect on the Oklee Dray Line, however, as business goes on as usual for Toulouse, his assistant Omer Boucher, and his aging team of Belgian horses. "Nellie", a sorrel, is now 17 years old and "Daisy", a roan and half-sister to "Nellie", is 14. Together they weigh about 3,500 pounds, with "Daisy" being the smaller of the two.

Toulouse has operated the dray line since Nov. 1, 1920, and estimates he has had 20 to 25 horses in his teams during that time. Some he had for only a short time as they proved unsuitable for work in town, being too nervous or ill-tempered for the tasks required. Tom has owned "Nellie" for 16 years and bought "Daisy" from a farmer eight years ago.

Tom well remembers his first job on the dray line. He unloaded the furniture of Rev. J. K. Lerohl when it came to Oklee by train from Starbuck, Man., Can., hauled it to the Lerohl home and unloaded it there. Toulouse says that Rev. Lerohl, who served the Zion Lutheran church at Oklee, was "one of the finest men who ever lived in this town".

Landowners To Present Views At Dam Hearing

Interests of property owners affected by the Huot dam project will be represented by a committee of landowners chosen March 21 at a meeting in Gentilly to study the proposals of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers prior to the mid-study public meeting March 31, at Red Lake Falls.

Committee members include R. J. Brule, Roger Thibert, Paul Hanson, Paul Heng, Veen Plante, Irving Beyer and Robert Larson.

It was noted that the project effect on the local tax structure would involve the loss of lands as a source of local tax revenues to the extent of 2,400 acres within Polk County and 5,600 acres in Red Lake county, according to the corps of engineers.

Estimates made by the landowners put the figure in Red Lake County at 9,100 acres, with a tax loss of about $23,064, according to Willard Brunelle, who led most of the discussion at the meeting. These figures probably will be presented to the corps of engineers March 31 for clarification.

The total drainage area, according to the information released in the preliminary data sheet of the corps lists the total drainage area of the dam at 5,140 square miles. The storage for winter recreation, conservation, and silt retention at an elevation of 904 feet is 24,000 acre feet. At the 910 foot elevation the storage acre feet is 35,000.

The height of the proposed dam would be 100 feet at the 970 foot elevation, and the dam axis 8,500 feet, about one and one-half miles. Length of the wing walls was listed at 52,000 feet, or ten miles (five miles on each side of the dam).

Parent-Teacher Conferences Set At Goodridge

On Monday, April 5, all parents from the Grygla and Goodridge areas who have children in the secondary school and whose last names begin with the letters "A" through "J" are invited to visit the school for parent teacher conferences.

On Tuesday, April 6, parents whose names begin with the last half of the alphabet are invited to attend. Conference hours on both days will be from 1 to 4 p.m.

Parents should stop at the information desk in the lobby.

A bus will run from Grygla on Monday, leaving at 12:15 and returning approximately 4 p.m.

THIS PROCEDURE was repeated 89 times Thursday at the blood typing clinic sponsored in Thief River Falls by the Business and Professional Women's club. Blood samples were drawn from prospective donors for analysis by the Northern Blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital. The new members will help swell the ranks of donors who donate a pint of blood on call—usually about every two years—in exchange for all blood they or their immediate families may need, almost anywhere in the United States. There is no synthetic substitute for blood.

Erdahl To Address Co. GOP Convention

Pennington county's annual GOP convention will be held in the Thief River Falls American Legion club at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Speaker at the convention will be Arlen I. Erdahl, Minnesota Secretary of State. There will be an election of county officers, adoption of resolutions and presentation of the annual financial report on the agenda.

Voting will be restricted to substantially the same delegates as those who attended the county GOP caucus in 1970. Others interested will be allowed to visit and participate in discussion and debate, but without voting privileges.

Tickets are two dollars and will be available at the door.

Current Pennington county GOP officers are Dr. David Brown, Goodridge, chairman; Jan Matusalem, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Ebba Sagmoen and Mrs. Alma Ellofson, county co-chairwomen.

The speaker at the convention, state secretary Erdahl, was elected to his present office in 1970 in his first bid for statewide office. A native of Blue Earth, he previously represented Faribault county in the state legislature for eight years.

Erdahl, 39, was the youngest committee chairman in the House of Representatives during the 1969 session, serving as chairman of the labor relations committee. He also served on the education, conservation, agriculture, higher education, municipal affairs, county and township governments, reapportionment and cooperatives and marketing committees.

A farmer before his election as secretary of state, Erdahl holds a master's degree in public administration from Harvard and received his bachelor's degree from St. Olaf college, Northfield.

Active in state Republican activities, Erdahl served in 1970 as chairman of the GOP task force on election law revision and as vice chairman of the legislative search committee. He has also served as co-chairman of the Minnesota Legislators for Nixon, state chairman of Occupational and Nationality Groups for Nixon-Agnew, township GOP chairman and delegate to county, district and state conventions.

As secretary of state, Erdahl presently serves as a member of the state executive council, investment board, publication board and state employees benefit board.

The secretary of state as a constitutional officer serves in many roles. He calls the House of Representatives to order when the legislature convenes, is the official custodian of legislative records, and approves articles of incorporation.

He is also the chief election officer in Minnesota and custodian of the original U. S. government survey notes of Minnesota and the township plats drawn from these surveys.

Erdahl is married to the former Ellen Syrdal, and they have five children.

Silas Hanson

Hanson Elected As Director Of Midland Co-op

Silas Hanson, Thief River Falls farmer and businessman, was elected to the board of directors of Midland Cooperatives, Inc., Minneapolis, during closing sessions of the regional cooperative's 45th annual meeting at the Hotel Leamington in Minneapolis.

He succeeds Andrew Strandquist, Warren, who retired from the Midland board this year.

Midland Cooperatives, Inc., is a federated type wholesale, manufacturing and retail cooperative enterprise. It is owned by more than 650 retail consumer goods and farm supply cooperatives in Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin. Its annual sales in 1970 exceeded $110 million and it ranked 659th in the 1970 "Fortune" magazine survey of the top 1,000 U.S. industries.

Cooperatives in each of 15 districts in the six-state area nominate a director.

Soo Has Hearing On Centralizing Station Service

Approximately 60 people attended a hearing on a petition by the Soo Line railroad to centralize agency service on segments of its lines in Minnesota held Thursday in the meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

The railroad proposes to set up a system of traveling agents to serve stations from Bejou to Leonard by a traveling agent headquartered in Oklee. An agent based in Oslo would serve as agent between Rosewood and Oslo.

The line between Newfolden and Orleans would be handled by an agent in Thief River Falls, and the line from Palisade to Pinewood would be administered by an agent in Federal Dam.

Oklee business and community interests expressed earlier opposition to the proposal, saying that the number of loaded freight cars sent out of Oklee each year requires a full time agent on duty.

The railroad wants the Minnesota public service commission to give it the authority to centralize railroad freight service at 76 agency and 26 prepaid stations in Minnesota.

Roll executives testifying at the meeting said that cash generated by economies of the central agency plan will be used to buy additional rolling stock and in improving service to shippers. They also claimed the central agency plan will improve service to shippers in itself, because traveling agents will have access to more information than at present.

Central agency service has been in effect in areas of Wisconsin since 1964 and in North Dakota for the past several years. North Dakota elevator owners and managers who testified at the meeting reported that, in their experience, quality of service under the new agency plan had not been impaired, and they expressed satisfaction with the new system.

178 At Pre-School Round-Up

LITTLE GIRLS are supposed to look their prettiest for their first encounter with school, and helping them to look that way is part of the fun of being "Mom". Four-year-old September Dawn Hemmestvedt, who answers more readily to "Temmy", gets a last bit of combing from her mother before taking her turn in the pre-school round-up Saturday.

Pre-school round-up for youngsters who will be attending kindergarten in Thief River Falls next fall attracted 178 children on Saturday at Washington elementary school. Mrs. Margaret Raco and Mrs. Bennis Kezar were co-chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Herb Swenson. Last year 213 were registered.

Each child was given an appointment slip to the clinic of his or her choice for a physical examination in April, May or the first half of June. An appointment slip was also given each child for an examination by one of the local optometrists during May or June.

A pink dental card was issued to each child, and it was suggested that the child's teeth be examined by a dentist during the summer months. After examination the dentist will sign the card and this should be brought to school when the child enters next fall.

Chairmen representing the various schools for the round-up were Mrs. Clayton Thompson, Washington; Mrs. Roger Nyland, Northrop; Mrs. Bill Penning, Knox; Mrs. Richard Kotschevar, Mark Twain; Mrs. H. R. Achenbach, St. Bernard's; and Mrs. Clarence Semanko, St. Hilaire.

Nurses working during the event were Mrs. Dale Folger, Mrs. Dean Syverson, Mrs. Lillian Ranum, Mrs. Harvey Beterling, Mrs. Donald Barron, Mrs. Avis Goddard, Mrs. Elaine Hagen, Mrs. Salde Carlson, Mrs. Gerald Wigness, Mrs. Lee Wiley and Mrs. Vern Hartley.

Others assisting in various ways were Mrs. Roger Nyland, Mrs. Clarence Semanko, Mrs. Don Johnson, Mrs. Herb Swenson, Miss Linda Hillleren, Mrs. Paul Biegner, Mrs. Al Finney, Mrs. Marlinn Johnson, Mrs. Lyle

Recording of weight and height is part of the pre-school round-up held Saturday at Washington elementary school for youngsters who will be entering kindergarten in the fall. More photos from the round-up will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Several Groups Visit Residents At Oakland Park

Several groups and individuals have visited residents at Oakland Park Nursing home recently.

On Friday, March 19, the Sarah circle of Trinity Lutheran church, with Mrs. Edwin Quam, chairman, visited at the home and presented a devotional program. Mrs. K. A. Lindberg was in charge of the devotions. She also led the residents in group singing. Emma Christianson, a resident at the home, presided at the organ. The group served lunch to all the residents at the home.

On Tuesday, March 23, the Thief River Falls Tappers, a group of tap dancers organized last August with Mrs. Jean Cooke as director, visited the home and performed for the residents. The group consists of girls between the ages of 12-14 years. Dancing on Tuesday were Renae and Kristi Gerardy, Marlene Johnson, Karen Imgrund, Bernedette Froehle, Pam Engelstad, Mary Engelstad, Charleen LaValley, Cindy Kjensrud and Renee Bedard.

Wednesday afternoon the regular Bible study was presented by Mrs. Martin Mosbeck of St. Hilaire. Mrs. Mosbeck has been in charge of this Bible study session every week for a number of years.

Later that same afternoon, a colored film and slides of daily vacation Bible schools in Northern Minnesota were shown by Kermit Skoglund of Thief River Falls. Skoglund is district director of the Union Sunday School Mission.

Nustvold Joins Alcohol And Drug Problems Staff

Richard A. Nustvold of rural Thief River Falls has joined the staff of the Northwest Council on Alcohol and Drug problems, Crookston, as an alcoholism counselor trainee.

Nustvold, 29, attended South high school in Minneapolis and formerly owned RAN Trucking company of Thief River Falls. He married the former Mary Ann Olson of Minneapolis and the couple has three children.

The Northwest Council on Alcohol and Drug problems is an organization dedicated to providing rehabilitative services to alcoholics and problem drinkers in northwestern Minnesota. The council presently operates an alcoholic treatment center in Crookston and is currently developing plans to expand the program to provide additional services to the area.

The Sunnyrest facility, a 36-bed, non medical center, seeks to restore individuals to adequate levels of social adjustment through social, spiritual, educational, and family counseling. As an alcoholism counselor trainee, Nustvold will work with those individuals with alcohol and drug problems in this area.

Last year 248 American companies, representing 17 industries, spent $256,000,000 for pollution control, an increase of 26 percent over the previous year. By 1972 the chemical industry alone will spend $600,000,000 for pollution control. Since 1951 the steel industry has spent a total of $1,223,600,000 in pollution control techniques and research and development in that area.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Kitchen Karnival features from the kitchen of Mrs. Bob Skoglund of Holt

Recently I read an article written by a woman who was bored by the view from her window above the kitchen sink. To remedy the situation, she covered the window with a large scenic picture. For variation, she glued another scene on the window shade which she lowered at night.

Cover my kitchen window with a picture? Never! I'd miss seeing the fat squirrels playing in the big trees in our neighbor's yard. Several times a day they follow the same path to our bird feeder in search of something to eat. How they chatter if there is nothing left but bird seed. So often they tuck some pieces of food under the snow but I've never seen them dig for any of their hoarded morsels.

Also missed would be the birds, especially the pair of blue jays that are frequent callers at the bird feeder. How dreary it would be not to see the sun shining on the snow or frost covered trees, the planes circling overhead, the elementary kids going to school and the group of boys jogging, training for some athletic event. During the summer months I'd miss the humming birds darting among the Virginia bluebells, the robins splashing in the bird bath or the little kids across the way skipping on the sidewalk.

It is also from this window that I see the twigs that need picking up, the grass that needs mowing, the flowers that need trimming and the walks that need shoveling. Covering the window for those reasons would be like sticking my head in the sand.

What do you see as you look out your window? EMS

Often we hear the complaint that most recipes for breads and rolls are too large for the average size family. Such is not the case with today's recipe which uses only one cup of milk, plus the liquid used to dissolve the yeast. We are grateful to Mrs. Bob Skoglund of Holt for supplying today's recipe.

Crescent Rolls

- 5 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup margerine
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cakes or packages of yeast

Method: Scald milk, add margerine and sugar. Cool. Add beaten eggs and vanilla to the cooled mixture. Dissolve yeast in a little water (about ¼ cup, to which 1 teaspoon of sugar has been added) and add to the above mixture. Measure three cups flour into a large bowl. Add salt and the liquid mixture. Beat well. Gradually add remaining flour or until dough isn't sticky. Grease dough, cover and let rise until double in size. Knead down, let rest for a few minutes and form into rolls. When double in size, bake in a 370-400 degree oven until golden brown.

Mrs. Skoglund stated that this dough can also be used for making cinnamon rolls or raised doughnuts. While the rolls are slightly warm, she frosts them with a powdered sugar icing.

The Skoglunds live in the village of Holt with their three children, Randy, Robin, 8, and Ryan, 3. Randy graduated from high school last year and is employed with his father in building construction.

Mrs. Skoglund said that she is constantly searching for something new for lunch buckets as she packs lunches every day for her husband and son. She does a great deal of baking, enjoys gardening and during her spare time, likes to crochet.

The Skoglunds are members of the Nazareth Lutheran church at Holt.

Sometimes, happiness is nothing at all—so long as it turns up the corners of your mouth and makes you grin.

Mrs. Humphrey To Chair Honey Sunday Program

Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey has again been named honorary chairwoman of Minnesota Honey Sunday, a program to aid the mentally retarded, sponsored by the Minnesota Jaycees.

Mrs. Humphrey was honorary chairman for Minnesota Honey Sunday last year during the program's charter year. The success of the program (over $35,000 raised for the retarded) speaks well of the merits of the program. Minnesota Honey Sunday, 1971, will be April 25, with a goal of $100,000 for the mentally retarded of Minnesota.

Mrs. Humphrey has worked untiringly to aid the retarded, giving much of her time, talent and energy toward that end. In 1970 Senator and Mrs. Humphrey sponsored a premier showing of the movie "Airport" to aid the mentally retarded and raised over $30,000. She appeared on the "Mike Douglas Show" with Vicky, her retarded grandchild, to speak for the retarded.

Mrs. Humphrey was honorary chairwoman of the Minnesota Mrs. Jaycees "Flame of Hope" candle sales to aid the retarded, which raised over $6,000. She was also 1970 honorary chairwoman of Minnesota Honey Sunday. Mrs. Humphrey says of her work, "Through my own personal experience with Vicky, and my contact with the retarded and their families, I am firmly convinced that America is wasting a valuable source of productive manpower and at the same time denying the retarded their rights to the pursuit of happiness to the limits of their abilities.

"That is why I am willing to lend my support, as I can, to programs which aid the mentally retarded, and why I am proud to support Minnesota Honey Sunday. I feel that the Minnesota Jaycees have developed a fine program that will benefit the mentally retarded of Minnesota for years to come and that it is worthy of the support of all Minnesotans."

Minnesota Honey Sunday is a Minnesota Jaycees program to inform the public about local M-R programs and to raise money for state and local M-R programs. Money is raised through a requested donation of $1 in return for a 12-ounce squeeze bottle of Minnesota Honey with a distinctive Minnesota Honey Sunday label.

State funds for 1971 are designated to rebuild the main lodge at Camp Friendship which was destroyed by fire in 1968. Camp Friendship was one of the first resident summer camps for the retarded in the nation and the first in Minnesota.

A power generating system which could produce low-cost electricity while virtually eliminating sulfur oxide emissions was described recently by United Aircraft in a study for the National Air Pollution Control Administration. The new approach results from application of advanced aerospace technology to existing pollution and power shortage problems. It is based on the use of an advanced cycle which combines high temperature gas turbine engines and steam turbines.

New Extension Booklet On Home Lawn Published

Information on the development and maintenance of home lawns is available in a new University of Minnesota publication, "The Home Lawn," extension bulletin 366.

The publication is written by horticultural science Professor Donald B. White with additional information provided by other members of the university staff.

"Your lawn provides the basic setting for your landscape and contributes to the quality of your environment," White says. "Sound planning and a little effort when establishing your lawn can save you money as well as hours of work and frustration now and in the years ahead."

Subject matter in the publication includes selection of grasses, starting a new lawn, seeding, sodding, fertilizing, mowing, renovating an old lawn, raking, watering, aerifying and controlling weeds, insects and lawn diseases.

"The Home Lawn" is available from the Bulletin Room, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn., 55101, or the county extension office.

AAA Will Keep Close Watch On Flood Conditions

When the spring floods come this year in Minnesota, an organization keeping a close watch on developments will be Minnesota AAA and its division offices.

The statewide motoring organization said today it is setting up a special system for reporting flood conditions, particularly as they affect highways and bridges.

Arthur C. Tomlinson, executive vice president of the Minnesota State Automobile association, said the information will be gathered through AAA's network of offices, representatives and garages in Minnesota until the flood waters subside.

The information will be relayed immediately to all AAA offices in the state which, in turn, will offer it as a public service for the safety and convenience of travelers.

According to Tomlinson, the system is being set up to report on specific highways and communities where floodwaters might impede travel or require special caution on the part of motorists.

The system will also include information on roads in neighboring states, especially Wisconsin, where heavy winter snowfall may cause some of the worst spring flooding in history.

Any Minnesotan will be able to check on the latest conditions just by calling the nearest AAA office, Tomlinson said.

AAA division offices are located in Burnsville, Duluth, Moorhead, St. Cloud, Mankato, Rochester, Winona and Austin.

Special Features On Appliances Must Be Wanted

If you're in the market for a major household appliance, consider carefully what special features you want.

Basic appliances without accessories may be better buys than they were 10 years ago. But when you add convenience features, costs start going up. As a rule of thumb, think of each special feature as increasing the cost of your appliance about $25, says Mrs. Wanda Olson, extension specialist in household equipment at the University of Minnesota.

If you buy a certain accessory for the appliance but never use it—for example, a rotisserie for the oven of a new range—you are actually throwing away the $25 or whatever amount you paid for that feature, Mrs. Olson says. She gives these reasons why many people overbuy convenience features on appliances:

If it is a gift, the tendency is to buy something as nice as possible. If a husband is buying an appliance, be sure he knows which features you, as a homemaker, really want.

If you've been using a second or third-hand piece of equipment or doing without, you may think, "I deserve the best," and so splurge on extra features you may never use.

You buy for what you think will be your needs several years from now. It is true that most accessories cannot be added to appliances at a later date.

It's not always possible to select only one particular feature you want. Sometimes special features are sold in groups.

Even though you may wish to buy a basic, stripped down model, it may not be available at your store.

If, however, you have a choice in selecting accessories for your new appliance, be sure to consider present and future needs as well as extra costs. An extra cost for installation and use may be involved as well as the price of the accessory itself.

Poll Of Jurors Shows Favor For Present System

John W. Padden of Crookston, president of the Minnesota State Bar association, has announced results of the association's Minnesota jurors poll, noting that 83 per cent of those responding to the poll preferred that the present system of compensating automobile accident victims be retained and improved.

President Padden explained that, beginning in December of 1970, extending through January of 1971, district court juries in every district in Minnesota were polled immediately following their jury service, in an effort on the part of the lawyers of Minnesota to reach as large a segment as possible of informed citizens of the state, to determine their wishes. Of the 500 survey forms mailed out, almost 70 per cent (347) were returned completed.

The bar president stated that the results of this survey and a similar one taken in [illegible], representing the opinions of over 2,300 jurors, indicated that continuing overwhelming demand for retaining the jury system. From these survey results, the association formulated the "Minnesota Plan" which has been presented to the Legislature in 1969 and 1971.

The plan includes comparative negligence; increased penalties for traffic violations; improved uninsured motorist coverage; medical payments; disability income protection; advance payments; a traffic safety program incorporating motor vehicle inspection and driver's license re-examination; more judges for urban areas.

U. S. savings bonds sales for Minnesota during February were $6,032,705, just slightly ahead of the February, 1970, sales of $6,022,224, according to figures released by George H. Dixon, volunteer state chairman.

Research Board Reveals Auto Operation Cost

Minnesota highway department has received from the highway research board the following data relating to operational costs of automobiles.

1. The average total maintenance cost for those vehicle parts affected by travel (engine, transmission, wheels, steering, and suspension, for example) is 1.15 cents per mile for passenger cars. In addition, it costs 0.12 cents per stop cycle for passenger car stops from 25 mph running speeds.

2. In this study, it was determined that on dust-free roads with free-flowing traffic, oil consumption is 0.70 quarts per 1,000 miles for the composite passenger car.

3. An analytical study of motor vehicle accident cost as a user operating cost based on accident [illegible]. Passenger car accident cost per million miles of travel of all vehicles (cars, trucks and buses) is $1,673 on rural non-freeway routes, $4,287 on urban non-freeway routes, $734 on rural freeways and $1,430 on urban freeways (1058 dollars).

4. Fuel consumption rates for a passenger car traveling on a section of two-lane paved rural highway on a 4 degree curve, graded at four per cent, with free-flowing traffic having average speeds of 30 mph, 0.5 stops per mile, and three 10 mph slowdown cycles per mile, average 0.1 gal. per mile (in other words, about 10 miles per gallon).

Fuel consumption measurements were recorded for each of several representative types of vehicles operating on each of several road test sections. The passenger car test vehicles represented the full range of cars from the small foreign import to the large U.S. "luxury" car.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I purchased a home under the GI bill and have now been notified that the property is going to be condemned to make way for a federal highway. Can I have my loan eligibility restored to purchase another home?

A—Yes. The VA may restore the amount of a veteran's entitlement previously used for any loan on a home which has been taken by condemnation or otherwise by the United States, any state, or any local government agency for public use. However, before there can be any restoration of entitlement, the GI loan on the property must have been paid in full, or the VA must otherwise have been relieved of liability under the guaranty.

Q—Several years ago, my "old law" pension was terminated because my annual income exceeded $1,600. I understand that the income limitation for a single veteran has been increased to $1,900. Can I be reinstated under the "old law" since my income is now within this limit?

A—Yes. A change in the law which became effective Jan. 1, 1971, increased the income limit to $1,900. Any veteran whose pension was terminated after July 1, 1960, because of excessive income may now requalify under the new income limit, provided he has not elected to receive "new law" pension.

Governor Urges Ag Secretary To Assist Dairymen

Governor Wendell Anderson today urged Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin to revoke the milk price support freeze he ordered last week and to give dairy farmers "a fair and realistic guarantee".

In a telegram sent to Hardin following a meeting in Washington between the secretary and major Midwest dairy producer groups, Anderson said corrective action is needed for several significant reasons.

The text of the message is as follows:

"I urge your utmost consideration of the appeal by spokesmen for the major dairy states for reconsideration and hopefully revision of your decision to freeze milk support prices at the current $4 66

"This will cost Minnesota dairy farmers over $20 million annually, puts a virtual death sentence on 15,000 of our small family-type dairy farmers and threatens consumers with a long-range penalty for a short-term bargain.

"Is a fair, 27 cent support increase—a cent per half gallon more for consumers—too much to ask for survival of this vital industry?"

Anderson, whose appeal was backed by Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, said the support freeze hits Minnesota harder than other states because Minnesota already has one of the lowest price structures in the nation.

"Our small farmers are being ground under by inflation, corporate competition and tightening government regulation," he said. "It is high time they were given a fair shake," Anderson said.

The governor emphasized that Minnesota's economy has a big stake in the fate of its dairy industry.

He said Minnesota farmers grossed nearly $426 million from the sale of dairy products in 1968 and that dairy processing activity raised the state's total dairy economy to more than $1 billion.

Norman County Is State Leader In Sunflowers

Norman county is the undisputed capitol of Minnesota's booming sunflower seed industry, according to 1970 production statistics released by Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

Norman county farmers planted 31,300 acres of sunflowers, 47 per cent of the state's total of 86,000 acres of the versatile new specialty crop, and harvested 30,048,000 pounds of the seeds, or 41 per cent of the state total of 74,210,000 pounds.

Wilkin county ranks second with 17 per cent of the acreage and 15 per cent of the seed produced. Polk county placed third with 12 per cent of the harvested acreage and 11.5 per cent of the seed.

Becker county posted the top average yield, 1,020 pounds per acre. Grant county was second with an average of 970 pounds, and Norman and Traverse counties tied for third with 960 pounds per acre.

Although Minnesota farmers increased 1970 sunflower acreage by 9,000 over the prior year, adverse weather conditions cut the state average yield by 101 pounds per acre, to 863.

Acreage forecasts for the 1971 sunflower crop are not yet available, but industry sources have predicted a sharp increase, perhaps by over 50 per cent.

For the past five years, sunflower seed production has pumped an average of over $5 million into Minnesota's farm economy. Most of the sunflower seed is grown in the Red River valley, but production is growing in West Central Minnesota, and has established a beachhead in the southern farming regions of the state.

Oats And Wheat Varieties Join University List

Otter oats and Era wheat, two high-yielding varieties developed by the University of Minnesota, have joined the other small grains on the recommended list for Minnesota, it was announced by Harley Otto, extension agronomist.

Otter oats earned it's recommendation during 1969 and 1970 test plots conducted by the University of Minnesota experimental stations. It is a midseason maturing variety with fair test weight but good groat percentage. Otter was among the top yielders at Lamberton and Morris locations plus good yields at other stations. It is resistant to smut and some crown rust. Otter has good standing ability.

Era hard red spring wheat is a new semidwarf variety. It has averaged 15 to 25 per cent higher yields than the popular Chris, in tests during the past five years. Era is midseason to late in maturity, with medium test weight and satisfactory milling characteristics.

Era, like the semi-dwarf varieties currently available, tends to be lower in protein and bake absorption than varieties like Chris and Waldron. It is awned and is resistant to stem and leaf rust. Era also proved to be tolerant of Septoria, bunt and ergot, and it had good lodging resistance.

Nearly all of the Otter oats and Era wheat seed produced last year for 1971 has been grown under the certified seed program. Certified seed should be used, Otto recommends, in order to realize the bred-in benefits of recommended varieties. Because certified seed is not more than three generations removed from foundation seed and is known to be pure in variety, you can realize a variety's full potential by using it.

Additional information regarding these newly recommended varieties plus others may be obtained from your county agent. Ask him for a copy of Miscellaneous Report No 24 "Varietal Trials of Farm Crops." The publication can also be obtained from the agricultural experiment station of the University of Minnesota.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—What is the age limit for recipients of benefits under the GI bill educational program?

A—None. Benefits are available to all veterans and servicemen who qualify regardless of their age. However, the law specifies that veterans and servicemen must have served after Jan. 31, 1955.

Q—Where should I write if my Veterans administration benefit check is not delivered on time?

A—Wait long enough to be sure that the mails have cleared, then write to the VA regional office which has your claim file. Include your name, if you're a veteran, or the deceased veteran's name if it is a death claim, and your claim number. Do not write to the treasury department because the VA will not receive your letter promptly, resulting in a delayed response.

Q—I am receiving on-the-job training. May I also take some college courses at night and still receive on-the-job training?

A—No. The Veterans administration pays full-time benefits for on-the-job training, therefor, you would not be eligible for additional benefits if you took the college courses.

Q—If I sell my home and secure a release of liability to the government for my GI loan, will I be eligible for a new GI loan?

A—No. To qualify for restoration of your GI loan entitlement, you must have sold your home for a compelling reason, and the loan must have been paid in full.

Q—I am a disabled veteran receiving additional compensation for my 17-year-old son who recently enlisted in the Navy. Must I report his enlistment to the VA, and will the VA stop the additional compensation because of his enlistment?

A—The answer to both questions is "no." The additional compensation will continue until your son reaches 18, regardless of his military service.

Air Freight Is Increasing For North Central

Air cargo shipped from Thief River Falls in February increased by more than 400 per cent over the amount shipped in February, 1970, according to local airline officials.

Freight loaded on board here totaled 22,120 pounds, while 13,580 pounds of freight were off-loaded. Only 5,500 pounds of air freight were shipped out of Thief River Falls in February, 1970.

Passengers getting on board here in February were 625, while 678 passengers arrived.

System-wide North Central airlines carried 255,324 passengers in February, a gain of 11 per cent over the same month in 1970, according to David E. Moran, vice president for traffic and sales.

He said that 62,508,029 revenue passenger miles were flown, up 39 per cent compared with 1970. Cargo, including air freight, express and mail, showed an 18 per cent increase as 691,117 ton miles were flown.

North Central operated 72 charter flights during February, carrying 9,042 passengers to such points as Nassau, San Juan, Acapulco, Mexico City, Las Vegas, Boston, Tallahassee, Orlando, Buffalo and Baton Rouge.

For the first two months of 1971, the airline boarded 567,193 passengers, as 17 per cent increase over last year. Revenue passenger miles reached 135,193,624, a gain of 42 per cent. A total of 1,471,585 cargo ton miles were flown, 22 per cent ahead of last year.

Minnesota GOP Raises $575,000 At Fund Dinner

Minnesota Republicans have raised in cash and pledges $575,000 from their annual fund raising dinner held Friday at the St. Paul auditorium.

"This dinner will be the best non-election year fund raising dinner the party has had if cleanup operations around the state are as successful as we expect them to be," said J. Robert Stassen, So. St. Paul, 1971 dinner chairman.

Stassen said the theme of the dinner was "Operation Comeback" and that "it looks as if the Republican party in Minnesota has made a real comeback to help pay off our 1970 election debt."

The final tally is expected to show that more than 15,000 people contributed an average of $38 each to the dinner. Last year, a record-breaking election year, more than 17,000 people each contributed $40 plus, Stassen added.

Preparation For High Water Is Urged By MPCA

Operators of flood-prone sewage and industrial wastewater treatment plants, owners of storage tanks and industrial stockpiles and managers of dumps may come in for fewer criticisms from downriver communities this spring if they are prepared for high water.

The Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA) has several recommendations for operators of flood-prone facilities.

(1) Many wastewater treatment plants which were inundated by recent floods now have dikes to protect them from another such flood. But operators of plants without such dikes must be prepared with sandbags and pumps to protect the plant so as to function without interruption.

(2) Minnesota law requires prior permission from the MPCA before operators may bypass their plants or discharge inadequately treated wastewater to the waters of the state. The MPCA's phone number is 612-378-1320. People to contact are: Director Grant Merritt, Water Quality Director C. A. Johannes, Municipal wastes Chief John McGuire, Staff Engineer Edwin Smith, Industrial Wastes Chief George Koonce, Solid Wastes Director F. J. Forsberg or Solid Waste Enforcement Chief Blaine Seaborn.

(3) Concerning oil spills and stockpile-related industrial pollution, the MPCA requires dikes to prevent the problem and quick recovery of the pollutants and repair of the damage in case the prevention doesn't work. Concerning flood protection, some storage tank owners have tied down their tanks or filled them with water to keep them from floating away.

(4) Dumps in flood plains must be covered with soil to seal the refuse from water infiltration from top, sides and bottom. If possible, the site should be diked as well.

(5) Alternate dumpsites on high ground, near all-weather roads should be used during, and for awhile after, the flood. Operators of flood-prone dumpsites would be well advised to scout around for alternate sites and for sources of dry cover dirt.

(6) Since it may take a month for machinery, buildings and sites to dry out and for normal operations to resume, managers should be on guard for pollution hazards after the flood as well as before.

Land O'Lakes Requests Dairy Policy Study

In a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin, Land O'Lakes, Inc., of Minneapolis has asked the secretary for immediate action in convening a committee to study and develop a proposed set of dairy policies appropriate to the current and developing status of the dairy industry and the national economy.

The request to the secretary was in accord with a resolution passed by the delegate body of Land O'Lakes at its annual meeting on March 12. This resolution pointed out that declining consumption of milk and dairy products, a continued erosion in the parity price for milk, an increase in total milk production, and sharp increases in costs of the government support programs for dairy products necessitated a thorough re-evaluation of present policies.

The problems related to the annual dairy price support announcement will persist until such time as updated dairy policies consistent with the dairy industry as it exists today are developed and agreed upon by all sections of the industry. Land O'Lakes promised full cooperation and assistance in formation of and working with a study committee.

Economist Says Law On Usury Requires Changes Or Repeal

The state usury law, which sets maximum allowable interest charges, should be modified or repealed since it appears "neither to protect the interests of the consumer nor to permit a rational allocation" of Minnesota's resources, a University of Minnesota economist said.

Mathew Shane, assistant professor in the department of agricultural and applied economics, said that rather than protecting the consumer, the usury law has reduced "severely the funds available for private home buyers, while expanding those available for other users of credit."

The law has prevented home mortgage borrowers from competing effectively with other borrowers, such as corporations and businesses, for funds. This has led "to the drastic reduction in one and two-family housing starts," he added.

The discriminatory impact of the usury law is the single most important factor in explaining a shift from home building to apartment building. The number of new one and two-family home starts declined 27.4 per cent from 1968 to 1969, when the usury law first became binding on mortgage loans. During this same period, new apartment building starts, whose financing is not subject to the usury law, increased 8.11 per cent, Shane reported.

But the level of mortgage lending is more closely related to the supply of savings deposits available to lenders such as savings and loan associations, savings banks, insurance companies, Federal Land Banks and contract mortgages. Savings institutions are restricted in the amount of interest they can pay on their time and savings deposit accounts with most ordinary accounts limited to 5-5½ per cent a year.

With interest rates for bonds rising continually from 1960 to 1970, many persons withdrew their money from savings accounts and bought bonds instead. By mid-1969, at least 80 per cent more could be earned on savings by holding bonds as compared to savings accounts.

Preventing savings institutions from paying competitive returns to small savers leads to a "flow of funds away from the mortgage market and therefore seems like a highly discriminatory policy at best," he said.

These trends affected Minnesota mortgage lending. Although the dollar volume of new mortgage loans of savings and investment associations increased 13.17 per cent in the first half of 1969, it fell 12.93 per cent in the second half of 1969 and 12.73 per cent in the first half of 1970. This coincides with a drop in new housing starts.

"The fact that there was an increase in new mortgage loans in the second half of 1970 implies that some increase in housing starts should be expected in the first half of 1971. The recent reductions of the prime interest rates also seem to indicate this," Shane said.

Minnesota's usury law is only one of many interest rate restrictions imposed on financial markets by state and federal legislation and agencies. Regulations on federal, state and local bonds also have undesirable effects. The 4½ per cent interest rate on federal long term bonds has resulted in 33 per cent of the publicly held marketable bonds in 1970 having a maturity of one year or less. This means the treasury will have to refinance over $120 billion in short term debt in 1971 alone.

The situation is even more "drastic" with local school bond issues. "With an interest rate ceiling of seven per cent in Minnesota on local bond issues, the ability of local communities to raise money for school expansion since the middle of 1969 has been extremely limited. The result has been various local school crises," Shane said.

Restrictions intended to protect borrowers from "unreasonably" high interest rates, actually do the reverse by inhibiting borrowers from raising funds, he concluded.

Shane's remarks appear in his article, "The Impact of the Minnesota Usury Law," in a recent issue of the Minnesota Agricultural Economist, published by the agricultural extension service.

Light Of Split Rock Lighthouse Will Shine Again

Perched atop a sheer cliff overlooking the dangerous waters of Lake Superior's north shore, 1,400 miles from the Atlantic ocean, is Split Rock lighthouse. For 60 years its light and foghorn warned Great Lakes mariners of reefs and shallow waters, until it was mothballed by the U. S. coast guard.

But this summer its brilliant light will once again sweep the waters when it re-opens under the supervision of the Minnesota department of natural resources.

The lighthouse was completed in 1909 and its construction is a story in itself. There was no road along the lake at that point and the cliff on which it was built could only be reached by water. This meant that everything needed—brick, cement, metal and lumber—had to be brought over the lake and hoisted up the face of the cliff.

Another construction problem, that of building foundations for the lighthouse on the solid rock dome, was overcome by cutting trenches in the rock and dynamiting. Because the process often bombarded the whole work area with flying rock, blasting was done in the evenings when most of the men were off the job.

In spite of these and other unique problems, only one season was required for completing the dozen buildings which make up the station.

When modern navigation aids made the lighthouse obsolete, it was closed. But on May 1 the lighthouse will open as part of a 100-acre state park, offering tourists a touch of New England and the rocky coast of Maine.

Within easy driving distance of Split Rock are points where hundreds of picturesque small streams pour into Lake Superior. Many of these cascade down steep slopes and beautiful waterfalls.

Not far from Split Rock is Beaver Bay, one of the oldest towns in Minnesota, whose name recalls the fur trade which flourished there in the early days.

In fact the entire north shore offers a sightseeing tour that demands a good supply of color film.

And in the center of it all, the Split Rock Lighthouse state park will revive a bit of colorful Minnesota history.

Crop, Liestock Report Service To Be Updated

Modifications in scheduled reports issued by the crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture will provide more timely and more accurate production statistics of greater benefits to producers, processors and consumers, according to Commissioner Jon Wefald.

However, the state agency will coordinate future crop and livestock reports with revised schedules of the U.S. department of agriculture.

The April 1 forecast of winter wheat production, December rye acreage and condition report, and the July corn and hay production forecast by states will be discontinued, Commissioner Wefald advised.

New schedules will advance the initial national production forecast on soybeans, an important agricultural economy barometer this year, one month to July. Other July reports will include state and national production forecasts on wheat; national production forecasts on corn, hay, flaxseed, sugar beets and other late-harvest crops, and state and national acreage estimates for all field crops.

The first Minnesota forecast of late-harvest crop production will be issued in August, and those figures will be revised monthly through November.

Annual crop summary for small grains, estimating acreage, yield and value, by states, is scheduled for December report. The comparable annual summary for corn, soybeans and late-harvest crops will be issued in mid-January.

Commissioner Wefald said that only one production forecast will be made for states producing only a minor share of the national total of each crop. Minnesota has only three crops in this category, winter wheat, dry beans and apples.

Grain hay and clover-timothy hay will be listed with "all other hay" in future reports on acreage and production.

Schedules for reporting on vegetables, seeds, livestock and livestock products are unchanged, pending a review of information needs with report users.

Andrew Volstead Designed Act To Aid Cooperatives

In 1902 Andrew J. Volstead, mayor of Granite Falls, was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives, thus becoming among the first native sons to reach U. S. office and, eventually, one of few Minnesotans to hold positions of great power in Congress.

Volstead's name is remembered, unfortunately, only in the context of prohibition, the act which he authored in 1918 which obscured his many positive achievements.

Perhaps the greatest of these was his authorship of the Capper-Volstead Act in 1922, a bill which is often called the "Magna Carta" of farm cooperatives. This law legalized associations of producers to market their products without stipulations of incorporation or organization on a capital stock basis.

Until then the legality of cooperatives was often questioned and increasing court rulings against them threatened their very existence. Volstead's efforts to get the Capper-Volstead act passed in virtually the same form which he had composed it provided the legal backbone on which today's marketing cooperatives still operate.

Andrew Volstead was known to his friends and associates as a kind man who wished to pursue his work with as little public notice as possible—an odd attitude for a man who successfully represented the state for 20 years.

His house in Granite Falls, built in the late 1800's, still stands and some of the original Volstead family effects remain in it. Many local historians would like to see the house made into a museum, and several regional cooperatives may give the project a boost.

Should this happen, it will only be a partial tribute to a man whose one mistake was not forgiven while he lived, yet who served Minnesota and his country to his best ability for two decades.

If you have the trees but the neighbor gets the leaves—help him.

Governor Urges Ag Secretary To Assist Dairymen

Governor Wendell Anderson today urged Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin to revoke the milk price support freeze he ordered last week and to give dairy farmers "a fair and realistic guarantee".

In a telegram sent to Hardin following a meeting in Washington between the secretary and major Midwest dairy producer groups, Anderson said corrective action is needed for several significant reasons.

The text of the message is as follows:

"I urge your utmost consideration of the appeal by spokesmen for the major dairy states for reconsideration and hopefully revision of your decision to freeze milk support prices at the current $4.66.

"This will cost Minnesota dairy farmers over $20 million annually, puts a virtual death sentence on 15,000 of our small family-type dairy farmers, and threatens consumers with a long-range penalty for a short-term bargain.

"Is a fair, 27-cent support increase—a cent per half gallon more for consumers—too much to ask for survival of this vital industry?"

Anderson, whose appeal was backed by Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, said the support freeze hits Minnesota harder than other states because Minnesota already has one of the lowest price structures in the nation.

"Our small farmers are being ground under by inflation, corporate competition and tightening government regulation," he said. "It is high time they were given a fair shake," Anderson said.

The governor emphasized that Minnesota's economy has a big stake in the fate of its dairy industry.

He said Minnesota farmers grossed nearly $426 million from the sale of dairy products in 1968 and that dairy processing activity raised the state's total dairy economy to more than $1 billion.

Norman County Is State Leader In Sunflowers

Norman county is the undisputed capitol of Minnesota's booming sunflower seed industry, according to 1970 production statistics released by Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

Norman county farmers planted 31,300 acres of sunflowers, 47 per cent of the state's total of 66,000 acres of the versatile new specialty crop, and harvested 30,048,000 pounds of the seeds, or 41 per cent of the state total of 74,210,000 pounds.

Wilkin county ranks second with 17 per cent of the acreage and 15 per cent of the seed produced. Polk county placed third with 12 per cent of the harvested acreage and 11.5 per cent of the seed.

Becker county posted the top average yield, 1,020 pounds per acre. Grant county was second with an average of 970 pounds, and Norman and Traverse counties tied for third with 960 pounds per acre.

Although Minnesota farmers increased 1970 sunflower acreage by 9,000 over the prior year, adverse weather conditions cut the state average yield by 101 pounds per acre, to 863.

Acreage forecasts for the 1971 sunflower crop are not yet available, but industry sources have predicted a sharp increase, perhaps by over 50 per cent.

For the past five years, sunflower seed production has pumped an average of over $5 million into Minnesota's farm economy. Most of the sunflower seed is grown in the Red River valley, but production is growing in West Central Minnesota, and has established a beachhead in the southern farming regions of the state.

Oats And Wheat Varieties Join University List

Otter oats and Era wheat, two high yielding varieties developed by the University of Minnesota, have joined the other small grains on the recommended list for Minnesota, it was announced by Harley Otto, extension agronomist.

Otter oats earned it's recommendation during 1969 and 1970 test plots conducted by the University of Minnesota experimental stations. It is a midseason maturing variety with fair test weight but good groat percentage. Otter was among the top yielders at Lamberton and Morris locations plus good yields at other stations. It is resistant to smut and some crown rust. Otter has good standing ability.

Era hard red spring wheat is a new "semidwarf" variety. It has averaged 15 to 25 per cent higher yields than the popular Chris, in tests during the past five years. Era is midseason to late in maturity, with medium test weight and satisfactory milling characteristics.

Era, like the semi-dwarf varieties currently available, tends to be lower in protein and bake absorption than varieties like Chris and Waldron. It is awned and is resistant to stem and leaf rust. Era also proved to be tolerant of Septoria, bunt and ergot, and it had good lodging resistance.

Nearly all of the Otter oats and Era wheat seed produced last year for 1971 has been grown under the certified seed program. Certified seed should be used, Otto recommends, in order to realize the bred-in benefits of recommended varieties. Because certified seed is not more than three generations removed from foundation seed and is known to be pure in variety, you can realize a variety's full potential by using it.

Additional information regarding these newly recommended varieties plus others may be obtained from your county agent. Ask him for a copy of Miscellaneous Report No. 24 "Varietal Trials of Farm Crops." The publication can also be obtained from the agricultural experiment station of the University of Minnesota.
